New Police Station Wanted By Hansen

Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen has an eye on a new location for the city police department, but don't expect anybody to start packing their bags right away.

Hansen Tuesday told officials of Barton-Ashman Associates, the developers of the city's Comprehensive Plan, that as the city expands the police department will outgrow its present quarters in the County-City Building at 555 S. 9th.

The move would be to 19th and Q, the site of the city public works garage. That site, because of its proximity to the main fire station, would be ideal for the future police needs of Lincoln, Hansen added.

"I couldn't say how soon we'll need the new quarters — five, maybe ten years — but a new location would appear to be what we need," Hansen said.

He noted the lack of an adequate waiting room for people visiting the police station as one of many problems with the present facility which occupies parts of the basement and first floor of the building.

Hansen stressed that his comments were part of the input into the Comprehensive Plan, and wouldn't cause any immediate change in the administration of police services.

Rioters: 'We Want Blood!'

Cape Town, South Africa (UPI) — Thousands of colored rioters screaming, "We want blood!" Tuesday battled police in white areas and in ghettoes. Police opened fire on the mobs, killing five persons to push past 303 the death toll in nearly three months of racial strife.

Maj. Gen. David Kriel, in charge of riot control, said four men were killed in the Cape Town area and one at the all-black township of Soweto near Johannesburg, 1,000 miles north of this port city.

He said a "considerable" number were injured. Police fired buckshot, revolvers and teargas and streets boomed with the explosions of thunderflashes — huge firecrackers used to ward off crowds. Police said one man was shot and killed in the Tiervlei district on the city's outskirts.

Blacks and coloreds, the official South African designation for persons of mixed race, formed human waves to attack police with stones and bottles in all-white areas of Cape Town and segregated enclaves near Cape Town and Johannesburg.

In one incident police turned on whites who booed when they clubbed colored rioters.

Police fired volley after volley of tear gas, sending huge clouds of the burning gas over the city, and blasted the mobs with buckshot. Then, when the rioters regrouped and charged again, opened fire.

One colored man, in his mid-20s, keeled over and died within five yards of this correspondent in Cape Town.

The man was trying to take cover from the police fire behind an ambulance parked on the street. He suddenly lurched from behind it, staggering. He had been struck in the chest by a police bullet.

The man coughed once and fell backwards on the street behind the ambulance, his eyes gaping. Blood seeped from a yellow silk scarf he had knotted loosely around his neck and trickled down the side of his mouth.

Minutes later, streets which were filled with swarming, yelling demonstrators cleared and thin wisps of tear gas smoke drifted through the silence.

In Soweto, a black township near Johannesburg, 1,000 miles north, police killed a black man when they shot at a gang discovered tearing up railroad tracks for weapons.

Police said the blacks hurled stones at their patrol car.

The new violence shattered a three-day lull and coincided with the return to work and reopening of businesses following a long holiday weekend marking Settlers' Day. It also coincided with the return of Prime Minister John Vorster from Switzerland where he held three days of talks with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Businesses quickly closed again and iron bars clanged across the doors of shops as police moved in to disperse mobs in the exclusive all-white area of Cape Town.

At one point, a colored mob attacked a white couple in a car who wandered into the battle area. The attackers began to shake the car, trying to overturn it. Two plainclothes policemen came to the couple's rescue and began dragging away two of the rioters.

The crowd began shouting, "We want blood!" and surged forward until police reinforcements moved in, firing tear gas and buckshot.

In another incident, a crowd of about 1,000 colored demonstrators formed on the parade, a wide square near the city hall. They ignored a police officer who read the riot act, warning them to disperse within five minutes.

The officer then boomed the order, "Right. Go!" and police in battle gear spilled from trucks, clubbing the demonstrators over the head and shoulders with batons.

White bystanders hissed their disapproval and one group of police turned and lunged toward them but refrained from hitting them.

Rioting also hit the colored enclave of Parow, four miles from Cape Town, and, for the first time, Stellenbosch, 20 miles east.

In Stellenbosch, mobs of youths threw stones at passing cars. One victim, G. Van Schlalkwyk, later recalled how he hit some of the demonstrators driving away from the scene.

"I put my bakkie (van) into low gear and closed my eyes. I think I knocked a few of them down. It was all I could do."

Style Revue Ends 4-H Stay At Fair

Tuesday was the day of the big switch at the State Fair as 4-H youngsters cleaned up the barns to make way for the FFA animals scheduled to arrive early Wednesday morning.

Hundreds of animals that were pampered pets are going to be converted to cash as all purple ribbon and champion beef must go to market and all hogs and sheep champions are to be slaughtered.

The youngsters will be paid for the value of the animals and many win additional prize money in the carcass contests.

"We don't require lambs to be slaughtered because it is a long way to ship them to Albert Lea Minnesota and because club lambs are hard to find. This gives the youngsters a second chance to show," said Dave Williams, 4-H livestock superintendent.

Youngsters with blue, red and white ribbon animals in the beef market show have the option of withdrawing their animals that could be shown again at the Ak-Sar-Ben show and the Norfolk market show later this fall.

"We put a big N brand on their jaw so they cannot be shown at any other fair except these two. This eliminates the professional steer jockey at these shows," explained Williams.

Winners in the 4-H beef showmanship contest announced Tuesday were Mark Sonderup, 18, of Fullerton, Loran Tejkl, 15, of Leigh and Shelley Satree, 16, of Craig. Mark won a gold medal, Loran a silver and Shelley a bronze.

The rules prohibit the gold winner from competing again.

There were 209 4-H members entered in the State Fair style revue held in the new sports complex Tuesday. The group included 17 boys who made their own clothing ranging from a barbecue apron and hat to a jump suit.

David Dvorak, 17, of Bellevue wore his grandfather's WWI Nebraska Home Guard uniform to recreate a bit of history. Pam Asche, 17, of Republican City and Jean Brigham, 16, of Seward wore their great-grandmothers special occasion dresses in the historical garment division of the 4-H show.

Dvorak even carried a 1873 Springfield single shot army rifle, breech loading model.

The outstanding livestock exhibitors in the 4-H division was selected Tuesday.

Overall winner was Dan Halstead, 18, of Blair who won $25 and a trip to the National 4-H congress in Chicago this fall. Halstead won the swine division.

The sheep division winner was Jim Hart, 19, of Cozad and the beef winner was Jay Volk, 18, of Arlington.

Elmer Harder, public relations specialist for Safeway Stores, sponsors the contest each year. "They are getting much better, more knowledgeable. I feel we are leaving agriculture in good hands," he said.

All three winners are freshmen studying agriculture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

There were only 20,000 visitors at the fair Tuesday but Henry Brandt, fair manager, expects to see 40,000 on Wednesday. "We will exceed 600,000 by Sunday night," he said.

State Fair officials indicated they were going to examine ways and means of inspecting livestock equipment brought to the fair for safety.

A 4-H calf was injured Saturday when it somehow managed to get shocked from a fan brought from home by its owner.

Receipts at the carnival are running 13% ahead of last year following three record days of attendance at the fair which has totaled 425,000 people so far.

Downtown Loop Critics Not Alone

Critics of the new downtown bus loop system have gained some allies on the City Council.

Bob Sikyta told the rest of the council that he is beginning to feel citizens have a legitimate complaint in opposing the loop, which runs on 10th, P, 14th and J.

Sikyta said one part of the new loop that bothers him is the lack of shelter in cold weather.

Council members Steve Cook and Bob Jeambey, however, argued against quick council action on the matter. Cook said that more time should be allowed before the change is evaluated.

He noted that the loop was approved by the Downtown Advisory Committee. Both Cook and Jeambey said that some of the problems the loop is experiencing may be due to downtown street work, rather than the loop itself.

Council member Sue Bailey said citizens will have an opportunity to voice their views on the loop at a public hearing after six months of operation.

Although Max Denney contended that was too long a trial, the council dropped the matter and moved on to other issues.

Senate Kills Raise For Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to deny a cost-of-living pay raise this year to members of the Senate and House, but allow such a raise for federal judges, cabinet members and other federal officials.

A 46-25 vote doomed this year's automatic raise from $44,600 to about $46,750 for all members of Congress. The House voted against it last week.

In a separate, 55-19 vote, the Senate refused to reconsider an earlier tentative action allowing the increase for judges and federal officials earning more than $37,800 a year.

The exact amount of the pay raise is still to be determined, but it is estimated to be 4.8 per cent.

The eligibility of the judges and federal officials for a raise will have to be determined in a House-Senate conference.

Last Wednesday, the House voted 325 to 75 to freeze the automatic raises this year for senators, representatives, federal judges and all other federal personnel currently earning $37,800 a year or more.

The House-approved freeze was stricken from the billion-dollar legislative appropriation bill for fiscal 1977 by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Acting on an amendment by Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio, the Senate agreed by voice vote to limit the freeze to members of the Senate and House, with the understanding that their pay status would be voted upon separately later.

Taft said that to apply the freeze beyond the Congress would harm the government's effort to attract and retain first-rate people for federal service.

But, Taft said he had observed "no lack of candidates for the House and Senate."

Congress last year included members of Congress, the judiciary, the Cabinet and other top federal officials in automatic cost-of-living pay adjustments granted annually to federal civil service employes generally.

Members of Congress received a 5 per cent cost of living raise last Oct. 1, raising their pay to $44,625 a year. A 4.8 per cent increase next month would raise the annual rate to $46,750.

Seven Named In Five-State Baby Selling Ring

Hackensack, N.J. (UPI) — A county grand jury Tuesday indicted seven persons, including five attorneys, on charges of arranging the sale of infant babies to adoptive parents in a five-state network.

Bergen County Prosecutor Joseph Woodcock said the indictments were the result of a 10-month investigation by authorities in New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Michigan and California.

Edward Terner, an attorney in West Orange, N.J., was named in four of the indictments, which allege eight white babies were sold between August 1972, and January 1975, to couples who paid fees of up to $9,100 for the adoption.

The other attorneys named were Harry D. Cohen, of Chicago; J. George Ivler, of Paterson, N.J.; Bernard Lampear, of Southfield, Mich.; and Harold Rosenstein, of New York.

Ivler's wife, Enid, and Robert Ackerman, a landlord in Port Murray, N.J., were also named in a two-count indictment.

The indictments charge that Cohen and Terner unlawfully assisted in the placement of infant children, contrary to statutes of New Jersey which prohibit placing a child into the home of anyone but a brother, or sister of the natural mother.

"All I'm prepared to say is that these people know each other and do business," Woodcock said.

"I won't characterize this as a ring. In some cases the adoptive parents were New Yorkers and in others they were New Jersey residents," he said.

The first count of the indictment charges Cohen and Terner with arranging the sale of three babies for $4,800, $5,500 and $8,000 to adoptive parents. Another count charges they received $9,100 for placement of another child.

The Terner-Rosenstein team allegedly acquired two children from unnamed California attorneys for prices of $8,400 and $9,100.

Terner and Lampar are alleged to have arranged placement of two children for $3,500 and $5,500.

Woodcock said the adoptive parents would go to an attorney and ask for help in adopting a baby without going through a regular adoption agency.

The attorney would then contact another attorney in Chicago or Michigan and arrange for the adoptive parents to fly to the Midwest, pay the money and take the baby home.

"In one case, the parents in New Jersey went to Chicago Aug. 11, 1972, and in another they went on Jan. 31, 1975," Woodcock said.

Ivler was charged with helping Ackerman and his wife arrange in 1975 the sale of an infant whose natural mother lived at Ackerman's apartment house.

Drug Investigators Unhappy With Supervisors

By JIM CAMDEN
and DEB GRAY
Star Staff Writers

The problems in the State Patrol's drug division that were outlined in the Naylor-Keefe report may be only the tip of the iceberg as far as troubles in the department.

That report dealt with cooperating individuals, civilians the patrol uses in drug cases, and problems related to their activities. But sources in the patrol and former patrol officers told The Star that problems also exist between street investigators and office supervisors.

"There is no drug division," said several sources.

Problems mentioned include: narcotics agents get no backing from higher echelon officers; drug investigators are siphoned off to investigate other crimes; supervisors don't understand the nature of drug enforcement.

Col. C. P. Karthauser, patrol supervisor, said such problems, if they exist, were "internal matters."

"I am directly responsible to the Unicameral and the governor (for running the patrol) and that is where I will air any information in this regard," Karthauser said. "I don't feel it will serve any useful purpose to hash this out in the newspaper."

The patrol has 31 drug investigator positions, but only 28 are now filled. Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, head of the drug division, said there have been three transfers and three resignations in the last year. Clinkenbeard filled an opening last year made by one of the transfers.

Clinkenbeard said the patrol would have to wait until after a training camp next spring to fill the other spots.

But, sources said, even though the patrol has 28 investigators, very few are actually working undercover — the operation vital to cleaning up the drug problem. Instead, agents are told to "work snitches" — use paid informants to gather information and make drug buys, sources said.

During a three-month period earlier this year, only one patrol officer worked undercover in the state outside of the Omaha area. Officer John Trenerry said, as far as he knew, he was the only undercover investigator for most of the state.

Trenerry was asked to resign in March after a supervisor saw him in his van with a woman on his day off. Trenerry was separated from his wife at the time.

Officers and former officers said they transferred out of the drug division for the sake of their careers — drug men don't make rank, they said.

Star reporters could find only three persons in the drug division who had been promoted.

Trenerry said drug investigators up for promotion start with a strike against them on the personnel rating sheet the patrol checks when making promotions. Drug men who wear beards, moustaches and long hair — as cover for their work — score low on appearance, the first category on the sheet, Trenerry said.

The Nebraska Legislature in 1967 established a drug control division in the State Patrol. The division is under the jurisdiction of the criminal enforcement division.

But, beginning about two years ago, agents said, the criminal division has siphoned away the power and identity of the drug division.

The investigators blamed no one person for their loss of authority — three mentioned their respect for Col. Karthauser — but said the State Patrol administration, as a whole, does not understand the nature of drug enforcement.

"A criminal man doesn't know a gram of cocaine from a gram of hash and that one is white and the other is brown," one former confidential informant said.

Several officers pointed out that drug enforcement is different from other forms of law enforcement.

In drug enforcement, a police officer makes the crime happen — he buys drugs from a suspected dealer until he has accumulated enough evidence for an arrest. In criminal enforcement, an officer investigates a crime that already has happened.

Some former officers, who said there was enough of a problem in Nebraska to make drug enforcement a "24-hour-a-day job," said that they were also assigned to investigate criminal cases.

In 1975, drug division officers investigated 833 new drug cases and 526 new criminal cases. During the first six months of 1976, they investigated 195 drug cases and 130 criminal cases.

The rest of the criminal division last year investigated 172 new drug cases and 1,194 criminal cases. During the first half of 1976, they investigated 59 new drug cases and 260 criminal cases.

Some agents said the division is hampered from making big busts because of its ties of support to the Legislature, and, indirectly, the taxpayers of Nebraska.

Senate Kills Raise For Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to deny a cost-of-living pay raise this year to members of the Senate and House, but allow such a raise for federal judges, cabinet members and other federal officials.

A 46-25 vote doomed this year's automatic raise from $44,600 to about $46,750 for all members of Congress. The House voted against it last week.

In a separate, 55-19 vote, the Senate refused to reconsider an earlier tentative action allowing the increase for judges and federal officials earning more than $37,800 a year.

The exact amount of the pay raise is still to be determined, but it is estimated to be 4.8 per cent.

Seven Named In Five-State Baby Selling Ring

Hackensack, N.J. (UPI) — A county grand jury Tuesday indicted seven persons, including five attorneys, on charges of arranging the sale of infant babies to adoptive parents in a five-state network.

Bergen County Prosecutor Joseph Woodcock said the indictments were the result of a 10-month investigation by authorities in New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Michigan and California.

Edward Terner, an attorney in West Orange, N.J., was named in four of the indictments, which allege eight white babies were sold between August 1972, and January 1975, to couples who paid fees of up to $9,100 for the adoption.

The other attorneys named were Harry D. Cohen, of Chicago; J. George Ivler, of Paterson, N.J.; Bernard Lampear, of Southfield, Mich.; and Harold Rosenstein, of New York.

Ivler's wife, Enid, and Robert Ackerman, a landlord in Port Murray, N.J., were also named in a two-count indictment.

The indictments charge that Cohen and Terner unlawfully assisted in the placement of infant children, contrary to statutes of New Jersey which prohibit placing a child into the home of anyone but a brother, or sister of the natural mother.

"All I'm prepared to say is that these people know each other and do business," Woodcock said.

"I won't characterize this as a ring. In some cases the adoptive parents were New Yorkers and in others they were New Jersey residents," he said.

The first count of the indictment charges Cohen and Terner with arranging the sale of three babies for $4,800, $5,500 and $8,000 to adoptive parents. Another count charges they received $9,100 for placement of another child.

The Terner-Rosenstein team allegedly acquired two children from unnamed California attorneys for prices of $8,400 and $9,100.

Terner and Lampar are alleged to have arranged placement of two children for $3,500 and $5,500.

Woodcock said the adoptive parents would go to an attorney and ask for help in adopting a baby without going through a regular adoption agency.

The attorney would then contact another attorney in Chicago or Michigan and arrange for the adoptive parents to fly to the Midwest, pay the money and take the baby home.

"In one case, the parents in New Jersey went to Chicago Aug. 11, 1972, and in another they went on Jan. 31, 1975," Woodcock said.

Ivler was charged with helping Ackerman and his wife arrange in 1975 the sale of an infant whose natural mother lived at Ackerman's apartment house.

Drug Investigators Unhappy With Supervisors

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writers

The problems in the State Patrol's drug division that were outlined in the Naylor-Keefe report may be only the tip of the iceberg as far as troubles in the department.

That report dealt with cooperating individuals, civilians the patrol uses in drug cases, and problems related to their activities. But sources in the patrol and former patrol officers told The Star that problems also exist between street investigators and office supervisors.

"There is no drug division," said several sources.

Problems mentioned include: narcotics agents get no backing from higher echelon officers; drug investigators are siphoned off to investigate other crimes; supervisors don't understand the nature of drug enforcement.

Col. C. P. Karthauser, patrol supervisor, said such problems, if they exist, were "internal matters."

"I am directly responsible to the Unicameral and the governor (for running the patrol) and that is where I will air any information in this regard," Karthauser said. "I don't feel it will serve any useful purpose to hash this out in the newspaper."

The patrol has 33 drug investigator positions, but only 28 are now filled. Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, head of the drug division, said there have been three transfers and three resignations in the last year. Clinkenbeard filled an opening last year made by one of the transfers.

Clinkenbeard said the patrol would have to wait until after a training camp next spring to fill the other spots.

But, sources said, even though the patrol has 28 investigators, very few are actually working undercover — the operation vital to cleaning up the drug problem. Instead, agents are told to "work snitches" — use paid informants to gather information and make drug buys, sources said.

During a three-month period earlier this year, only one patrol officer worked undercover in the state outside of the Omaha area. Officer John Trenerry said, as far as he knew, he was the only undercover investigator for most of the state.

Trenerry was asked to resign in March after a supervisor saw him in his van with a woman on his day off. Trenerry was separated from his wife at the time.

Officers and former officers said they transferred out of the drug division for the sake of their careers — drug men don't make rank, they said.

Star reporters could find only three persons in the drug division who had been promoted.

Trenerry said drug investigators up for promotion start with a strike against them on the personnel rating sheet the patrol checks when making promotions. Drug men who wear beards, moustaches and long hair — as cover for their work — score low on appearance, the first category on the sheet, Trenerry said.

The Nebraska Legislature in 1967 established a drug control division in the State Patrol. The division is under the jurisdiction of the criminal enforcement division.

But, beginning about two years ago, agents said, the criminal division has siphoned away the power and identity of the drug division.

The investigators blamed no one person for their loss of authority — three mentioned their respect for Col. Karthauser — but said the State Patrol administration, as a whole, does not understand the nature of drug enforcement.

"A criminal man doesn't know a gram of cocaine from a gram of hash and that one is white and the other is brown," one former confidential informant said.

Several officers pointed out that drug enforcement is different from other forms of law enforcement.

In drug enforcement, a police officer makes the crime happen — he buys drugs from a suspected dealer until he has accumulated enough evidence for an arrest. In criminal enforcement, an officer investigates a crime that already has happened.

Some former officers, who said there was enough of a problem in Nebraska to make drug enforcement a "24-hour-a-day job," said that they were also assigned to investigate criminal cases.

In 1975, drug division officers investigated 833 new drug cases and 526 new criminal cases. During the first six months of 1976, they investigated 195 drug cases and 130 criminal cases.

The rest of the criminal division last year investigated 172 new drug cases and 1,194 criminal cases. During the first half of 1976, they investigated 59 new drug cases and 360 criminal cases.

Some agents said the division is hampered from making big busts because of its ties of support to the Legislature, and, indirectly, the taxpayers of Nebraska.

Carter Would Have Fired FBI Director Kelley

By United Press International

Jimmy Carter, stressing that the head of the FBI must be "pure," Tuesday said he would have fired agency director Clarence Kelley for accepting gifts and services from subordinates.

Following the official opening of his campaign Monday in warm Springs, Ga., Carter stumped the northeast Tuesday. President Ford remained in Washington, preparing for the start of his campaign next week in Ann Arbor, Mich.

A new Harris survey, released Tuesday, found that most voters feel Ford's views are closer to their own than those of Carter. In the poll, 72% said Ford was either conservative or middle of the road. Seventy-two per cent put themselves in one of the two categories.

Carter said during a question and answer session at Brooklyn College in New York that "there has been a great contribution to the rise in crime in our country because of Watergate, the CIA revelations and the disgraceful activities of the FBI."

"I think the director of the FBI ought to be as pure as Caesar's wife," he said. "We shouldn't have federal funds given to decorate his house."

When asked by a reporter whether he would have dismissed Kelley, Carter replied, "Knowing what I know now, yes, I would have fired him."

Kelley has admitted accepting gifts from other agency officials and that FBI carpenters built two window valences in his home a short time after he became director in 1973. Last week he wrote the government a check for $335 to cover the carpentry costs.

Ford, after studying a Justice Department report, announced Saturday that there was "no adequate justification" for firing Kelley.

Later, in Groton, Conn., Carter kept his position on Kelley but admitted "Mr. Ford may have information that I don't have." When asked about replacing Kelley if elected, he replied, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Carter, who ventured to Philadelphia as well as New York, told audiences, "If we are to save our cities we must revitalize our neighborhoods first. If we are to save our country, we must give our families and neighborhoods a chance."

Democratic vice presidential nominee Walter Mondale, campaigning in the Los Angeles area, Tuesday said his ticket will put Americans back to work with an accelerated public works program and by making private construction money more available.

After visiting three labor union halls, Mondale said top priority would go to a "balanced fiscal and monetary policy which permits the Federal Reserve Board to moderate its present stiff policies with respect to credit and money supply.

"Nothing will help the construction industry more than to get those interest rates down so people can afford to buy a home, build a store . . . because they can't afford the cost of money now."

He also said, "We're going to try to deal with part of that problem with a prudent but we hope adequate accelerated public works program."

The Harris survey found that 36% of the voters consider Ford a conservative and 36% label him middle of the road. Five per cent call him liberal.

In July, 57% thought of Carter as either moderate or conservative but that figure dropped to 48% last month. He was labeled a conservative by 17%; moderate by 31% and liberal by 26%.

The figures were interpreted to mean more voters were comfortable with Ford's political outlook, since 31% described themselves as conservatives and 41% moderates.

Representatives for both the Democrats and Republicans Tuesday were inspecting a potential site for the first Ford-Carter debate, set for Sept. 23. The League of Women Voters, which is sponsoring the debates, has suggested St. Louis, but other cities are being considered.

U.S. Expects Intelligence Bonanza From Soviet Jet Figher

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military sources said Tuesday they expect an intelligence bonanza from examination of the first advanced Soviet MIG25 jet fighter to land within reach of U.S. Air Force experts.

The sources said American technical intelligence specialists have been all over a MIG25 "Foxbat" interceptor since it was flown to northern Japan Monday by a defecting Russian air force pilot.

Of special interest to U.S technicians is the radar used by the Russians to guide the missiles that the Foxbat would fire at U.S. fighters such as the F15 in an air battle

American specialists also are reportedly gathering vital firsthand information on the MIG25's twin turbojet engines, its airframe design and construction.

Officially, the United States avoided saying whether Japanese authorities had allowed U.S. experts access to the MIG25, which has been described as the fastest weapons-carrying warplane in the world.

Pentagon spokesman Alan Woods told a briefing "I'm sure we'd be interested," but "it is up to the Japanese to decide who is going to be looking at it."

Other sources indicated the United States wants to spare its ally, Japan, any diplomatic difficulties with the Soviet Union.

Pentagon officials anticipate the Japanese will return the MIG25 to Russia. The pilot reportedly has requested asylum in the United States, and U.S. officials have said he would be welcomed here.

The MIG25 has been a source of concern to U.S. military officials since it demonstrated in the early 1970s its ability to fly faster than 2,000 miles per hour at altitudes of 80,000 feet and above.

A reconnaissance version of the Foxbat drew special attention several years ago when Israeli-piloted F4 Phantom jet fighters tried unsuccessfully to intercept Soviet-piloted MIG25s flying over the Sinai. Those MIGs were based in Egypt at that time, but the Russians have since withdrawn them.

If they'd had their preference, U.S. technicians probably would have preferred getting their hands on the reconnaissance version of the MIG25 because that would have given them an opportunity to study sophisticated cameras, sensors and "black box" intelligence-gathering electronic equipment now in use in Russia's most advanced surveillance planes.

However, U.S. Air Force officers are openly gleeful that their technicians will be able to tell them about the specific technical details of the MIG25 in its fighter form, referred to in 1973 by then Air Force Secretary Robert Seamans as "probably the best interceptor in production in the world to today."

U.S. Air Force experts concede that the Foxbat is faster than the F15, whose mission is air superiority. But these experts insist that the F15 is more maneuverable and, thus could offset superior MIG25 speed with agility in air to air combat.

Medical Cost Control Emphasized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's new five-year health plan released Tuesday places top priority on controlling runaway medical costs, and de-emphasizes last year's proposal to boost liquor and cigarette taxes as a preventative health measure.

The report, "Forward Plan for Health," represents th U.S. Public Health Service's blueprint for tackling major health problems during 1978-82.

The major concern is health care costs, which rose 300 per cent during the last decade to $118.5 billion last year, said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare

"Until costs can be contained, federal policy making in health will be dominated by these basic economic considerations," Cooper said. "Proposed solutions must address the total health care system, not merely a major component or program in that system."

The new five-year plan, the third in a series, calls for a "major attack on cost escalation as the factor now driving national health policy." It emphasizes greater use of preventive services, such as public immunization programs, improved quality of care and more research on medical malpractice.

Malpractice insurance adds up to $15 per bed each day to hospital rates and $2 billion to national health care costs, the report said.

The report makes mention, without specifically endorsing proposals advanced last year to restrict liquor advertisements and boost liquor taxes and to increase taxes on cigarettes high in tar and nicotine.

The Public Health Service said, however, that it continues to support efforts authorizing the Federal Trade Commission, which is not part of HEW, to set maximum tar and nicotine limits.

The report said that another proposal mentioned last year, to provide federal funds for nationwide fluoridation of school and community water supplies to reduce dental disease, is under serious consideration this year.

Foreigners Fight War In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Peering through a hole punched in the wall, a young Iraqi sniper squinted down the sights of his rifle and squeezed off a round at Christians two buildings away.

"I can't see them," he said in an easily recognizable Iraqi accent. "But I can see where they are moving around inside."

The sharpshooter was part of a contingent of Iraqis and Palestinians from Iraq dispatched to help leftist Moslem and Palestinian forces in the Lebanese civil war.

The role of foreign fighters in Lebanon has been a subject of charges and countercharges in the 17-month civil war. Each side has accused the other of bringing in mercenaries, while discreetly veiling its own help from abroad.

The following picture of non-Lebanese taking part in the bloodletting was pieced together from on-the-spot observations and sources on both sides:

—Palestinians:

About 300,000 Palestinians lived in Lebanon before the war began in April 1975, including about 12,000 well-armed guerrillas. They have been at the heart of the conflict from its beginning.

The number of guerrillas has increased sharply over the months. Palestinian chieftain Yasir Arafat recently declared all able-bodied Palestinians will be drafted.

In addition, some 8,000 troops of the Palestine Liberation Army entered Lebanon in January from Syria and Egypt.

—Syrians:

Damascus sent between 13,000 and 15,000 Syrian soldiers into Lebanon early this summer, backed by about 500 tanks. They control about a third of the country's 4,015 square miles and hold the key to any cease-fire.

The Syrians, at first worked through their Saiqa Palestinian guerrilla group and aided leftist Moslems in early stages of the war.

—Arab League peacekeeping troops:

These forces include Saudi Arabians, Sudanese and Libyans, along with Syrians separated from the main Syrian contingent. The peacekeeping forces were dispatched in June in an effort to separate the combatants.

The 3,500 peacekeepers have never been seen participating in combat, despite Christian charges that the Libyans have fought for the leftists. The peacekeeping force commander, Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohammed Hassan Ghoneim, denies it has ever happened.

—Iraqis:

At least one contingent of Iraqis has come to Lebanon as part of the Iraqi-sponsored Arab Liberation Front, a radical Palestinian guerrilla band.

Camille Chamoun, a Christian militia leader, charged that 2,000 Iraqi army soldiers flew to Egypt and then came by boat to Lebanon.

The fighters themselves, in relaxed conversations on the battlefront, say they volunteered "to aid the Arab revolution" and arrived without military training.

—French:

A rightist student group in Paris has said some of its members are fighting for Christian militias in Lebanon "to save Christian civilization." One young Frenchman was seen killed in July during the battle for Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp.

A few French military experts also have been reported training the Christian Phalange party militia in using sophisticated weapons and special sniper gear.

You Ever Get That Sinking Feeling?

Members of the U.S. Army's Golden Knights look down at Cleveland's Cuyahoga River, but they're aiming for Burke Lakefront Airport where the National Air Show was being held. The paratroopers jumped from about 1,200 feet to the delight of 75,000 spectators below.

Final Count Shows 526 Died On Roads

By United Press International

The traffic death toll during the Labor Day weekend soared to 526, the highest since 1973, before the Arab oil embargo forced speed limit reductions, a final count showed Tuesday.

The National Safety Council blamed a basic increase in travel, fair weather which enticed more vacationers onto the roads, and possibly speeding on the highways.

The toll was 119 above last year's Labor Day holiday death count of 407 and 66 above the highest preholiday estimate of the safety council.

The council had estimated that between 360 and 460 persons would die in traffic between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

"It is tragic that the total of traffic fatalities has gone so high for this holiday weekend," said Vincent L. Tofany, president of the safety council.

"There were indications that this might be happening. Traffic deaths in the country during July were 6% higher than for the same month a year ago.

"There was increased travel this Labor Day compared to last, and perhaps an unfortunate increase in the speeds being traveled on the highways. In addition, we had clear, warm weather across the nation which drew more people to the roads."

California, which often has the highest death toll, led again this year with 56, 13 more than in the same period last year. A highway department spokesman said good weather brought out heavy traffic throughout the state.

North Dakota, which usually has few traffic deaths during holiday periods, recorded nine during the weekend.

"Normally we have only one or two road deaths over the Labor Day weekend," North Dakota Highway Patrol Lt. Arden Johnson said.

Angry Or Frightened? Say It With Lipservice

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For $5, Philip Abrams will introduce you to the girl across the room, help you make up with your wife or insult your boss — by telephone.

Yes, through the wonders of Alexander Graham Bell's telephone and the inventiveness of the human mind comes "Lipservice — A Verbal Proxy."

"I say things for people who have difficulty in saying things themselves," says Abrams, 31, who moved here from Maryland eight years ago to complete his education and stayed on to teach elementary school.

Abrams' one-man operation consists of calling up the object of your affection or wrath and delivering your message — of love, hate, good wishes or bad. He "farms out" calls requiring Spanish, Chinese, Russian or other languages.

Abrams says so far the response has been "extraordinarily positive. No one has hung up on me yet."

He got the idea from personal experience, he says. "There were many occasions in which I found myself in the same position. Someone might want to say something to someone, but through fear, shyness or having something to lose they wouldn't say it.

"It occurred to me one day — the little lightbulb scene — that it would be nice if someone could be doing it legitimately."

The base charge for Lipservice, which began late in July, is $5 for a single message. For $7.50 he will ask for a reply and call you back — and for the bargain hunter he delivers three messages for $12.

For your $5, you get first-class service. Not only is the message delivered, but Abrams will deliver it in an appropriate tone of voice.

Drought Timeless, Still Awful

In central Nebraska, farmers turning under hay stubble caused great clouds of dust, aided by the hot, strong wind, to swirl across the Interstate highway. You thought of one thing: "dustbowl days."

Farther up the highway, officials uneasily watched a grass fire.

In the northwest part of the state a fire started by lightning raged through 3,000 acres of forest land. Nebraska has little forest land to spare.

Tumbleweeds caught by the wind scurried across the drier-than-ever moonscape of northeastern Colorado while water from the center pivots which are greening up patches of that moonscape evaporated in the noonday heat.

The Colorado Rockies are uncommonly brown this year. The dry look is from the lack of snow in high elevations, the ravages of the mountain pine beetle and — despite the epic downpour and tragic flood of July 31 — a general lack of rain.

We have never seen the Big Thompson River at such low stage. It is a mere, muddy trickle winding through its flood-widened channel at the upper end of the canyon it ruined only a month ago.

And of course the Platte has disappeared again. Under the bridges you can find a sea of weeds and sand.

The drought is nothing new, as readers were reminded in the water story in Tuesday's Star. "We've been having them for at least eight centuries, and some have lasted for 30 or 40 years," one source observed.

But precedence doesn't lessen the dread of seeing crops dying in the sun. History does not dissolve the lump in the throat which materializes when you kick up a cloud of grasshoppers and dust and hear the brittle weeds crack beneath your feet.

And the anticipated general rain across this region, which may cool off and settle the dust here in the Lincoln area today, will not end concern over the drought and the need to plan for the intelligent use of Nebraska's and the nation's precious water resource.

Despite the tremendous volumes of water under the surface in Nebraska, the state faces a water crisis in the future unless waste is stopped, irrigation development is realistic and restrained and conservation is practiced by all water users.

The rains will come again. The mountains will sparkle with snow and the rivers will rush. The plains will be verdant.

But it will be dry again, too.

Accounting For The MIAs

Vietnam's goodwill gesture in releasing the names of 12 dead American fliers who previously had been unaccounted for doubtless will be appreciated by the families involved.

The notification by Vietnam of how and when the Americans died at least removes nagging doubts about what happened. It removes hope, too, but the closing of the book brings with it a certainty which ultimately will restore some peace of mind to the families.

A spokesman said the U.S. Department of State is "pleased to receive the information provided" and considers it a "positive step."

But, the spokesman said, addressing the central point: "The list given to us however deals only with a small portion of the many hundreds of outstanding cases of men missing in action in Indochina.

"We cannot believe that the Vietnamese wish to trade on the misery of American families and therefore we call upon the Vietnamese authorities to provide as full an accounting as possible for all of our missing men without further delay."

The goodwill gesture is seen as an attempt by Vietnam to ease American opposition to its application for membership in the United Nations and to spur war reparations promised by Washington in the Paris cease-fire accords.

The gesture has fallen short of its mark, if that is the case.

According to the cease-fire agreements, which the victorious North Vietnamese violated at will, any uncertainty about the American MIA's was to have been cleared up long ago.

This is not a time to be getting into an original sin argument about who was wrong in Vietnam.

It is time to try to repair, as best as can be done, the damage caused by the war and to try to create some sort of natural relationship between Vietnam and the U.S. and the rest of the world. Vietnam can greatly help itself in this task.

It is time, too, to diminish the agony suffered by innocent families.

The American demand that Vietnam live up to its part of the bargain concerning all the MIAs is reasonable.

McCollister Worked For Bill

Omaha, Neb.

It's unfortunate that Marilyn McNabb of Lincoln allowed politics to color her evaluation of who has been doing a good job and who hasn't in fighting for an effective toxic substances bill. If she had been less political and more balanced, she would have noted that Rep. John Y. McCollister was one of two House leaders who were responsible for getting an extensive bill out of committee and the House.

In fact, the liberal Washington Post commended McCollister in an August 29 editorial for his leadership and work in getting a bill passed in the House — the first time ever in the House of Representatives.

Mr. McCollister deserves our thanks and respect for his work, especially for his efforts to protect small business from undue regulation.

Working On Drug Problem

Lincoln, Neb.

Instead of focusing on the narrow questions of whether or not to use felons as undercover agents, and how to control drug buy money, the Judiciary Committee should take a good look at the fruits of a decade of stringent and expensive efforts to control illegal drugs through the criminal justice system.

Let's face it. In spite of coercive laws and increasingly repressive enforcement practices, illicit drug use continues to increase at a rate far in excess of the general population increase. More and more people of all ages are using and abusing drugs, both the legal kinds like alcohol and tranquilizers, and the illegal varieties. This fact alone should convince the committee that the present approach is totally wrong, that our present laws are ineffective and perhaps even counter-productive.

The committee should also consider the important question as to how much the tactics outlined in the Naylor Report have contributed to the mistrust and contempt for the law that seems to permeate our society, particularly among our young people. More important, the committee should consider how many of the basic freedoms and rights that we Americans used to take for granted have been subverted in the quixotic crusade to protect our youth from the "drug menace."

We are never going to totally eradicate the use or the abuse of mind-altering drugs. But if we are going to continue trying, at least we should not keep making the same old mistakes. The worst that can happen by trying new approaches to the problem is that we will make some new mistakes. And who knows, we might actually make some progress on the problem.

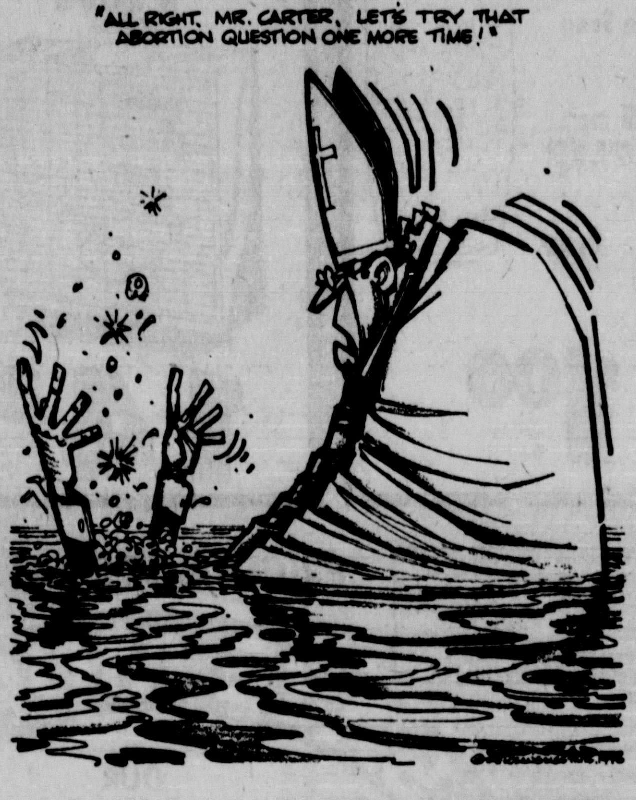
Carter And The Bishops

WASHINGTON — The publicity surrounding their recent meeting has inadvertently done a disservice to both Jimmy Carter and the Catholic bishops.



"ALL RIGHT, MR. CARTER, LET'S TRY THAT ABORTION QUESTION ONE MORE TIME!"

Carter met privately for an hour with the six bishops who make up the executive committee of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. Their discussion was serious and amicable. Carter, far from waffling or trimming on the abortion issue, restated the position he has publicly expressed many times. He is opposed to abortion and to government policies that encourage it, but he sees legal and practical difficulties with the constitutional amendments that have thus far been proposed to ban or restrict it.

The bishops restated their reasons for wanting a constitutional amendment.

Since neither Carter nor the bishops altered their respective positions, the press treated the meeting as a confrontation rather than a dialogue even though none of the participants had expected any change to occur. Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the Catholic Conference, unfortunately contributed to this impression when he stressed to reporters the "very substantial disagreement" over abortion and added that the bishops "continue to be disappointed with the governor's position."

Press speculation has naturally focused on possible political damage for Carter, but the Catholic Church is also incurring risks. In the long-run, the damage to its teaching authority may be much more serious.

There is first the risk that the church by concentrating public attention so intensively on the abortion problem may be perceived as a single-issue constituency. Instead of a powerful moral force bearing witness to the Christian message on a wide range of human concerns, the church may be subtly downgraded to the level of the gun lobby, the textile manufacturers looking for an import quota and all the other special interests.

Secondly, there is the risk of an offense against that spirit of charity and tolerance that should prevail in political discourse. The bishops themselves are sure not to offend against that spirit, but the more fervent outriders of the right-to-life movement have already begun to circulate ugly cartoons and intemperate language about the Democratic nominee. Meanwhile, non-Catholics may gain the false impression that the bishops are trying to impose a political veto against the Carter candidacy. They may see arrogance where the bishops see only firmness.

Finally, on abortion itself, recent publicity has blurred the real context of the church's teaching.

The Catholic Church seeks to create a society of hope. In Christian terms, despair is the ultimate sin because it means an individual has abandoned trust in God's mercy and love. Life without hope is a living hell.

The church looks at America and the world and sees many evidences of despair. The number of suicides is rising sharply. Rates of drug addiction and alcoholism continue to increase. More and more marriages end in divorce as couples abandon hope that they can cope with their marital problems. Many experts have given way to a Malthusian despair that the people of the underdeveloped countries can be fed.

Against these and many other evils, the Catholic Church affirms life and articulates a message of hope. It opposes capital punishment and asserts its belief in the criminal's right to life and to the hope of rehabilitation. It supports stringent gun controls to protect human life. It endorses amnesty and the right of the political exile and the military deserter to a second chance in life. It rejects the idea that unemployment serves any good purpose and affirms every person's right to useful work, decent housing, and competent medical care. In the world, the church argues that mankind if it organizes its services can clothe the naked, feed the hungry, and do justice to the poor.

As part of this broad effort to build a life-sustaining society of hope, the Catholic Church affirms the right to life of the unborn child. It nurtures the hope that every unplanned and unwanted child, every mongoloid child, every handicapped child can find love in this world from adoptive parents if not from his own. It worries that a society that kills the unwanted child may soon be a society that kills the senile, the insane, the retarded and the incurably ill.

The human rights that the Catholic Church affirms are often violated and always precarious. The hopes that it nurtures for all human persons are wild, radical, perhaps unattainable hopes. But who ever said that Jesus Christ was a practical man?

Many thoughtful persons, inside and outside the Catholic Church, who understand the glorious message of hope and life that the bishops seek to proclaim to a despairing world, are distressed that the message is being narrowed and uselessly politicized by the abortion controversy. As the bishops press their campaign for an abortion amendment, their larger cause could be lost from sight amid the clashing partisans, the roar of half-truths, and the sensationalism of a national political campaign.

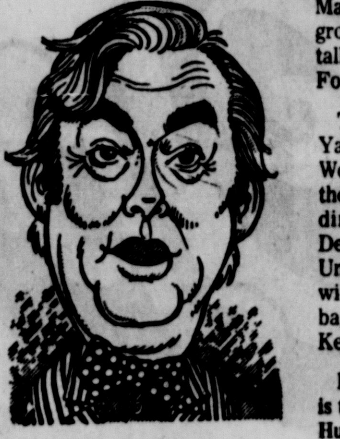
The Hawk Who Sings Like A Lark



MOYNIHAN

NEW YORK — Things are looking up in New York. The Yankees are about 10 games ahead in the American League East, Pat Moynihan is leading Bella Abzug for the Senate Democratic nomination, and Mayor Beame seems to have grown at least an inch since the tall ships came to town on the Fourth of July.

This, friends, is progress. The Yankees haven't been in the World Series since 1964, when they lost to the St. Louis Cardinals. And the New York Democrats, haven't elected a United States senator since 1950, with the accidental carpet-bagging exception of Bobby Kennedy.

But Pat! Pat is something! He is to the Democrats what Catfish Hunter is to the Yankees — a flamboyant, hard-ball, sometimes bean-ball, pitcher whose fast ball is better than his control. Bella Abzug is trying to cut him up because of some silly remarks he made in favor of Nixon, and as usual the party is split six ways, but this just could be the most important Senate race of the year.

If ever a great state needed strong and creative representation in the United States Senate with access to the White House, it is New York, and it is scarcely getting it from James Buckley, the conservative who will teach New York a lesson even if he kills it. He isn't even the best Buckley available, but he could probably beat Bella in a straight race in November.

Moynihan is a more formidable challenger. All the characteristics that made him a controversial diplomat at the United Nations — his love of the barbed and vivid phrase, his addiction to public rows — work to his credit in a Senate race. He's the sort of guy who makes you smile before he says anything.

He's a walking caricature, tall and lean, with his wayward lock of blond hair and his floppy Irish tweed hats. In a very short time, he has become a familiar personality in the city, and with the help of labor leaders here and upstate, he is developing an effective political organization.

He's an outrageous character in many ways, but when he puts his excellent mind to a problem — as he did on the U.S.-Indian Rupee settlement when he was our ambassador in New Delhi — or on the immensely complex problems of human welfare, he can be a superb negotiator and politician.

Over the years, he seems to have become increasingly sensitive to criticism. His perceptive analysis of black family life in America was for long misunderstood and unfairly condemned by many black leaders, and this bone sort of stuck in his throat, though he claims that in the end it was one black leader who persuaded him to run.

Pat doesn't like to be patted with the back of your hand, but he has many of the other personal qualities that distinguish prominent United States senators, and at least one additional quality most of them lack. Like most of them, he is not handicapped by excessive modesty or long brooding silences, and his ego would be impressive even among the favored hundred of the Senate.

Where he does excel is that he not only has the Irish gift of gab, but he can think of his feet; he can make sense in plain and often vivid English sentences, and he can be very funny.

Paradoxically, the odd thing about Moynihan is that his natural bounce and gayety seem in recent years to have loitered down occasionally into fits of pessimism.

He has obviously become more conservative in his 40's — he is now 49 — and he is undoubtedly right in arguing that his moderate position is the best way to put together in New York a coalition of Jews, Catholic workers, and upstate conservatives that can beat Buckley.

Bella is too far on the left, too pacifist on the Pentagon and pugnacious on Israel to put together a cohesive policy or organize a coalition that can beat Buckley, but Moynihan really has put it all together: He is a hawk who sings like a lark and in these days of coalition politics that is good not only in New York but in Washington.

Pat worries many of his old buddies when he loses that light-hearted bubbling laugh and begins to talk about the pity of it all.

Even so, he is still the most amiable and articulate candidate for the Senate in America today, and the sort of voice New York needs in Washington, and vice versa, but don't count on the New York Democrats being smart enough to see it. They'd rather fight than win, which is why they've been out of the U.S. Senate for most of two generations.

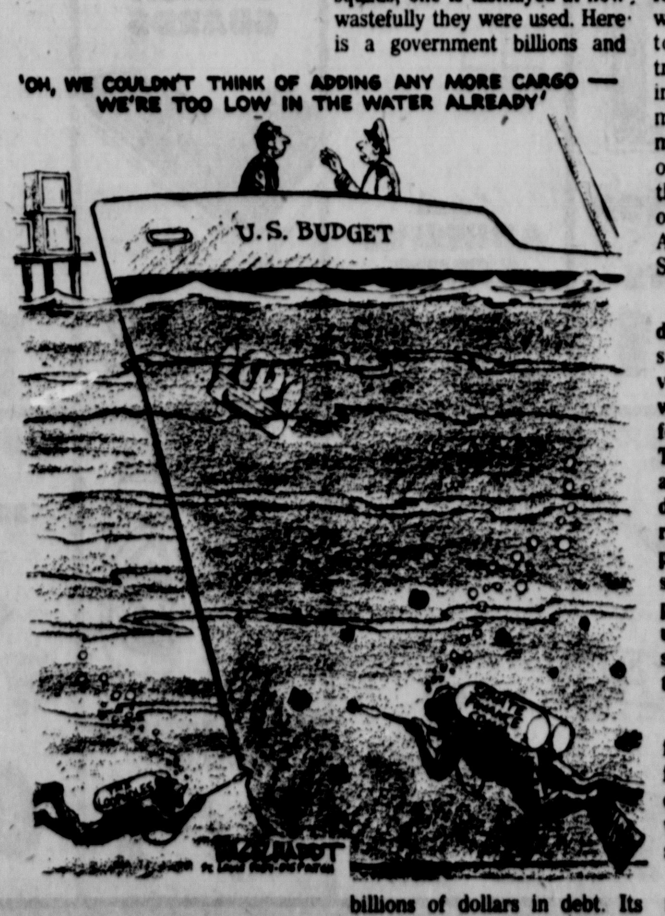
Flashlight Tax Reform

NEW YORK — Reading about the government's burglary squads, one is dismayed at how wastefully they were used. Here is a government billions and billions of dollars in debt. Its assets, however, include some of the nation's most skillful burglars, highly advanced equipment for breaking and entering, and the will to put both to work.

'OH, WE COULDN'T THINK OF ADDING ANY MORE CARGO — WE'RE TOO LOW IN THE WATER ALREADY'



Logically, we might expect the federal burglars to come out the window with truckloads of swag to invigorate a debilitated treasury. But we're not dealing in logic. We're dealing in government. And so, all we get is some microfilm snapped at the scene of the job by the CIA boys and the minutes of the last meeting of the Downtown Trotzky Athletic Club and Revolution Society filched by the FBI.

What a thin return on the tax dollar. All right, maybe snapshots and minutes are valuable to the security police, who conduct these operations for national security. Still, the Treasury needs money, too, just as desperately as the police need documents, and it is galling to reflect that these light-footed payrollers, having broken in to steal papers, are too delicate to pause on their way out and pick up some cash, a few stones, a TV set, or at least a typewriter, for the treasury.

This is probably because federal burglary executives have failed to point out that cash and other negotiables are even more vital to national security than snapshots.

Do not misunderstand. This is no squeamish complaint about the ugly necessities of national security. To the contrary, it is a tough, hard-nosed plea for good, old fashioned horse sense.

Thus, by roundabout path we arrive at tax reform, that blessing to which every statesman is committed. Jimmy Carter threatens, if elected, to bring us tax reform in a year or two. Worse, Congress is now writing a tax bill which threatens to bring it about immediately. This version, they will say, will reform the horrors created the last time Congress gave us tax reform.

The words "tax reform" send chills down the spine of every sentient American because each new reform deepens the nightmare of income tax law. Just when you have got a purchase on this monster, Congress reforms it and everybody has to start all over again. It has become a complexity to confound a Dickens lawyer, a maze to make King Minos's labyrinth look like a playpen. The conscientious citizen would have to devote every waking hour to its study if he wanted to make a reasonably close guess at what he owes his government each April.

Even then, he would probably be wrong.

I should like to propose a sensible reform. Burglary. The government should repeal the present tax law for two or three years and see what its existing burglary teams can bring in by way of revenue.

There is no persuasive argument against this elegantly simple reform. Consider:

It would increase government efficiency by telling underworked federal burglars already on the payroll to raise their productivity.

It would be in the national security.

It would be psychologically satisfying to the great majority of taxpayers, who already believe they are being robbed by the government but can never find any fingerprints.

It would save billions of work hours by relieving taxpayers of the obligation to master the law in order to guess what they ought to hand over.

☆ ☆ ☆

It would free thousands and thousands of lawyers from the drudgery of tax court duties and give them time to restore simple justice to the penniless and downtrodden.

It would eliminate the injustice of loopholes and cheating by exposing the secret vaults and mattresses of the unscrupulous to the same peril as the television sets of the working stiffs.

With a government bursting for its revenue, every American would have an added opportunity denied under the present tax law. You would have the right, if you caught the tax collector, to flatten him with a poker.

Bella Abzug is trying to cut him up because of some silly remarks he made in favor of Nixon, and as usual the party is split six ways, but this just could be the most important Senate race of the year.

☆ ☆ ☆

If ever a great state needed strong and creative representation in the United States Senate with access to the White House it is New York, and it is scarcely getting it from James Buckley, the conservative who will teach New York a lesson even if he kills it He isn't even the best Buckley available but he could probably beat Bella in a straight race in November

Moynihan is a more formidable challenger All the characteristics that made him a controversial diplomat at the United Nations — his love of the barbed and vivid phrase, his addiction to public rows — work to his credit in a Senate race. He's the sort of guy who makes you smile before he says anything

He's a walking caricature, tall and lean, with his wayward lock of blond hair and his floppy Irish tweed hats. In a very short time, he has become a familiar personality in the city, and with the help of labor leaders here and upstate, he is developing an effective political organization.

He's an outrageous character in many ways, but when he puts his excellent mind to a problem — as he did on the U S -Indian Rupee settlement when he was our ambassador in New Delhi — or on the immensely complex problems of human welfare he can be a superb negotiator and politician

Over the years he seems to have become increasingly sensitive to criticism His perceptive analysis of black family life in America was for long misunderstood and unfairly condemned by many black leaders and this bone sort of stuck in his throat, though he claims that in the end it was one black leader who persuaded him to run

Pat doesn't like to be patted with the back of your hand, but he has many of the other personal qualities that distinguish prominent United States senators, and at least one additional quality most of them lack. Like most of them, he is not handicapped by excessive modesty or long brooding silences, and his ego would be impressive even among the favored hundred of the Senate

Where he does excel is that he not only has the Irish gift of gab, but he can think of his feet; he can make sense in plain and often vivid English sentences, and he can be very funny.

Paradoxically, the odd thing about Moynihan is that his natural bounce and gayety seem in recent years to have loitered down occasionally into fits of pessimism

He has obviously become more conservative in his 40 s — he is now 49 — and he is undoubtedly right in arguing that his moderate position is the best way to put together in New York a coalition of Jews, Catholic workers and upstate conservatives that can beat Buckley

Bella is too far on the left, too pacifist on the Pentagon and pugnacious on Israel to put together a cohesive policy or organize a coalition that can beat Buckley, but Moynihan really has put it all together He is a hawk who sings like a lark and in these days of coalition politics that is good not only in New York but in Washington

Pat worries many of his old buddies when he loses that lighthearted bubbling laugh and begins to talk about the pity of it all

Even so, he is still the most amiable and articulate candidate for the Senate in America today, and the sort of voice New York needs in Washington, and vice versa, but don't count on the New York Democrats being smart enough to see it. They'd rather fight than win, which is why they've been out of the U S Senate for most of two generations

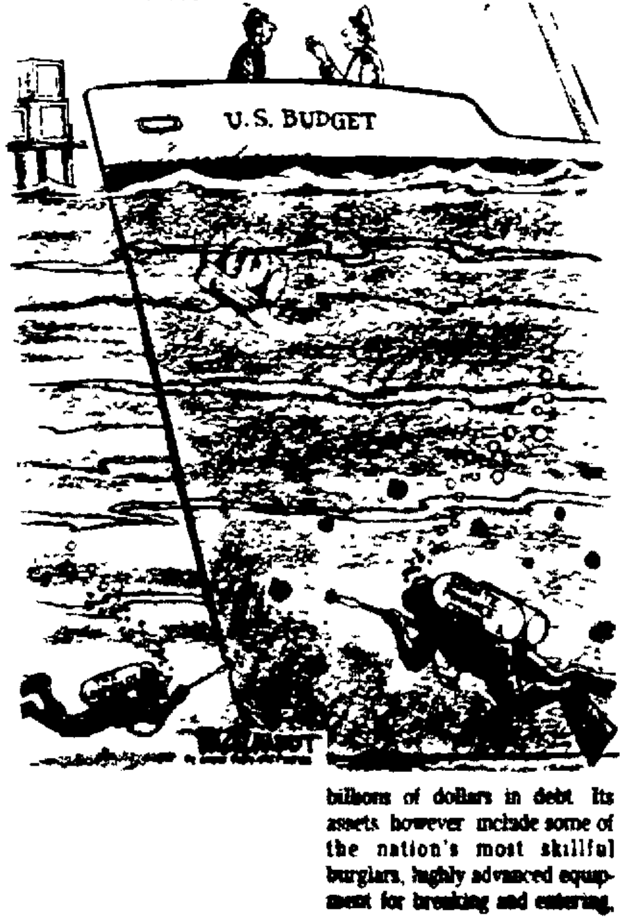
Flashlight Tax Reform

NEW YORK — Reading about the government's burglary squads, one is dismayed at how wastefully they were used. Here is a government billions and billions of dollars in debt. Its assets however include some of the nation's most skillful burglars, highly advanced equipment for breaking and entering, and the will to put both to work.

'OH, WE COULDN'T THINK OF ADDING ANY MORE CARGO — WE'RE TOO LOW IN THE WATER ALREADY'



Logically, we might expect the federal burglars to come out the window with truckloads of swag to invigorate a debilitated treasury But we're not dealing in logic We're dealing in government. And so, all we get is some microfilm snapped at the scene of the job by the CIA boys and the minutes of the last meeting of the Downtown Trotzky Athletic Club and Revolution Society filched by the FBI

What a thin return on the tax dollar. All right, maybe snapshots and minutes are valuable to the security police, who conduct these operations for national security Still, the Treasury needs money, too, just as desperately as the police need documents, and it is gall to reflect that these light-footed payrollers, having broken in to steal papers, are too delicate to pause on their way out and pick up some cash, a few stones, a TV set, or at least a typewriter, for the treasury.

This is probably because federal burglars executives have failed to point out that cash and other negotiables are even more vital to national security than snapshots

Do not misunderstand This is no squeamish complaint about the ugly necessities of national security To the contrary it is a tough, hard-nosed plea for good old fashioned horse sense

Thus, by roundabout path we arrive at tax reform that blessing to which every statesman is committed Jimmy Carter threatens if elected, to bring us tax reform in a year or two Worse Congress is now writing a tax bill which threatens to bring it about immediately This version they will say, will reform the horrors created the last time Congress gave us tax reform

The words "tax reform send chills down the spine of every sentient American because each new reform deepens the nightmare of income tax law Just when you have got a purchase on this monster, Congress reforms it and everybody has to start all over again. It has become a complexity to confound a Dickens lawyer a maze to make King Minos's labyrinth look like a playpen The conscientious citizen would have to devote every waking hour to its study if he wanted to make a reasonably close guess at what he owes his government each April

Even then he would probably be wrong

I should like to propose a sensible reform Burglary The government should repeal the present tax law for two or three years and see what its existing burglary teams can bring in by way of revenue

There is no persuasive argument against this elegantly simple reform Consider

It would increase government efficiency by telling underworked federal burglars already on the payroll to raise their productivity

It would be in the national security

It would be psychologically satisfying to the great majority of taxpayers who already believe they are being robbed by the government but can never find any fingerprints.

It would save billions of work hours by relieving taxpayers of the obligation to master the law in order to guess what they ought to hand over

☆ ☆ ☆

It would free thousands and thousands of lawyers from the drudgery of tax court duties and give them time to restore simple justice to the penniless and downtrodden.

It would eliminate the injustice of loopholes and cheating by exposing the secret vaults and mattresses of the unscrupulous to the same peril as the television sets of the working stiffs

With a government bursting for its revenue every American would have an added opportunity denied under the present tax law You would have the right, if you caught the tax collector, to flatten him with a poker

Dryland Corn Declines As Rains Remain Short

By United Press International

Nebraska's irrigated corn crop remained in mostly good condition across the state last week, but the dryland corn crop declined and was in mostly poor condition statewide, the weekly Nebraska Crop Report said Tuesday.

The report, prepared by the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said last week's scattered showers gave only limited relief to crops and were too scattered and too late for general crop benefit.

Topsoil moisture supplies remained short in 96% of the Nebraska counties and adequate in 4%. Subsoil moisture supplies also remained the same as the previous week at 96% short and 4% adequate.

A year ago, topsoil moisture was short in 66% of the counties and subsoil moisture was short in 91%.

The continued decline of the dryland corn crop was attributed to last week's hot, dry weather conditions. More than 75% of all corn was in or beyond the dent stage as of Friday, which is near the normal of 70% and last year's 75%.

More than 20% of the corn crop was mature, compared to 15% at the same time last year. Silage harvest was in full swing last week with some farmers chopping corn as a method of salvaging the drought-damaged acres.

Wheat seedbed preparation also continued statewide last week with seeding in full swing in the Nebraska panhandle. Most other areas of the state started limited sowing but generally waited for moisture.

Sorghum and soybeans declined against last week but remained in mostly fair condition.. Sorghum development was ahead of normal with 70% turned, compared to 60% for the 10-year average and 70% for last year.

More than 15% of the sorghum crop was ripe, compared to 10% for normal and 15% for a year ago.

Soybeans also were ahead of normal with more than 40% of the leaves turned, compared to 35% last year. About 10% of the soybean plants had shed their leaves.

Dry beans in northwest Nebraska was maturing rapidly given the current weather conditions, and harvest was well underway.

Alfalfa and wild hay remained in mostly poor to fair condition statewide. The third cutting of alfalfa was nearly 80% completed.

Extremely meager moisture in the state last week was limited to .03 of an inch at Chadron, .10 at Grand Island and .01 at Burwell.

Precipitation via sections since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages follows:

Northwest — 10.00 inches (1976); 12.52 inches (normal).
North Central — 11.40; 14.86.
Northeast — 12.20; 17.57.
Central — 15.70; 16.27.
East Central — 11.70; 19.03.
Southwest — 9.00; 13.81.
South Central — 11.20; 16.70.
Southeast — 15.30; 20.26.

POLISHING STEEL . . . George Baker completes 'Wind Sculpture'.

'Wind Sculpture' Reflects State Resources

Kearney — "Nebraska Wind Sculpture," the eighth completed sculpture of the 10 commissioned by the Nebraska Interstate-80 Bicentennial sculpture project, will be dedicated Friday with ceremonies beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Kearney I-80 westbound rest area.

Featured speakers will include Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan and Don Searcy, director of the State Bicentennial Commission.

Sculptor George Baker of Altadena, Calif., was the creator of the Kearney sculpture and has been in residence at Kearney for the past two months.

Actual construction of the sculpture began last spring with the forming of the stainless steel discs and supporting structure. Once completed, the various parts were delivered to the old school bus barn in Kearney where the next phase of construction began.

With the help of assistants Peter Greenleaf, Kevin Miller, Bob Stierwalt and Dick Jensen, the discs were polished, the supporting structure assembled and the concrete anchors formed and poured. Welding the supporting structure, dredging the lake and delivery of the sculpture to the site will be completed this week.

Three of Nebraska's most abundant resources — water, wind and sunlight — play top roles in the sculptor's concept of his work.

"Nebraska Wind Sculpture" will float on the lake. Various shapes will move in response to the wind and the polished surfaces will reflect the light.

Baker commented, "My continuing subject is beauty of form. The aesthetic content of 'Nebraska Wind Sculpture' is to be found in the movement patterns and changing relationships, the varying surface reflectivity between metal and water and the interplay between the sculpture and the observer."

Washington Burglars Hit Smith's Home

Washington (AP) — Burglars ransacked the Capitol Hill homes of two members of Congress, police said Tuesday.

The homes of Reps. Pierre S. duPont, R-Del., and Virginia Smith, R-Neb., a few blocks from the Capitol were broken into overnight by forcing the front doors, authorities reported. A third house in the block also was entered, police said, and there was an apparent attempt to get into a fourth house nearby.

No one was at home during any of the incidents. Police said they were awaiting the return of the occupants to determine if anything was taken.

Man Arraigned On 15 Youth Assault Charges

Papillion (UPI) — Richard J. Van Keuren, 23, LaVista, was arraigned Tuesday on 15 charges stemming from the alleged sexual assault of children in the Papillion and LaVista areas.

Van Keuren, whose bond was set at $300,000 by Sarpy County Judge Jeffrey L. Campbell, was taken into custody earlier in the day at Milford campus of Southeast Technical Community College where he was attending classes.

Van Keuren was arraigned on four counts of kidnaping, four counts of debauching a minor, three counts of sodomy, two counts of the use of a knife in the commission of a felony, one count of first-degree sexual assault on a child and one count of second-degree sexual assault.

Authorities said the incidents allegedly occurred for more than a week and the boys involved ranged in age from 10 to 12.

Sarpy County Sheriff Pat Thomas said Van Keuren's arrest resulted from an "intensive investigation."

A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 23 in County Court.

Dryland Corn Declines As Rains Remain Short

By United Press International

Nebraska's irrigated corn crop remained in mostly good condition across the state last week, but the dryland corn crop declined and was in mostly poor condition statewide, the weekly Nebraska Crop Report said Tuesday.

The report, prepared by the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said last week's scattered showers gave only limited relief to crops and were too scattered and too late for general crop benefit.

Topsoil moisture supplies remained short in 96% of the Nebraska counties and adequate in 4%. Subsoil moisture supplies also remained the same as the previous week at 96% short and 4% adequate.

A year ago, topsoil moisture was short in 66% of the counties and subsoil moisture was short in 91%.

The continued decline of the dryland corn crop was attributed to last week's hot, dry weather conditions. More than 75% of all corn was in or beyond the dent stage as of Friday, which is near the normal of 70% and last year's 75%.

More than 20% of the corn crop was mature, compared to 15% at the same time last year. Silage harvest was in full swing last week with some farmers chopping corn as a method of salvaging the drought-damaged acres.

Wheat seedbed preparation also continued statewide last week with seeding in full swing in the Nebraska panhandle. Most other areas of the state started limited sowing but generally waited for moisture

Sorghum and soybeans declined against last week but remained in mostly fair condition.. Sorghum development was ahead of normal with 70% turned, compared to 60% for the 10-year average and 70% for last year.

More than 15% of the sorghum crop was ripe, compared to 10% for normal and 15% for a year ago

Soybeans also were ahead of normal with more than 40% of the leaves turned, compared to 35% last year. About 10% of the soybean plants had shed their leaves.

Dry beans in northwest Nebraska was maturing rapidly given the current weather conditions, and harvest was well underway.

Alfalfa and wild hay remained in mostly poor to fair condition statewide The third cutting of alfalfa was nearly 80% completed.

Extremely meager moisture in the state last week was limited to .03 of an inch at Chadron, .10 at Grand Island and .01 at Burwell.

Precipitation via sections since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages follows.

Northwest — 10.00 inches (1976); 12 52 inches (normal)
North Central — 11 40; 14 86
Northeast — 12 20, 17 57
Central — 15 70, 16 27
East Central — 11 70, 19 03

POLISHING STEEL . . . George Baker completes 'Wind Sculpture'.

'Wind Sculpture' Reflects State Resources

Kearney — "Nebraska Wind Sculpture," the eighth completed sculpture of the 10 commissioned by the Nebraska Interstate-80 Bicentennial sculpture project, will be dedicated Friday with ceremonies beginning at 7 30 p.m. at the Kearney I-80 westbound rest area.

Featured speakers will include Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan and Don Searcy, director of the State Bicentennial Commission.

Sculptor George Baker of Altadena, Calif., was the creator of the Kearney sculpture and has been in residence at Kearney for the past two months.

Actual construction of the sculpture began last spring with the forming of the stainless steel discs and supporting structure. Once completed, the various parts were delivered to the old school bus barn in Kearney where the next phase of construction began.

With the help of assistants Peter Greenleaf, Kevin Miller, Bob Stierwalt and Dick Jensen, the discs were polished, the supporting structure assembled and the concrete anchors formed and poured. Welding the supporting structure, dredging the lake and delivery of the sculpture to the site will be completed this week.

Three of Nebraska's most abundant resources — water, wind and sunlight — play top roles in the sculptor's concept of his work.

"Nebraska Wind Sculpture" will float on the lake. Various shapes will move in response to the wind and the polished surfaces will reflect the light.

Baker commented, "My continuing subject is beauty of form. The aesthetic content of 'Nebraska Wind Sculpture' is to be found in the movement patterns and changing relationships, the varying surface reflectivity between metal and water and the interplay between the sculpture and the observer."

Washington Burglars Hit Smith's Home

Washington (AP) — Burglars ransacked the Capitol Hill homes of two members of Congress, police said Tuesday.

The homes of Reps. Pierre S. duPont, R-Del., and Virginia Smith, R-Neb., a few blocks from the Capitol were broken into overnight by forcing the front doors, authorities reported. A third house in the block also was entered, police said, and there was an apparent attempt to get into a fourth house nearby.

No one was at home during any of the incidents. Police said they were awaiting the return of the occupants to determine if anything was taken.

'Broad' EPA Rule Hits Midwest

Kansas City (AP) — Enforcement of a federal oil spill prevention regulation, which is so broad that the government doesn't know how many businesses are covered, has created a storm of controversy.

The Environmental Protection Agency is finding one violation for every four inspections it makes, federal records here show. Those affected range from an egg producer's farm in southeastern Missouri to the state highway departments of Missouri and Nebraska.

The EPA, which says more than 14,000 businesses in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska may be covered by the rule, says it has relied on trade associations and major oil companies to spread agency information about the law.

The rule covers anyone who stores sizeable quantities of petroleum or vegetable oil where an accidental spill could pollute a creek, stream, river or lake. It requires a plan for such facilities to prevent spills, and the plans must be drawn up and certified by a registered professional engineer.

Under terms of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, all storage facilities were to have complied by Jan;. 11, 1975, but some businesses which knew about the regulation got extensions through last June. To date, more than 650 inspections in the four-state region have produced more than 160 violation notices and collection of more than $22,000 in fines.

Big business has been hit by the rule. In April, Mobil Oil Co. sued EPA in U.S. District Court here after the agency cited two of Mobil's bulk oil storage plants in Nebraska for violating the law. Mobil's suit said the rule is unconstitutional because it is so vague the company can't meet its terms. The suit is pending.

Government agencies in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska have also run afoul of the regulation.

Missouri Highway Department asphalt storage plants in Ava and Rolla were cited by EPA in 1975 because they lacked spill prevention plans, and the EPA proposed $2,000 in fines.

The state signed an agreement to take steps toward preventing spills but said it is exempt from such federal regulations. James D. Vieregg, an EPA attorney, said the agency felt any asphalt spilled at the plants would solidify before it could reach water, so the EPA decided not to challenge the state claim of immunity.

The EPA cited the Nebraska Department of Roads last month for failure to have a plan at its Ainsworth maintenance facility, where gasoline is stored. A $4,200 fine was proposed. Warren Lichty, assistant state attorney general, said he did not know if the state would claim immunity from the federal rule.

City governments in Ottawa and Chanute in Kansas have Rock Port, Mo., have also been cited by the EPA. Ottawa paid a $250 fine, but fines against the other cities were dropped after they met the federal regulations.

Ag Committee Hears Complaints Against BN Lease Cancellation

Alliance (AP) — About 70 persons appeared Tuesday at a public hearing of the Unicameral's Agriculture Committee to discuss the Burlington Northern Railroad's cancellation of a land lease for the Alliance Livestock Auction Co.

The principal objection cited was that the railroad did not give the firm adequate time to plan for relocating.

The railroad has terminated a lease written in 1938, ordering the limestock firm to move by next May 15 so BN can build a new diesel repair shop.

Committee Chairman Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said he would discuss the situation with Phil Kenny, a lobbyist for the Nebraska Railroad Association, but Schmit said "our bias is known."

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh questioned how far the legislature can go in its involvement. He noted private, not public business appears to be involved.

Several of those testifying said if the livestock company goes out of business it will be detrimental to Alliance business in general. Therefore, some said, the livestock concern could, in a sense, be considered a public utility.

Bob Jaggers, representing the Alliance Livestock Co., said it would cost about $750,000 for the firm to relocate.

Schmit noted that the original lease was of mutual benefit to the BN and the livestock company since, in those days, most cattle were transported by rail. Now, however, trucks haul most livestock.

DeCamp suggested that financial interests, farmers, ranchers and businessmen in Alliance put up the funds for a new livestock facility and lease it to Alliance Livestock Co.

A railroad spokesman said BN has leased land to more than 460 agricultural firms, including 12 livestock yards, and does not anticipate terminating any leases in the immediate future.

Omahan Pleads Guilty To $99 Embezzlement

Omaha (AP) — A former federal employe pleaded guilty Tuesday to misdemeanor embezzlement charges.

Appearing before U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck was Louis P. Tapio of Omaha, who was indicted last May on felony embezzlement charges in connection with a $175 shortage of funds in the checking account of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) office here.

CETA is a program of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and Tapio had worked as a CETA specialist. He is now unemployed.

As a result of plea bargaining, an amended information was filed against Tapio, reducing the amount of the embezzlement from $175 to $99, thus reducing the charge from a felony to a misdemeanor.

In return, Tapio pleaded guilty to the lesser charge and agreed to make full restitution.

Peck ordered a pre-sentence investigation, and Tapio remains free on bond, which was continued at $1,000.

Committee Opposes Federal Grant

Omaha (AP) — A special committee of officials said Tuesday the City of Omaha should not ask for a $27,000 grant to hire more Municipal Court employes.

Court officials had sought approval from the grant review committee to apply for money to hire an additional probation officer and a secretary, and to buy office equipment.

Finances and court hiring practices were cited as reasons for recommending against the grant. The recommendaton from the review committee will be sent to the mayor and City Council.

The six-member committee was established by Mayor Edward Zorinsky to study all proposals that require federal fund applications.

George Richardson, finance dlirector, said he opposed the grant application because the city would have to pay salaries of the two new employes after the one-year grant expired.

Richardson said it is expected that court officials will ask the legislature next year to increase the number of Municipal Court judges, a cost the city also would have to pay.

Human Relations Director A. B. "Buddy" Hogan said he objected to the application because the court does not use either the City Personnel Department or the state merit system to hire its employes.

Hogan said only two of the 60 court employes are minority group members and that number is "woefully low."

George Richardson, finance director, said he opposed the grant application because the city would have to pay salaries of the two new employes after the one-year grant expired

Richardson said it is expected that court officials will ask the legislature next year to increase the number of Municipal Court judges, a cost the city also would have to pay

Human Relations Director A B "Buddy" Hogan said he objected to the application because the court does not use either the City Personnel Department or the state merit system to hire its employes

Hogan said only two of the 60 court employes are minority group members and that number is "woefully low "

Omahan Pleads Guilty To $99 Embezzlement

Omaha (AP) — A former federal employe pleaded guilty Tuesday to misdemeanor embezzlement charges

Appearing before U S Magistrate Richard Peck was Louis P Tapio of Omaha, who was indicted last May on felony embezzlement charges in connection with a $175 shortage of funds in the checking account of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) office here

CETA is a program of the U S Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and Tapio had worked as a CETA specialist He is now unemployed

As a result of plea bargaining, an amended information was filed against Tapio, reducing the amount of the embezzlement from $175 to $99, thus reducing the charge from a felony to a misdemeanor

In return, Tapio pleaded guilty to the lesser charge and agreed to make full restitution

Peck ordered a pre-sentence investigation, and Tapio remains free on bond, which was continued at $1,000

Omaha Prison Price Could Zoom

Nebraska Corrections Director Joseph C. Vitek notified Omaha and state officials Tuesday that some unresolved problems could add $1.2 million to the cost of the east Omaha minimum-medium security complex.

In a letter to Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, Vitek said it's necessary to delay the start of property acquisition until increased cost questions or deficient appropriations or both are resolved.

Approximately $5.5 million has been appropriated for the facility, to be built on a site south of Eppley Airfield near the Missouri River. Construction is targeted to begin in about one year.

Vitek cited four specific problems.

First, he said the state and City of Omaha must sign an agreement for the state to acquire business property and the city to get residential property using federal and other funds to pay for relocation costs.

Vitek confirmed that recent problems have been settled regarding federal money flowing through the city for relocation payment distribution. About $150,000 had been in contention.

Second, Vitek said that for Omaha to buy or acquire the land through eminent domain, the city must amend existing zoning ordinances. Those now indicate that Omaha won't use condemnation procedures in the east Omaha project until 1979.

If Omaha is to acquire land for the state, Vitek said, it's necessary that eminent domain be invoked immediately.

Third and most recently, the director said, it's been discovered that the land on the reformatory site is of watery, sandy composition down to 90 feet, requiring footings.

Architects and cost consultants told Vitek that might raise the cost "by possibly half a million dollars over the existing appropriation." A supplemental appropriation thus might be requested in January.

Moreover, Vitek said only three soil borings have been conducted in the building area, while 16 are needed. He said in an interview that the land owners "are throwing us off their property," blocking the soil analysis required throughout the entire site.

The state must determine whether contracted soil testers may gain access via city approval for what Vitek understands to be dedicated streets and alleys and not actually private property.

However, that kind of entry "may not be sufficient" because it might result in inadequate site drillings, he said.

Fourth, "Our legislatively mandated cost consultant advises us that an approximate 15% higher labor cost in Omaha exists, as compared to Lincoln, resulting in an additional approxmate $700,000 cost differential."

Vitek said in the interview that he can't understand that cost difference "for the same two types" of buildings to be built in Lincoln and Omaha. He said he intends to learn if the figure spread is accurate.

Aside from the looming $1.2 million price jack-up, Vitek noted that beginning the land acquisition must also be delayed pending completion of adequate soil testing. That had been scheduled for last month.

NCLU Will Cite Healey With Award

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union will present its first annual Civil Libertarian Award to Patrick W. Healey of Lincoln at its annual meeting Saturday in Fremont.

Healey, who has been active in NCLU since its founding 10 years ago, handled the first case litigated by NCLU, which resulted in the invalidation of state employes' loyalty oath. He served on the initial board of directors until 1975 and is currently chairman of the NCLU Lawyers' Panel.

The speaker at the NCLU's annual meeting will be Walter Echo-Hawk, attorney for the Native American Rights Fund, from Boulder, Colo.

Presidential Ballot Up To 4, Maybe 5

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Nebraskans will definitely have four and possibly five presiential choices when they go into voting booths on Nov. 2.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said he decided Tuesday to place on the general election ballot the American Independence Party ticket headed by former Georgia Gov. Lester G. Maddox.

That action simultaneously denied a ballot spot to American Party candidates Thomas Anderson of Florida and Rufus Shackelford of Tennessee. Beermann said they are apparently being rejected "in 30 or 40 states."

Beermann said he expects to make an announcement Wednesday regarding ballot certification of Roger MacBride of Virginia, the Libertarian Party presidential candidate running as an independent. His vice presidential parnter is David Bergland of California.

William Dyke of Wisconsin will be listed on the Nebraska ballot with Maddox. Dyke is former Madison mayor. Beermann said he decided to honor their certification after he met Tuesday with American Party of Nebraska officials.

That party was formed via the petition process last spring, and in the primary, delegates were elected as uncommitted to the American Party convention, Beermann explained.

At the party's state convention, the national delegates were "also named delegates to the state meeting. Party documents showed that they voted to attend the American Independence Party national convention in Chicago, where they participated in the Maddox-Dyke nominations.

"Apparently, none went to and voted in the Salt Lake City convention" of the American Party that nominated Anderson and Shackelford, he said. In August, Beermann received certification of the pair from the American Party national convention officers.

Then, last Friday, he received a letter from the American Independence Party officers regarding the Chicago convention certification of Maddox and Dyke.

Beermann said that brought up the issue of which party ticket to honor for ballot eligibility.

Another factor which Beermann said provided a basis for his decision was American Party of Nebraska documents which "indicate they can use interchangeably (three) titles for national affiliation: the American Party, the American Independence Party, or the American Independent Party." That, in effect, rendered the Salt Lake City American Party actions invalid.

Wednesday is Beermann's deadline to get final ballot information to the printer. Other presidential and vice presidential candidates already qualified for listing include Republicans Gerald Ford and Robert Dole, Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale, and former Minnesota Sen. Eugue McCarthy and Omahan Phyllis J. Paine.

McCarthy and Mrs. Paine last week won Nebraska eligibility to be listed as independents, after a petition effort was validated — the result of a federal court ruling declaring part of Nebraska election laws unconstitutional. Beermann officially certified their placement on the ballot Tuesday.

Five electors for Maddox and Dyke will also appear on the ballot with Maddox and Dyke: Dr. Otis W. Miller of Ord, Douglas Nutter of Kearney, Shannon Schroeder of Norfolk, Constance Quinlan of Omaha, and Roger Bowker of Lincoln.

UNL Sophomore Chosen New National Sweetheart

Hoopeston, Ill. (UPI) — Guylyn Remmenga, 20, a sophomore at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was chosen queen of the National Sweetheart Pageant Monday night from among contestants representing 19 states.

Miss Remmenga won a $1,000 scholarship and prizes totaling $2,000 in the contest which stresses talent and beauty. A triple major in English, Journalism and home economics, Miss Remmenga performed a piano solo in the talent competition.

First runnerup was Marilee Southworth, 17, of Hutchinson, Kan., who has just entered the University of Kansas.

The contest was held in conjunction with the 33rd National Sweet Corn Festival, which is sponsored by the Hoopeston Jaycees.

Police Seeking Picky Robber

Lincoln police are looking for a would-be robber who apparently wasn't interested in small change.

Police said that Helen Toland, 2712 P St., told them a man in his mid-20s followed her into her house late Sunday night and held a knife at her stomach while demanding money. She said he fled when advised that she only had 26 cents.

Omaha Prison Price Could Zoom

Nebraska Corrections Director Joseph C. Vitek notified Omaha and state officials Tuesday that some unresolved problems could add $1.2 million to the cost of the east Omaha minimum-medium security complex.

In a letter to Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, Vitek said it's necessary to delay the start of property acquisition until increased cost questions or deficient appropriations or both are resolved.

Approximately $5.5 million has been appropriated for the facility, to be built on a site south of Eppley Airfield near the Missouri River. Construction is targeted to begin in about one year.

Vitek cited four specific problems.

First, he said the state and City of Omaha must sign an agreement for the state to acquire business property and the city to get residential property using federal and other funds to pay for relocation costs.

Vitek confirmed that recent problems have been settled regarding federal money flowing through the city for relocation payment distribution. About $150,000 had been in contention.

Second, Vitek said that for Omaha to buy or acquire the land through eminent domain, the city must amend existing zoning ordinances. Those now indicate that Omaha won't use condemnation procedures in the east Omaha project until 1979.

If Omaha is to acquire land for the state, Vitek said, it's necessary that eminent domain be invoked immediately.

Third and most recently, the director said, it's been discovered that the land on the reformatory site is of watery, sandy composition down to 90 feet, requiring footings.

Architects and cost consultants told Vitek that might raise the cost "by possibly half a million dollars over the existing appropriation." A supplemental appropriation thus might be requested in January.

Moreover, Vitek said only three soil borings have been conducted in the building area, while 16 are needed. He said in an interview that the land owners "are throwing us off their property," blocking the soil analysis required throughout the entire site.

The state must determine whether contracted soil testers may gain access via city approval for what Vitek understands to be dedicated streets and alleys and not actually private property.

However, that kind of entry "may not be sufficient" because it might result in inadequate site drillings, he said.

Fourth, "Our legislatively mandated cost consultant advises us that an approximate 15% higher labor cost in Omaha exists, as compared to Lincoln, resulting in an additional approxmate $700,000 cost differential."

Vitek said in the interview that he can't understand that cost difference "for the same two types" of buildings to be built in Lincoln and Omaha. He said he intends to learn if the figure spread is accurate.

Aside from the looming $1.2 million price jack-up, Vitek noted that beginning the land acquisition must also be delayed pending completion of adequate soil testing. That had been scheduled for last month.

Presidential Ballot Up To 4, Maybe 5

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Nebraskans will definitely have four and possibly five presiential choices when they go into voting booths on Nov. 2.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said he decided Tuesday to place on the general election ballot the American Independence Party ticket headed by former Georgia Gov. Lester G. Maddox.

That action simultaneously denied a ballot spot to American Party candidates Thomas Anderson of Florida and Rufus Shackelford of Tennessee. Beermann said they are apparently being rejected "in 30 or 40 states."

Beermann said he expects to make an announcement Wednesday regarding ballot certification of Roger MacBride of Virginia, the Libertarian Party presidential candidate running as an independent. His vice presidential parnter is David Bergland of California.

William Dyke of Wisconsin will be listed on the Nebraska ballot with Maddox. Dyke is former Madison mayor. Beermann said he decided to honor their certification after he met Tuesday with American Party of Nebraska officials.

That party was formed via the petition process last spring, and in the primary, delegates were elected as uncommitted to the American Party convention, Beermann explained.

At the party's state convention, the national delegates were "also named delegates to the state meeting. Party documents showed that they voted to attend the American Independence Party national convention in Chicago, where they participated in the Maddox-Dyke nominations.

"Apparently, none went to and voted in the Salt Lake City convention" of the American Party that nominated Anderson and Shackelford, he said. In August, Beermann received certification of the pair from the American Party national convention officers.

Then, last Friday, he received a letter from the American Independence Party officers regarding the Chicago convention certification of Maddox and Dyke.

Beermann said that brought up the issue of which party ticket to honor for ballot eligibility.

Another factor which Beermann said provided a basis for his decision was American Party of Nebraska documents which "indicate they can use interchangeably (three) titles for national affiliation: the American Party, the American Independence Party, or the American Independent Party." That, in effect, rendered the Salt Lake City American Party actions invalid.

Wednesday is Beermann's deadline to get final ballot information to the printer. Other presidential and vice presidential candidates already qualified for listing include Republicans Gerald Ford and Robert Dole, Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale, and former Minnesota Sen. Eugue McCarthy and Omahan Phyllis J. Paine.

McCarthy and Mrs. Paine last week won Nebraska eligibility to be listed as independents, after a petition effort was validated — the result of a federal court ruling declaring part of Nebraska election laws unconstitutional. Beermann officially certified their placement on the ballot Tuesday.

Five electors for Maddox and Dyke will also appear on the ballot with Maddox and Dyke: Dr. Otis W. Miller of Ord, Douglas Nutter of Kearney, Shannon Schroeder of Norfolk, Constance Quinlan of Omaha, and Roger Bowker of Lincoln.

NCLU Will Cite Healey With Award

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union will present its first annual Civil Libertarian Award to Patrick W. Healey of Lincoln at its annual meeting Saturday in Fremont.

Healey, who has been active in NCLU since its founding 10 years ago, handled the first case litigated by NCLU, which resulted in the invalidation of state employes' loyalty oath. He served on the initial board of directors until 1975 and is currently chairman of the NCLU Lawyers' Panel.

The speaker at the NCLU's annual meeting will be Walter Echo-Hawk, attorney for the Native American Rights Fund, from Boulder, Colo.

Bumps Few On First Bus Day

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Omaha — Omaha School Supt. Owen Knutzen Tuesday afternoon credited students, school staffs and parents with an "exceedingly smooth" first day of court ordered desegregation.

Except for some late buses, there were very few hitches, Knutzen said. "And I have no reason to believe that these things (bus problems) won't go smoother Wednesday."

Knutzen said attendance appeared about average for a first day of school. Officials reported no demonstrations protesting the busing of about 9,300 students.

Several school principals confirmed Knutzen's reactions.

"It was great, I'm really pleased" said Mrs. Kay Mayberry, principal of the west Omaha George Catlin elementary school.

"Really good," was the appraisal of Mrs. Josie Reed, principal of Conestoga elementary school, located on Omaha's Near North Side.

Both principals said they had some late buses but no serious difficulties.

"The kids were just beautiful," Mrs. Reed said. "Someone told me it seemed like the second week of school, things are going so well."

"Everybody was fine," said Mrs. Mayberry. She said that even lunch hour, which in the past "has been kind of traumatic," went smoothly.

The Catlin principal spent part of the morning outside school, greeting black students as their buses arrived. She said the children "didn't talk much about busing," except for a few "who talked about how early they had to get up."

Some buses began carrying students as early as 7 a.m., officials said.

At Conestoga, Mrs. Reed said, many students discussed their bus rides. "They said they enjoyed it," she said. "Really, it was just a regular, good school day."

Supt. Knutzen said school officials were working with officials of City School Bus Service, the firm which is handling transportation for the Omaha School District. He said he hoped that lateness problems could be quickly ironed out.

Knutzen also noted that Dallas, Tex., and several other cities have reported similar opening day transportation problems.

Another problem arose from the Omaha busing: a shortage of licensed drivers meant that City School Bus Service was unable to provide rides to about 2,400 suburban and parochial school students.

However, Knutzen said that when comparing Omaha's first day of busing to cities such as Boston and Louisville, Ky., problems were relatively mild.

"The response in behavior of the students was excellent. The cooperation and interest of parents was superb. And our staff was ready," he said.

Knutzen said initial reports indicated that attendance was "very typical as far as the first day is concerned."

He said he believed that first day absenteeism would be no higher under the federal court desegregation order than the rate in previous years.

Knutzen said Omaha parents "are genuinely interested in their children and their children's education." The smoothness of Tuesday's busing was due in large part, he said, "to the quality of people we have in Omaha."

Exon Denies State Test Charge In Omaha Bus Driver Shortage

By The Associated Press

State government moved Tuesday to help fill Omaha's need for more school bus drivers, but a spokesman for Gov. J. James Exon said the shortage was not the fault of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Faced with court-ordered busing of school children, officials of City School Bus Service, Inc., of Omaha had charged the department did too little to test and certify needed drivers.

"That's the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard," said Norman Otto, an Exon aide.

The company said the driver shortage forced it to cancel parent pay routes for about 2,400 students in Omaha public and parochial, Millard, Papillion, District 66 and Ralston schools.

Exon earlier had rejected criticism from bus company manager Fred Downs, who charged the department with a lack of cooperation in testing drivers for special school bus licenses.

Exon said the state had done all it could to test potential drivers provided by the company.

"Some of these people who failed the tests looked like they had never even been behind the wheel of a bus before," said R. James Pearson, head of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

"We are tentatively planning to test some more of them in Omaha on Thursday.

"The people from ARA (which owns the bus company) promised me they would not just provide warm bodies, but that they would try to get qualified people," Pearson said.

Norman Denenberg, Omaha lawyer for ARA, said Tuesday the company withheld an announcement that it would not operate parent-pay bus routes until late Monday "because we continued to hope that we could get the additional drivers tested and licensed."

He blamed the high failure rate on "Nebraska's high standards" and said the bus crashes which killed nine persons at Stratton and three at Neola, Iowa, last month "had an effect on examiners being very high in their demands of drivers being tested."

Exon's office released a breakdown of tests given on five dates. The report showed the bus company cancelled a testing date scheduled for Aug. 14.

"Our examiners have never in their life seen such poor quality personnel," Pearson's report to Exon said.

The breakdown showed the following numbers of drivers scheduled for tests, the number that appeared for the tests, and how many passed:

Aug. 7 — 60 scheduled, 23 appeared, 4 passed; Aug. 21 — 60 scheduled, 36 appeared, 15 passed; Aug. 26 — 20 scheduled, 18 appeared, 2 passed; Aug. 28 — 66 scheduled, 54 appeared, 20 passed; Sept. 3 — 60 scheduled, 107 appeared and were tested, 34 passed.

Ex-Nixon Aide Ehrlichman Ordered To Serve Sentence

Washington (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman, once a top White House aide to Richard M. Nixon, Tuesday was ordered to surrender to federal officials Sept. 17 and begin serving up to five years for a break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Judge Gerhard A. Gesell revoked Ehrlichman's bond and ordered him to serve his sentence of 20 months to five years.

Once one of the nation's most powerful men, Ehrlichman must report to the U.S. marshal here or to the warden of the federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz., where the Bureau of Prisons has ordered him confined.

The bearded Ehrlichman has been living in New Mexico, writing novels and providing legal advice to Indians. He previously was a land-use attorney in Seattle.

Ehrlichman, spotted by a UPI reporter in Santa Fe as he was entering a bookstore and asked about Gesell's order, said, "I have no comment."

The head of the so-called "plumbers unit" in the White House, Ehrlichman was convicted July 12, 1974, of conspiring to violate the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Ellsberg had been standing trial for violating the top secret embargo on the Pentagon Papers and releasing them to the news media. When word of the White House-sanctioned break-in came to light, the case against Ellsberg was dismissed.

Ehrlichman, the No. 2 man on Nixon's staff until forced to resign, also was convicted on Jan. 1, 1975, of one count of conspiracy, one count of obstruction of justice, and two counts of making false declarations to a grand jury. He had denied being able to remember various facts in the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Ehrlichman, who has been appealing both decisions, has served no time in jail.

He has an appeal pending at the U.S. Supreme Court, which returns Oct. 4 from its summer recess.

Gesell said he was revoking the bond because Ehrlichman's conviction as "been unanimously approved on appeal and rehearing . . . denied . . ." by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The 1971 break-in at Fielding's office was part of the White House plumbers operation. Convicted with Ehrlichman were G. Gordon Liddy, a mastermind of the Watergate break-in, and Eugenio Martinez and Bernard L. Barker, two of the original Watergate burglars.

Erhlichman was accused by the Watergate special prosecutors' office of being involved in the planning of the break-in at Fielding's office in a bid to discredit Ellsberg.

Ehrlichman's defense was that he had not authorized an illegal break-in, but merely "a legal covert operation." At the time, Gesell said the "defense has been one of guarding and dodging around various issues of the case."

In his charge to the jury, Gesell said: "An individual cannot escape criminal liability simply because he sincerely but incorrectly believes that his acts are justified in the name of patriotism, of national security or that his superiors had the authority to suspend without a warrant the protections of the 4th Amendment" against unreasonable searches.

In the Watergate cover-up conviction, Ehrlichman was sentenced to 2-½ to eight years in prison by Judge John J. Sirica. He could have received up to 20 years in jail and a $35,000 fine.

In a statement prior to the Watergate sentencing, attorney Ira N. Lowe, representing Ehrlichman, asked that his client be allowed to serve whatever sentence was imposed on a reservation helping American Indians in New Mexico.

Lowe quoted from a letter Ehrlichman had sent Sirica a month earlier saying, "I profoundly regret my part" in the Watergate affair, and "no reversal on appeal can erase the stigma" of the verdicts against him.

Council Hands Mayor 1st Override On Veto

For the first time, the City Council Tuesday voted 6-1 to override a veto by Mayor Helen Boosalis.

The mayor last week had vetoed requested zone changes that would have permitted industrial use of more than 100 acres of land in West Lincoln previously slated for residential development.

The zone changes were requested by Ed Schwartzkopf, a Nebraska regent, and Harry Breslow, a Lincoln businessman, who together owned about 100 acres of the land, and Glenn Alexander, who owned an adjacent five acres.

Te council had approved the zone changes last week on a 5-1 vote with Bob Sikyta absent.

The override of the vetos came despite an 11th hour attempt by John Longsdorf, director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District, to postpone the vote.

Council member Steve Cook, chairman of the RTSD board, however, said Longsdorf's request was not authorized, and Councilman Bob Jeambey withdrew a motion he had offered for postponement.

It was not immediately clear why Longsdorf wanted the delay. And at one point Council Chairman Max Denney said "I think there's more going on here than meets the eye."

A federal highway official had opposed the rezoning last week. After the council's meeting he told The Star that the rezoning eliminated a proposed "buffer zone" between the railroad tracks on the north and the proposed housing.

He said the buffer zone would be considered as replacement for park land in undeveloped Seacrest Park which would be taken by the planned West Bypass highway. The buffer zone land, however, apparently would have been purchased by federal funds channeled through the local RTSD.

Denney, who called for the override, argued that the West Lincoln land, located in a 100-year flood plain and near the Burlington Northern Railroad,tracks was not suited for housing.

"You don't have to be a planner, schemer, dreamer or a consultant to realize that" it is best suited for industrial development, he said.

In other action the council took the following action:

— amended Sec. 2.60.030 of the city code relating to pay ranges.

— amended 2.60.010 of the city code relating to pay ranges.

— ordered construction of the following: alley paving district No. 329; ornamental lighting district no. 206 in Quail Valley 1st Add.; street improvement district no. 4 and ornamental tree district no. 5, bounded by north line of O St., north line of alley between Q and R, west by east line of 9th St. and west line of 17th.

— approved application of Ruben Flores at 525 N. 48th for retail beer, on-sale only at 525 N. 48th.

— approved preliminary plat of Colonial Hills 10th Add., located one-fourth mile north of Old Cheney Rd. and one-fourth mile west of 70th St.

— approved preliminary plat of Kilburn's Add., located at N. 3rd and Groveland St.

— approved Lohse Add., located one-half mile south of Pioneers Blvd. and east of 70th St.

— approved preliminary plat of Park View Estates, located at S. 56th and Prescott Ave.

— denied request by Cornhusker Bank for change of zone from B two-family to I Commercial District on Dudley St., 100 feet east of 27th.

— delayed one week proposed vacation of east-west alley between A and Garfield from 2nd to 3rd St.

— approved plat of Hallcrest Add. at 70th and Adams.

Ordinances, First Reading

— approving plat of Edenton Add., located east of 70th St. and one-half mile south of Pioneers Blvd.

Lincoln Police Nix Wage Offer

The Lincoln Police Union Tuesday night voted unanimously to reject a wage hike of 6% plus 1% in fringe benefits offered by city government.

Union President James Hill said the 187-member union had stuck to a 15% raise demand, after initially asking 25%, in hopes the city would grant police greater increases than won by the City Employes Association two weeks ago.

Hill said it appeared the policemen would have no recourse but to take their case to the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations for arbitration.

Base pay for a rookie officer is $864 per month, while a 10-year veteran is making $1,100 per month at the rank of police officer if all proficiency-merit increases have been granted.

"But we have 16-year veterans on the force who aren't making that much," Hill added.

Deputies Want Bigger Pay Hike

Lancaster County sheriff's deputies are asking for equal pay for equal work.

The deputies fear their pay is going to fall behind city police salaries when the union negotiations between police and the city are finally over, Deputy Steve Gates told the county commissioners Tuesday afternoon.

City policemen, who are seeking a 15% raise, are expected to turn down the city offer of 6% this week and take the pay issue into court.

County commissioners will vote on wage increases for county employes next Tuesday, and at least two commissioners are still looking at a 5% overall raise for county employes.

In addition to cost of living increases, most county employes receive 5% merit raises during the year.

"In my mind 10% is more than fair," County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton said after the Tuesday meeting. "To give 10% to 15% every year is to feed inflationary problems," he said.

Hamilton said he thought the 45 sheriff deputies should be treated the same as the 800 other county employes.

County Board member Bob Colin also said he was sticking to the 5% cost of living increase — but divided into a 22 cents per hour across the board wage hike for all county employes.

Deputy Gates told commissioners that the deputies who have the same work classification as city police will be penalized because they have not unionized.

Morale will suffer if deputies' pay and city police pay is not equal, said Cecil Parker, chairman of the sheriff's merit commission.

Water-Use Peak Lowers In Lincoln

Despite the dry weather, water consumption in Lincoln has stayed below the peaks set in previous years.

Public Works Director Bob Obering said that the city's high consumption this year has been about 71 million gallons.

That compares with last year's high of 72 million gallons and the record of 74 million gallons set in 1974. Officials attributed the lower demand to increased public awareness of higher prices for water and a desire to conserve a natural resource.

'Dimension' Notes Had Infectious Rhythms

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

A mostly-youthful audience clapped and swayed Tuesday night to the rhythms of the Fifth Dimension, the fifth in a series of evening entertainment spectaculars at the Nebraska State Fair.

The group of five singers has sustained its success for years by offering an evolving pop/rock/jazz sound that keeps pace with the times.

Their program included a medley of their most popular hits — "Up, Up and Away," "The Age of Aquarius," "Let the Sunshine In," and many others.

It was music for dancing. The Fifth Dimension seemed always in motion. It was infectious. It almost made the audience jealous of those beautiful people on stage who were having such a good time while the onlookers were confined to their seats.

With sweet harmony and fast-paced boogie sounds, the evening passed swiftly. When the group took its last bow, people were shouting "More, more!"

Preceding the Fifth Dimension, Wes Harrison, who does sound effects for cartoon soundtracks demonstrated his ability to sound like everything from a locomotive whistle to Elmer Fudd.

Comprehensive Plan Meeting Shaping Up As A Donnybrook

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A giant meeting Friday on one of the final steps in drafting plans for Lincoln through the year 2000 is shaping up as a donnybrook.

Facing off in the center of the ring will be the City-County Planning Commission against majorities of the City Council and County Board.

Surrounding them will be a host of bureaucrats and a coterie of citizens who have been following the planning process avidly over the last few months.

From the meeting are to come decisions to all the remaining questions on the so-called blueprint for the future, the Comprehensive Plan. After this only one more touch-up session is slated before final adoption of the plan around the end of the year.

Throughout the planning process it has not been the plans for parks, schools, libraries, sewer lines or fire stations that have aroused passions. It has been plans for streets and roads.

Injecting hostility into the meeting is the Northeast Radial, which has risen like a ghost from the limbo in which it was placed by the City Council two years ago when it shut off funding.

On that particular point commissioner member Lou Shakelford sounded like he was ready to put the gloves on at a final commission briefing before Friday.

Shakelford made it clear he is not about to back off from supporting the radial, which is the major difference between the street improvement plan favored by the commission and that favored by a majority of elected officials.

Shakelford said the need for the radial will be increased by the construction of the Tabitha Home for the elderly on N. 27th and a planned interchange on Interstate 80 on N. 27th.

In addition, he said, the University of Nebraska — Lincoln constantly generates a flow of traffic. Building the radial, he said, will reduce traffic loads on Holdrege and Vine.

The radial as envisioned in the commission plan would extend from Adams St. to 9th and 10th near the UNL campus. he plan favored by the council included only a portion of the Northeast Radial dubbed the Holdrege St. bypass, which extends from 9th and 10th to Holdrege at about 18th, rather than continuing onward to the northeast.

Planning Commission Chairman George Williamson said he sees an impasse looming on another transportation measure known as the county major road plan, which lists the county roads designated for improvements in the next 24 years.

The major road plan which Williamson supported differes from he plan approved by Mayor Helen Boosalis, Hamilton and a State Roads Department representative in that it shows a heavy network of major roads to the east of the city, an area in which city officials are trying to discourage growth.

"I don't see how we can come to agreement with the City Council and the County Board," Williamson said.

Soccer Champ Is Miss Italy

Scalea, Italy (UPI) — Paola Bresciano, 16, the soccer-playing beauty who recently won the Miss Sicily title, captured the Miss Italy crown.

Paola plays center forward on the Trapiani, Sicily, girls' soccer team, which last season won 14 straight games.

Burglars Empty Drug Cabinet In Murphy's Pharmacy Theft

Burglars broke into Murphy's Pharmacy, 120 Wedgewood Drive, sometime late Monday or early Tuesday, and emptied a cabinet of $300 worth of drugs, according to police reports.

The intruders apparently pried open a window on the southeast corner of the building, climbed into the reception room of Wedgewood Internal Medicine Group, adjacent to the pharmacy, then kicked a hole in the wall between the two offices. The break-in caused $200 damage to the window and wall.

Harrison Song Ruled Not Fine

New York (UPI) — Former Beatle George Harrison was found guilty Tuesday of "subconsciously" plagiarizing the 1962 John Mack tune "He's So Fine" for Harrison's 1970 hit record, "My Sweet Lord."

Federal Judge Richard Owen, a composer himself, ruled that Harrison was guilty of copywright infringement, although the judge concluded, "I do not believe he did so deliberately."

Owen scheduled Nov. 8 for trial on the issue of damages in the lawsuit brought against Harrison by Bright Tunes Music Corp., which owns the copyright to "He's So Fine."

"It is clear," the judge said, "That 'My Sweet Lord' is the very same song as 'He's So Fine.' This is, under the law, infringement of copyright and is no less so even though subconsciously accomplished."

Council Hands Mayor 1st Override On Veto

For the first time, the City Council Tuesday voted 6-1 to override a veto by Mayor Helen Boosalis.

The mayor last week had vetoed requested zone changes that would have permitted industrial use of more than 100 acres of land in West Lincoln previously slated for residential development.

The zone changes were requested by Ed Schwartzkopf, a Nebraska regent, and Harry Breslow, a Lincoln businessman, who together owned about 100 acres of the land, and Glenn Alexander, who owned an adjacent five acres.

Te council had approved the zone changes last week on a 5-1 vote with Bob Sikyta absent.

The override of the vetos came despite an 11th hour attempt by John Longsdorf, director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District, to postpone the vote.

Council member Steve Cook, chairman of the RTSD board, however, said Longsdorf's request was not authorized, and Councilman Bob Jeambey withdrew a motion he had offered for postponement.

It was not immediately clear why Longsdorf wanted the delay. And at one point Council Chairman Max Denney said "I think there's more going on here than meets the eye."

A federal highway official had opposed the rezoning last week. After the council's meeting he told The Star that the rezoning eliminated a proposed "buffer zone" between the railroad tracks on the north and the proposed housing

He said the buffer zone would be considered as replacement for park land in undeveloped Seacrest Park which would be taken by the planned West Bypass highway The buffer zone land, however, apparently would have been purchased by federal funds channeled through the local RTSD

Denney, who called for the override, argued that the West Lincoln land, located in a 100-year flood plain and near the Burlington Northern Railroad,tracks was not suited for housing

"You don't have to be a planner, schemer, dreamer or a consultant to realize that" it is best suited for industrial development, he said

In other action the council took the following action·

— amended Sec 2 60 030 of the city code relating to pay ranges

— amended 2 60 010 of the city code relating to pay ranges

— ordered construction of the following alley paving district No 329, ornamental lighting district no 206 in Quail Valley 1st Add, street improvement district no 4 and ornamental tree district no 5, bounded by north line of O St, north line of alley between Q and R, west by east line of 9th St and west line of 17th

— approved application of Ruben Flores at 525 N 48th for retail beer, on sale only at 525 N 48th

— approved preliminary plat of Colonial Hills 10th Add, located one-fourth mile north of Old Cheney Rd and one-fourth mile west of 70th St

Sellers 'Condone' Boycott Of Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — American firms which sell goods and services to the Arab world are complying at least 90 per cent of the time with stipulations imposed in connection with the Arab boycott of Israel, a House panel said Tuesday.

A report issued by the Commerce oversight and investigations subcommittee estimated that during 1974 and 1975, Arab requests to comply with the boycott affected about $4.5 billion worth of U.S. sales and proposed sales to Arab countries.

The report, culminating an extensive probe by the subcommittee, said that the Commerce Department has been lax in monitoring the boycott's impact on American business and has "implicitly condoned compliance with the Arab economic effort against Israel.

"The subcommittee found that the reporting practices and policies of the Commerce Department often served to obscure the scope and the impact of the Arab boycott," the report said.

It added that "the impact on U.S. business has been substantially greater than Congress had been led to believe by the Commerce Department."

In commenting on the report, Commerce Secretary Elliot L. Richardson said it relates almost entirely to conditions that no longer exist.

"Present departmental policy is to support and implement existing law relating to the Arab boycott fully and vigorously, and actions that the department has taken during the last year clearly reflect this policy," Richardson said in a statement.

He said also that the department had cooperated actively with the subcommittee in assembling the data on which the report is based.

In issuing the report, the panel's chairman, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said that inadequate steps by executive agencies in dealing with the boycott have compromised U.S. principles of free trade and freedom from religious discrimination.

"Our principles as a people are not for sale," Moss told reporters at a news conference.

Recommendations in the subcommittee report mainly involved tightening provisions of the Export Administration Act, which already requires U.S. companies to report to the government Arab requests concerning the boycott.

The report said that during the last three months of 1975 — after firms were also required to say whether they would comply with the boycott requests — an examination of sales documents showed a compliance rate of 92.4 per cent.

The most common Arab requests, it noted, were demands for proof that goods being shipped to Arab countries were made in the United States, "not of Israeli origin" and not being shipped in vessels that would stop at an Israeli port en route.

It said that "by actions such as distributing to U.S. businesses 'trade opportunities' containing boycott clauses the Commerce Department actually furthered the boycott by implicitly condoning activity declared against national policy by Congress 11 years ago."

Man Drops Complaint Against Lincoln Police

A Lincoln man withdrew a complaint against the city Police Dept. Tuesday evening while appearing before the Police Review Board.

Jonathan Ihrig, of 1424 F St., decided not to pursue his complaint about a police officer's conduct after Police Chief George Hansen read Ihrig a letter the chief had sent to the officer.

The letter explained that the police Internal Affairs Office had sustained Ihrig's complaint that the officer had behaved discourteously.

Ihrig's complaint involved an incident in which police entered his home, mistakenly thinking it was an apartment building.

In a second case, the board voted to accept a complaint filed by a 13-year-old boy who claims a police officer used excessive force, abuse of authority, and extreme discourtesy.

A hearing on the boy's complaint was set for Oct. 12.

CARTER . . . begins three-day Lincoln visit.

Young Carter Is Real 'Chip' Off Old Block

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Some moments, it sounded almost as if it were Jimmy Carter himself responding to the questions.

But then James Earl Carter III, the 26-year-old son "Chip," has been on the campaign trail since June 1975. He signed on for a three-day Lincoln schedule of political flogging, besieged Tuesday night during a Democratic fund-raiser of congressional candidate Pauline Anderson, ahead of State Fair appearances.

Hunched forward, elbows on knees, chain-smoking, smooth-faced, soft-spoken and leisure-suited, Chip Carter promised his father as President wouldn't impose ag export embargoes except if unlikely extreme domestic food shortages occurred.

"That's solid," Chip defended claims that his father waffled on the issue. Some of the things Carter would do for Nebraskans include appointing a "family farmer" to head the Agriculture Department, long-range policy planning to avert crises such as shortages, and pegging price supports equal to production costs to keep farmers financially afloat, Chip said.

Of the upcoming Ford-Carter square-off in TV debates: "I don't expect it to make the campaign go one way or another."

He discounted the power of third-party and independent candidates to rob Carter of Democratic votes. "I tend to think people will choose among the top two contenders." He predicted some crossovers, but not among staunch Carter supporters.

A night student who works in the Carter peanut business, Chip said he doesn't know if his father will visit Nebraska. Carter isn't conceding Nebraska, target for a "hard effort."

He said Gov. J. James Exon told him Carter has "a 50-50 chance" in Nebraska and the governor will "try to get him in," depending on schedules. Chip said he had "no idea where the family is, or where they're going." He thought his wife might be in upstate New York just then.

About his mother's report he's smoked marijuana, Chip remarked, "I don't talk about my personal life. When the campaign's over, I want to go back and live quietly in Plains." He said "Jack Ford made a mistake" publicizing his personal habits. "I want to talk about dad, not me."

Striking Teachers Threaten Back-To-School Week

By United Press International

Thousands of teachers went on strike or vowed they were posed to do so at the start of back-to-school week across the country Tuesday.

Pennsylvania was the most afflicted state. More than 85,000 students and 4,500 teachers were affected by 20 teachers' strikes. The biggest was called by 1,200 lay teachers in Philadelphia area Roman Catholic high schools. The strike meant school will start late for 52,000 pupils.

Teachers in Manchester, N.H., and Glocester, R.I., voted to be on strike when schools open Wednesday.

At Buffalo, N.Y., teachers picketed at all public schools while negotiations continued in a last ditch effort to reach a settlement before 56.879 students are due back in class Wednesday.

Despite a court order banning a strike vote, the Buffalo teachers voted 2 to 1 to go on strike. Thomas Pisa, president of the Buffalo Teachers Federation, said he was ready to go to jail and "unless there's a settlement before school opens, we're on strike."

At least three major school strikes were averted.

Four thousand members of the Boston teachers union turned down a proposed contract from the city, but decided not to go on strike immediately.

In Philadelphia, negotiators for the city's public school teachers and the school board got together on a tentative agreement just a few hours before 22,000 teachers were to take a strike vote.

Welcome Rain Falls In Central Regions

Welcome rains — up to at least an inch at O'Neill — finally arrived in north central, central and northeast Nebraska Tuesday as a cold front brought much cooler air to much of the state.

Other rainfall included .38 of an inch at Burwell, .35 at North Platte and .04 at Valentine.

By 10 p.m. Tuesday there were general rains from around Newport in north central Nebraska through the Atkinson and O'Neill areas.

In central Nebraska, rainfall began failling Grand Island around 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Behind the cold front, high temperatures Tuesday were in the 70s and lower 80s while the mercury crawled back into the 90s in the east, up to a high of 96 at Omaha.

Lincoln's high Tuesday was 94 degrees with winds gusting up to near 30 miles per hour and continuing dry.

Meanwhile, there was considerable blowing dirt in the Ogallala area Monday due to high winds.

Leonard Thye, district conservationist at Ogallala, reported most of the blowing soil came from land being prepared for wheat seeding.

Because of the strong winds Monday, many farmers in the Ogallala vicinity delayed wheat field work, Thye said. Area winds were clocked up to 42 miles per hour.

Some of the irrigated land, where the bean crop has been harvested, was also blowing, the conservationist said.

At Lake McConaughy, north of Ogallala, the high winds caused "tremendous waves," from three to six feet high, according to Thyre.

Many Labor Day visitors at the lake left early because the high winds made boating hazardous and almost impossible, Thye said.

A camper was reportedly blown off a pickup and demolished while traveling along U.S. 26 northwest of Ogallala Monday.

Sellers 'Condone' Boycott Of Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — American firms which sell goods and services to the Arab world are complying at least 90 per cent of the time with stipulations imposed in connection with the Arab boycott of Israel, a House panel said Tuesday.

A report issued by the Commerce oversight and investigations subcommittee estimated that during 1974 and 1975, Arab requests to comply with the boycott affected about $4.5 billion worth of U.S. sales and proposed sales to Arab countries.

The report, culminating an extensive probe by the subcommittee, said that the Commerce Department has been lax in monitoring the boycott's impact on American business and has "implicitly condoned compliance with the Arab economic effort against Israel.

"The subcommittee found that the reporting practices and policies of the Commerce Department often served to obscure the scope and the impact of the Arab boycott," the report said.

It added that "the impact on U.S. business has been substantially greater than Congress had been led to believe by the Commerce Department."

In commenting on the report, Commerce Secretary Elliot L. Richardson said it relates almost entirely to conditions that no longer exist.

"Present departmental policy is to support and implement existing law relating to the Arab boycott fully and vigorously, and actions that the department has taken during the last year clearly reflect this policy," Richardson said in a statement.

He said also that the department had cooperated actively with the subcommittee in assembling the data on which the report is based.

In issuing the report, the panel's chairman, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said that inadequate steps by executive agencies in dealing with the boycott have compromised U.S. principles of free trade and freedom from religious discrimination.

"Our principles as a people are not for sale," Moss told reporters at a news conference.

Recommendations in the subcommittee report mainly involved tightening provisions of the Export Administration Act, which already requires U.S companies to report to the government Arab requests concerning the boycott.

The report said that during the last three months of 1975 — after firms were also required to say whether they would comply with the boycott requests — an examination of sales documents showed a compliance rate of 92.4 per cent.

The most common Arab requests, it noted, were demands for proof that goods being shipped to Arab countries were made in the United States, "not of Israeli origin" and not being shipped in vessels that would stop at an Israeli port en route.

It said that "by actions such as distributing to U.S. businesses 'trade opportunities' containing boycott clauses the Commerce Department actually furthered the boycott by implicitly condoning activity declared against national policy by Congress 11 years ago."

Man Drops Complaint Against Lincoln Police

A Lincoln man withdrew a complaint against the city Police Dept. Tuesday evening while appearing before the Police Review Board.

Jonathan Ihrig, of 1424 F St., decided not to pursue his complaint about a police officer's conduct after Police Chief George Hansen read Ihrig a letter the chief had sent to the officer.

The letter explained that the police Internal Affairs Office had sustained Ihrig's complaint that the officer had behaved discourteously.

Ihrig's complaint involved an incident in which police entered his home, mistakenly thinking it was an apartment building.

In a second case, the board voted to accept a complaint filed by a 13-year-old boy who claims a police officer used excessive force, abuse of authority, and extreme discourtesy.

A hearing on the boy's complaint was set for Oct. 12.

CARTER . . . begins three-day Lincoln visit.

Young Carter Is Real 'Chip' Off Old Block

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Some moments, it sounded almost as if it were Jimmy Carter himself responding to the questions.

But then James Earl Carter III, the 26-year-old son "Chip," has been on the campaign trail since June 1975. He signed on for a three-day Lincoln schedule of political flogging, besieged Tuesday night during a Democratic fund-raiser of congressional candidate Pauline Anderson, ahead of State Fair appearances.

Hunched forward, elbows on knees, chain-smoking, smooth-faced, soft-spoken and leisure-suited, Chip Carter promised his father as President wouldn't impose ag export embargoes except if unlikely extreme domestic food shortages occurred.

Viking 2 Is Ready To Begin Search

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 2's vital biology instruments have passed their first test hurdle and appeared ready Tuesday to begin man's second search for life on Mars Saturday.

The first answers to the tantalizing yes-and-no life puzzle posed by Viking 1 should start coming in about 10 days, but biologists say it may take much longer before any definite conclusions can be reached.

The three life-detection instruments had been idle for months before word came in early Tuesday showing that activation procedures and checks were going well.

Valves that had been closed since April 1975, were opened, radioactivity detectors turned on, a gas analyzer checked and temperatures taken. Dr. Fred Brown, a project scientist, said everything appeared normal.

"Last night the only thing we cared about was, does the instrument work? Now we're over that and the instrument is doing what its supposed to and we say, let's get some soil and get on with it," Brown said.

The robot's digging arm will scoop up a spoonful of soil Saturday and dump it into the biology assembly to start the incubation procedures designed to stimulate life processes that the instrument can detect.

Another experiment important to the life question also was being activated. It is the organic chemical analyzer aboard Viking 2 and its job is to search the Martian soil for evidence of organic molecules that are considered the building blocks of life.

Viking 1 found no organics in the soil and that dampened the enthusiasm of biologists that was stirred by the suggestions from the life detection instruments aboard the first lander that there might be organisms in the soil. Scientists said the life signs also could have been produced by strange inorganic chemical reactions.

Other instruments already were sending data back from Viking 2's Utopia base. In a weather report, Dr. Seymour Hess said the minimum temperature measured was minus 114 degrees Fahrenheit with a high at 4 p.m. of minus 23. Winds were light and variable.

Dr. Roy Arvidson said comparison of pictures of Utopia from ground and from orbit indicated wind was reworking the topography, blowing away soil and leaving rocks.

In another report, engineers said last Friday's pre-landing communications blackout apparently was caused by an electrical short circuit which knocked out the primary gyroscopic attitude control brain aboard Viking 2's orbiter. A backup is controlling the craft.

Because of that problem, project manager James Martin said he had delayed jettisoning unneeded equipment from the orbiter for fear it might disrupt the one remaining control unit. He said that might affect its scientific observations of the surface.

Dr. Harold Klein, head of the Viking biology team, said the Viking 1 life studies point to two possible directions.

Dr. Richard Young, chief program scientist and head of the space agency's biologists, said if Viking 2 finds organic matter in appreciable amounts in the soil, "then the picture gets much more exciting."

Viking 2 Is Ready To Begin Search

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 2's vital biology instruments have passed their first test hurdle and appeared ready Tuesday to begin man's second search for life on Mars Saturday.

The first answers to the tantalizing yes-and-no life puzzle posed by Viking 1 should start coming in about 10 days, but biologists say it may take much longer before any definite conclusions can be reached.

The three life-detection instruments had been idle for months before word came in early Tuesday showing that activation procedures and checks were going well.

Valves that had been closed since April 1975, were opened, radioactivity detectors turned on, a gas analyzer checked and temperatures taken. Dr. Fred Brown, a project scientist, said everything appeared normal.

"Last night the only thing we cared about was, does the instrument work? Now we're over that and the instrument is doing what its supposed to and we say, let's get some soil and get on with it," Brown said.

The robot's digging arm will scoop up a spoonful of soil Saturday and dump it into the biology assembly to start the incubation procedures designed to stimulate life processes that the instrument can detect.

Another experiment important to the life question also was being activated. It is the organic chemical analyzer aboard Viking 2 and its job is to search the Martian soil for evidence of organic molecules that are considered the building blocks of life.

Viking 1 found no organics in the soil and that dampened the enthusiasm of biologists that was stirred by the suggestions from the life detection instruments aboard the first lander that there might be organisms in the soil. Scientists said the life signs also could have been produced by strange inorganic chemical reactions.

Other instruments already were sending data back from Viking 2's Utopia base. In a weather report, Dr. Seymour Hess said the minimum temperature measured was minus 114 degrees Fahrenheit with a high at 4 p.m. of minus 23. Winds were light and variable.

Dr. Roy Arvidson said comparison of pictures of Utopia from ground and from orbit indicated wind was reworking the topography, blowing away soil and leaving rocks.

In another report, engineers said last Friday's pre-landing communications blackout apparently was caused by an electrical short circuit which knocked out the primary gyroscopic attitude control brain aboard Viking 2's orbiter. A backup is controlling the craft.

Because of that problem, project manager James Martin said he had delayed jettisoning unneeded equipment from the orbiter for fear it might disrupt the one remaining control unit. He said that might affect its scientific observations of the surface.

Dr. Harold Klein, head of the Viking biology team, said the Viking 1 life studies point to two possible directions.

Dr. Richard Young, chief program scientist and head of the space agency's biologists, said if Viking 2 finds organic matter in appreciable amounts in the soil, "then the picture gets much more exciting."

Thyroid Pills Affect Body Functions

By George C. Thosteson, M.D

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking thyroid pills (Proloid) since 1969. I recently changed doctors and have been told I don't need them and to stop taking them. That was three months ago. I have noticed that I am putting on weight — up from 114 to 117.

Could stopping the pills have caused the weight gain? My eating habits are the same as before. What should I do? — Mrs. E. D.

Proloid (the generic or non-trade name for thyroglobulin) is used to replace thyroid hormone when the gland is under-producing. The general effect is to increase body functions. A person using it would tend to be more active than he would be without it. Discontinuing the pills would have the reverse effect. The person would tend to be less active and perhaps there would be some weight gain.

However, the medicine can produce false readings in tests for thyroid gland function. You didn't give me the reason your first doctor had you on the medication. However, follow-up tests after discontinuing it might be more revealing of the present state of the gland.

I suggest you follow your present doctor's advice, but report any untoward symptoms, such as sluggishness and fatigue, to him, and of course any continued weight gain.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was diagnosed by a physician as having arthritic changes in my neck. I had a series of bouts of dizzy spells last summer. These dizzy spells gradually disappeared after a month. I am 50 years old. Can you explain? — Mrs. C. C.

Yes, arthritic changes can certainly interfere with nerves or blood circulation to the head (brain) or to any of the structures having to do with the sense of balance, such as the ears. This would cause dizzy spells.

X-rays would show if there is any pressure being placed on vessels or nerves. If so, measures to correct the situation would be in order. Otherwise the spells could recur.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm a middle-aged woman with a heart condition. How safe is it to have electrolysis for removal of superfluous hair on the face? — Mrs. C. F.

I can't imagine any bad effects on the heart from having electrolysis done. Have it done if you wish to.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Superfluous hair may be removed by a variety of effective ways. The Nebraska Medical Association urges a woman to consult a dermatologist who can recommend the best treatment without irritating results when she has excess facial hair she wishes removed.

Shaving is an effective, inexpensive, but temporary way of removing leg hair. As far as women are concerned, shaving is unsatisfactory for removing facial hair because a stubble shows after a day or two. However, hairs on the face and arms can be bleached with peroxide so that they are hardly noticeable.

Epilation (hair removal) on a large scale has been accomplished using hot wax, which is spread on the skin and allowed to harden. When removed rapidly, the wax takes the hair with it. This method is repeated every few weeks and is very uncomfortable. Chemical depliatories give similar results.

Electrolysis is a permanent way of removing hair. This process involves the insertion of a small needle into the hair follicle and the application of a burning current to the hair root so that it is completely destroyed.

The Nebraska Medical Association says electrolysis can yield very good permanent results, but even the best technicians can miss one out of every five or six hair roots so that they will regrow.

Moorea — The sun goes down toward Fiji where it's already late afternoon of tomorrow. We are at 150 degrees of longitude and 20 degrees south of the equator.

The International Dateline is four flying hours west. There tomorrow begins.

We're on the island of Moorea, just across the channel from Tahiti. We used to clunk over by boat in a couple of hours. No matter how calm the water, the rail was lined with seasick Tahitians.

A Frenchman working for the government here said: "It makes you wonder how they made those long canoe voyages, doesn't it? The great seamen who sailed for months to discover Hawaii.

"The hardy sailors who founded the Maori civilization of New Zealand. And here are these same fellows heaving their insides up on a channel as flat as a table top."

☆ ☆ ☆

Now we fly over on nine-place Fiji Air planes. They shuttle back and forth from the timy strip on Moorea to the International Airport at Faaa. It takes seven minutes.

We live in a grass thatch cottage built on stilts over the water. A thick glass plate, as big as a table top, is set in the floor. It's lighted below and, at night, you can see fish swimming among the coral heads.

☆ ☆ ☆

We're at Bali Hai, the first built by the famed Kelley, Carlisle and McCullum. They had imagination and the hotel grew up gradually. Now they have a Bali Hai in Huahine. Another in Raiatea in The-Islands-Under-The-Winds, the last northern outposts of French Polynesia.

"Some say it was Raiatea — (Michener said it was Bora Bora) — where the ancient Tahitians set out on the long canoe voyage that landed in Hawaii."

Samoans say it was from their islands. They point to the similarity of Hawaii to their main island, Savaii. (Most other Polynesians don't care much for Samoans. They say Samoans are pushy fellows and quarrelsome.)

Out on the horizon, in the last faint glow, a schooner-rigged yacht is running for unknown islands. By her course, they could be the Marquesas. Least known of Polynesia.

"The last great canoe migration was to New Zealand. They're pretty sure they came from the Cook Islands. Cook Islanders seem to understand the New Zealand Maori language."

☆ ☆ ☆

Though they're all Polynesians, the groups of islands don't speak the same language. But they have a similarity of words — like the Latin-based words of Europe.

Samoan for house: "Fale." Tahitian: "Fare." Hawaiian: "Hale."

All Polynesians have a legendary place they came from: "Hawaiki."

"Though they don't know where it is. Vaguely somewhere from the west, they say. Anyway, they're a Caucasian race. Came out here who knows how long ago. They left no records. No monuments."

"It costs the French $72 million a year to keep these islands going. Not much to Americans. But the French are tight-fisted and it must hurt when they write the check in Paris.

"Still, there's a lot of prestige. After losing Algeria and Indochina, it must be a consolation to know you own Paradise."

Power Line Request Denied At Omaha Airport Location

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Public Service Commission voted 4-1 Tuesday to deny the Omaha Public Power District application to build a power line near a private airport in west Douglas County.

PSC staff attorney Adrian Fiala said later that the Omaha proposal complies with Federal Aviation Administration safety standards — the only area in which the commission has authority over the power district application.

Fiala also noted the PSC approved an almost identical application last October.

Fairmont Commissioner Eric Rasmussen first moved to approve the OPPD request, but his motion died for lack of a second. Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus moved for and won the denial. Rasmussen said he will file a companion formal dissent with his nay vote.

"We're ignoring the FAA standards," Rasmussen objected. Gay responded that "our authority is safety." Rasmussen said the PSC staff needs standards regarding such applications to use in the future.

Gay insisted that there's "no difference in the safety of one individual or 1,000 individuals" in OPPD's request to build the electric transmission line.

It would be raised on poles northeast of the airport near Omaha's W. Center Road and 168th St. The private use flying strip is owned by developer John A. Wiebe.

Gay said OPPD ignored pursuing a clear alternative available; an attorney for the district said that would arouse wider public opposition among those affected.

Neither Wiebe nor the OPPD attorney were allowed to testify Tuesday before the PSC action. Gay also ruled that post-hearing documents were inadmissible. The attorney said he doesn't know yet if OPPD will appeal the commission decision.

Wiebe has contended that the OPPD power line would pose a safety hazard in the runway landing pattern and also if a plane engine were to fail during a northbound takeoff.

In other action, the PSC agreed to ask Gov. J. James Exon to appoint an agency to develop a state rail plan for approval by the U.S. Transportation Department. The plan would fall under the 1976 Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act.

Commissioners expressed concern that any more delays in initiating a state rail plan — without which several branch lines might be jeopardized and abandoned — will preclude Nebraska from participation in and eligibility for program subsidies.

During the OPPD power line discussion, Gay said another power district has built a line even closer to an airport, but without PSC approval of the pending appliction. Fiala said later the Norris Public Power District line is already carrying power adjacent to Hawks Airfield in Thayer County, where PSC staff will investigate Wednesday.

Lincoln Foundation Will Buy Five Cardiac Training Manikins

Five more manikins will be added to the Lincoln Division of the Nebraska Heart Association's corps for teaching cardio-pulmonary resuscitation to southeast Nebraska Citizens.

The Lincoln Foundation executive committee agreed Tuesday to a $1,445 grant to purchase the life-size dummies.

The Heart Association had requested funds for 19 manikins, one for each county outside Lancaster, to teach basic life support classes in the 20 southeast Nebraska counties covered by the Lincoln division.

In denying the funds for 14 of the 19 originally requested, foundation executives instructed John Frey, president, to assist the Heart Association in soliciting funds from other area foundations and community civic clubs.

The Heart Association has been cooperating with the Nebraska Medical Education Foundation and the Bryan Mobile Heart Team to put citizens through the five-hour course in which they learn to apply cardio-pulmonary resuscitation during "the crucial six minutes following cardiac arrest," Mary Zilly, division director, said.

In the last year, more than 2,500 Lincolnites have been trained in basic life support, she said.

Lincoln Foundation officers and executive committee members tabled a request from the Trinity Infant and Child Care Center for a $3,685 grant for supplies and equipment to expand the program.

In other action, the foundation denied a request from the Nebraska Human Resources Research Foundation for $1,200 to help cover the costs of a counselor leadership seminar to be held in Overland Park, Kan.

The NHRRF recruits university students to act as counselors to area children and teenagers.

Decision Voice Sought By UNL Faculty Senate

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty senators made it clear at their first fall meeting that they want to be consulted in decisions which affect the Lincoln campus.

After an hour of discussion and rewording, a resolution urging that the NU systems office consult the faculty before budget cuts or university decisions are made was passed unanimously by the senate.

The resolution was a direct result of cuts in the Lincoln campus budgets required by State Sen. John Cavanaugh's amendment to the University Appropriation Act of the last legislative session.

But the senators' discussion indicated that the issue was much larger than just the Cavanaugh cuts. The basic issue is the role of the faculty in university decisions.

"This is a fundamental question of consultation . . of respect for the faculty and in turn faculty respect for them (administrators)," said one senator.

The senate also urged faculty authority over campus calendars in other action during the meeting. The senate passed a resolution recommending that an intercampus calendar committee be merely advisory to the faculty of each campus.

As envisioned by the Board of Regents, this committee, with representatives from each campus, would determine a common calendar for the three University of Nebraska campuses in Omaha and Lincoln.

Gauger Names Co-Chairpersons For Campaign

Robert Crosby and Kappie Weber will be co-chairpersons for the fall campaign of Jan Gauger, Republican candidate for reelection to the Lancaster County Board.

Campaign chairman during the primary, Gar Donnelson, resigned from the committee in early summer giving additional job responsibilities as the reason.

"In moving from the district primary election to the general election campaign, we have restructured the committee and considerably broadened the scope of activities," said Mrs. Gauger in announcing some campaign changes.

5 years.

That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature.

Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

James R. Schlesinger

China Hails Schlesinger

Hong Kong (UPI) — Former Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, hailed by Chinese leaders as a foe of U.S. detente with the Soviet Union, began his two-week visit to China Tuesday.

Schlesinger is scheduled to tour Sinkiang, China's secret nuclear test zone along the disputed 4,500-mile border with the Soviet Union, and Tibet and Inner Mongolia, seldom seen by westerners. A welcoming banquet by his hosts at the Institute of Foreign Affairs began the visit, which was termed private.

The former Pentagon chief, who resigned at President Ford's request last year in a dispute with Secretary of State Kissinger over detente and the United States' defense posture with the Soviets, also was scheduled to meet China's Foreign Minister Chiao Kuanhua.

Mobile Home Tie-Down Law Advances

By Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — A much-discussed ordinance requiring tie-downs for mobile homes got first round approval by the city council Tuesday night but could face further revision before final passage.

Basically, the measure calls for two ties on mobile homes up to 50 feet and three on longer ones. Although not retroactive, the ordinance did prompt some opposition for being applicable 45 days after a mobile home locates.

A.R. (Bob) Thies, trailer park owner, said this would be a hardship on tranchant workers who stay in the city temporarily. He was successful in postponing a final vote until the next meeting.

On another matter, the council referred to its special projects committee the fate of a Chatauqua Park cabin owned by the Business and Professional Women's Club. The group wants to give the building to the Gage County Historical Society, while some councilmen feel it would get better use as a concessions facility.

After lengthy discussion, the council asked the committee to try to resolve the dispute. It is believed the historical society, if it takes over the 40-year-old cabin, might permit its use for concessions.

The council took initial action aimed at resolving problems of Harmon Brothers Inc. in constructing a bus barn on property west of Indian Creek Mall south of Navajo St. Apparently the property is an industrial park, but there is some question whether the bus operation would comply with industrial use.

Another problem is that the property does not front upon a public-dedicated street as legally required. The city attorney was asked to prepare an ordinance to resolve the situation, with a building permit being issued in the meantime so construction can begin.

The council also.

—Approved contract with AFSCME-CIO, mainly police personel basically calling for 6% salary increase for next year.

—Noted scheduling of annual 14-County meeting Sept. 27th by State Highway Commission.

—Adopted formal policy of closing agenda for city council business at 5 p.m. each Wednesday prior to council meetings.

—Approved appointment of Alton W. Schwandt to city Library Board.

—Passed resolutions welcoming reopening of Pershing Campus as part of Southeast Community College.

—Accepted resignation of Eldon Trauernicht as city auditorium manager.

—Denied application of John Berner as manager of Broken Arrow Lounge, Class C Liquor licensee, because he is not a county resident.

Mexico's President Echeverria On U.S. Trade, Good Will Visit

San Antonio, Tex. (UPI) — With a mariachi band blaring music in the background, Mexico President Luis Echeverria Tuesday opened a two-day visit aimed at easing tensions and bolstering trade between the United States and his country.

Echeverria's ceremonial purpose was to snip the ribbon opening Mexfair 76, his country's largest trade exhibit in history. He hoped the fair would help erase a trade deficit with the United States which as resulted in Mexico buying $5.1 billion worth of U.S. goods while selling only $2.1 billion worth of goods on this side of the border.

Most of his schedule was social and private.

However, observers anticipated Echeverria might make one major speech during his stay aimed at dispelling reports of an "anti-Mexican" campaign in the United States during the Presidential election year.

Mexican officials said signs of an anti-Mexican movement in the United States included a letter from 76 congressmen to President Ford suggesting Mexico was moving toward Communism and, a "cactus curtain" be set up along the Rio Grande.

Early Commune Was In Texas

Dallas (UPI) — Communal living was first tested in Texas in 1854 when a French socialist established a colony called La Reunion only four miles from the present Dallas County Courthouse.

Although the land was owned collectively, every colonist had an assigned portion of land to maintain.

Power Line Request Denied At Omaha Airport Location

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Public Service Commission voted 4-1 Tuesday to deny the Omaha Public Power District application to build a power line near a private airport in west Douglas County.

PSC staff attorney Adrian Fiala said later that the Omaha proposal complies with Federal Aviation Administration safety standards — the only area in which the commission has authority over the power district application.

Fiala also noted the PSC approved an almost identical application last October.

Fairmont Commissioner Eric Rasmussen first moved to approve the OPPD request, but his motion died for lack of a second. Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus moved for and won the denial. Rasmussen said he will file a companion formal dissent with his nay vote.

"We're ignoring the FAA standards," Rasmussen objected. Gay responded that "our authority is safety." Rasmussen said the PSC staff needs standards regarding such applications to use in the future.

Gay insisted that there's "no difference in the safety of one individual or 1,000 individuals" in OPPD's request to build the electric transmission line.

It would be raised on poles northeast of the airport near Omaha's W. Center Road and 168th St. The private use flying strip is owned by developer John A. Wiebe.

Gay said OPPD ignored pursuing a clear alternative available; an attorney for the district said that would arouse wider public opposition among those affected.

Neither Wiebe nor the OPPD attorney were allowed to testify Tuesday before the PSC action. Gay also ruled that post-hearing documents were inadmissible. The attorney said he doesn't know yet if OPPD will appeal the commission decision.

Wiebe has contended that the OPPD power line would pose a safety hazard in the runway landing pattern and also if a plane engine were to fail during a northbound takeoff.

In other action, the PSC agreed to ask Gov. J. James Exon to appoint an agency to develop a state rail plan for approval by the U.S. Transportation Department. The plan would fall under the 1976 Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act.

Commissioners expressed concern that any more delays in initiating a state rail plan — without which several branch lines might be jeopardized and abandoned — will preclude Nebraska from participation in and eligibility for program subsidies.

During the OPPD power line discussion, Gay said another power district has built a line even closer to an airport, but without PSC approval of the pending appliction. Fiala said later the Norris Public Power District line is already carrying power adjacent to Hawks Airfield in Thayer County, where PSC staff will investigate Wednesday.

Lincoln Foundation Will Buy Five Cardiac Training Manikins

Five more manikins will be added to the Lincoln Division of the Nebraska Heart Association's corps for teaching cardio-pulmonary resuscitation to southeast Nebraska Citizens.

The Lincoln Foundation executive committee agreed Tuesday to a $1,445 grant to purchase the life-size dummies.

The Heart Association had requested funds for 19 manikins, one for each county outside Lancaster, to teach basic life support classes in the 20 southeast Nebraska counties covered by the Lincoln division.

In denying the funds for 14 of the 19 originally requested, foundation executives instructed John Frey, president, to assist the Heart Association in soliciting funds from other area foundations and community civic clubs.

The Heart Association has been cooperating with the Nebraska Medical Education Foundation and the Bryan Mobile Heart Team to put citizens through the five-hour course in which they learn to apply cardio-pulmonary resuscitation during "the crucial six minutes following cardiac arrest," Mary Zilly, division director, said.

In the last year, more than 2,500 Lincolnites have been trained in basic life support, she said.

Lincoln Foundation officers and executive committee members tabled a request from the Trinity Infant and Child Care Center for a $3,685 grant for supplies and equipment to expand the program.

In other action, the foundation denied a request from the Nebraska Human Resources Research Foundation for $1,200 to help cover the costs of a counselor leadership seminar to be held in Overland Park, Kan.

The NHRRF recruits university students to act as counselors to area children and teenagers.

Decision Voice Sought By UNL Faculty Senate

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty senators made it clear at their first fall meeting that they want to be consulted in decisions which affect the Lincoln campus.

After an hour of discussion and rewording, a resolution urging that the NU systems office consult the faculty before budget cuts or university decisions are made was passed unanimously by the senate.

The resolution was a direct result of cuts in the Lincoln campus budgets required by State Sen. John Cavanaugh's amendment to the University Appropriation Act of the last legislative session.

But the senators' discussion indicated that the issue was much larger than just the Cavanaugh cuts. The basic issue is the role of the faculty in university decisions.

"This is a fundamental question of consultation. of respect for the faculty and in turn faculty respect for them (administrators)," said one senator.

The senate also urged faculty authority over campus calendars in other action during the meeting. The senate passed a resolution recommending that an intercampus calendar committee be merely advisory to the faculty of each campus.

As envisioned by the Board of Regents, this committee, with representatives from each campus, would determine a common calendar for the three University of Nebraska campuses in Omaha and Lincoln.

Gauger Names Co-Chairpersons For Campaign

Robert Crosby and Kappie Weber will be co-chairpersons for the fall campaign of Jan Gauger, Republican candidate for reelection to the Lancaster County Board.

Campaign chairman during the primary, Gar Donnelson, resigned from the committee in early summer giving additional job responsibilities as the reason.

"In moving from the district primary election to the general election campaign, we have restructured the committee and considerably broadened the scope of activities," said Mrs. Gauger in announcing some campaign changes.

BRITISH BUS . . . has 1.3 million miles on it.

Scot Has Bus At Fair

By H. L. HOFFMASTER
Star Staff Writer

Religious persecution drove J. Moreland, 39, from Scotland and now he's driving a bus at the Nebraska State Fair.

Of course, there's more to the story than that.

Jamie — "call me J., or Scottie" — is a native of Greenock, Scotland, a city of 110,000 in the middlewestern lowlands near Glasgow.

He's a college-educated Catholic who couldn't get a job in Protestant-dominated Scotland.

"There was a lot of hate in Glasgow," he says and the decent jobs didn't go to Catholics.

So he left for America because sailors at the Holy Loch submarine base assured him religious persecution was not the case in America.

Thirteen years ago he arrived in Omaha and for one dozen of those years he sold luxury and sports cars.

One year ago he went from exotic cars to exotic buses and he plans to go to really luxurious cars.

But until he establishes himself as a broker for $35,000-$50,000 classic Rolls Royces, he's in the double-decker bus business at the fair.

For $9,000 he purchased a 1951 British AEC and will be driving dignitaries and entertainers about the fairgrounds until the fair closes Sept. 12.

The amazing vehicle has 1.3 million miles on a six-cylinder diesel engine that has cylinders larger than quart canning jars. It gets 20 miles per gallon.

The bus has no power steering, and that makes for hard parking Scottie says, but it has some comforts Americans are used to like air conditioning, stereo and tinted glass.

He is not driving the public around the fairgrounds though; the bus is being chartered by some of the entertainment groups like Robert Merrill and choirs, and Scottie hopes to chauffeur Bob Hope in the double-decker when the legendary comedian comes to the fair Sunday.

Next project for the brogue-speaking Scot is to be a broker for 1930's-50's Rolls Royces. His father, who still lives in Greenock, is a Rolls engineer and has access to service/sales records of the British company which lets Scottie know where to find the cars. His father can then check them out mechanically to make sure that people who can afford them — "American doctors and lawyers," Scottie says — get a Rolls in prime condition.

But he spends more time talking about religious bigotry than buses and limousines.

Scottie says the situation is much better in Scotland now for Catholics and so his father, mother and two brothers are leading better lives.

He credits U.S. industry with improving the lot of Catholics. Many major American companies have started production facilities in Scotland, he says, and those firms hire people without regard to their religion.

Despite the fact that he has family in Scotland, and that the life has improved, he won't go back.

Indian 'Doing His Homework'

STAR PHOTO

ARBUCKLE . . . re-emerging.

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

John Twobirds Arbuckle has ended three years of noninvolvement and emerged as a promoter of native American nationalism.

Arbuckle, 34, a Choctaw-Ojibway Indian, active until three years ago with the United Indians of Nebraska and the American Indian Movement, said his low-profile time was spent "doing my homework."

Homework for Arbuckle included studying, teaching and counseling at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Cotner College, as well as traveling to powwows to promote the traditional meaning of the gala events.

This summer, Arbuckle and wife Lily drove to powwows in eight states using their CB radio handles "Native Dancer" and "Buckskin Lady."

"There's a lot of Indian traffic (conversations) on the CB in the southwest," Arbuckle said, noting that there's a movement afoot to establish a national Indian channel.

That's just a small part of what Arbuckle would like to see as a greater national movement.

He would like to see Indian delegates at national political conventions, "just like Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands," as well as direct representation in Congress.

"The powwow was originally the Indian's means of keeping up on things in the outside world, but it was also a time to discuss the serious matters that affect the life of every tribe. Only the social trappings, the dance and the pageantry, have survived the original powwow," Arbuckle explained.

It was with the traditional spirit that Arbuckle became one of the organizers of a powwow which drew 500 Indians to Kansas City during the Republican National Convention.

Arbuckle beams with pride when he says that the powwow held in Blue Valley Park on the east edge of the city was in the traditional sense. He represented a coalition of concerned Indian people and delivered testimony to the Republic Party platform committee.

That testimony was based on a meeting of the minds on the powwow grounds, grounds which were devoid, by choice, of the hippies and yippies who received national coverage for their protests.

"Ike Pappas of CBS was really put out when he found out we weren't going to start fires or throw bricks," Arbuckle said.

"But we brought our people together to learn about democracy," Arbuckle said, relating that Indians weren't citizens until 1924 and didn't learn much about government until 1934.

In his speech, Arbuckle asked that the Republicans consider Indian people for delegates at future conventions:

"We are not asking for votes, but for a chance to observe and see this process at work for ourselves, so we may decide intelligently how and who we should vote for. We want to hear your speeches and promises firsthand, so we can return to our respective reservations and off-reservation homes and tell our people what this thing, democracy, is about."

Arbuckle provided the committee with statistics and historical data, but set the mood for the powwow and the outcome, saying:

" . . . It is not my purpose today to give you a history lesson. As important as the past is to all peoples, there comes a time when a people must secure the present and look to its future."

A resolution adopted by the coalition and forwarded to the Republicans by Arbuckle asked that the party "adopt as a portion of its platform a just and responsible position toward the American Indian people for its standard bearer and representatives."

As a general outcome of his travels, Arbuckle said, "We have met with great encouragement from our people, who seem to be happy that we would come and explain to them what we are trying to do, and that we as young men would seek out their advice and respect it as we were taught to do in our Indian way."

Of the convention, Arbuckle said, "We won the sympathy and interest of the delegates, but couldn't muster support for the passage of the resolution."

But, he added, "We planted the seed for future conventions. More importantly, we showed the world that a group of determined people can present their case without going to the streets."

Arbuckle is resuming his studies in pursuit of a degree in psychology at the University of Nebraska, combining book learning with a study of "what makes the white society tick."

Future political activity is still a question mark, "but my concern for Indian people won't wane," Arbuckle said.

Opening lead - three of clubs.

Bridge is occasionally like tug of war, with each side trying to yank the other out of position. For example, take this deal where West leads a club against four hearts. East cashes two club tricks and plays a third round of clubs, hoping that West will ruff the club and force declarer to overruff in dummy with the ten or jack.

This is a somewhat forceful yank by East, because, if his plan succeeds, he will automatically acquire a trump trick in the process.

West cooperates by ruffing the third round of clubs with the five and, if declarer makes the mistake of overruffing in dummy, he eventually goes down one, losing both a trump trick and a diamond trick.

But if South is on his toes, he does not allow himself to be yanked out of position by this attack on his trumps. Instead of overtrumping West's five of hearts, which seems to be the natural thing to do, South discards the deuce of diamonds from dummy.

It is not difficult for declarer to diagnose East's purpose in leading a third round of clubs, especially after West ruffs with the five of hearts. Furthermore, since declarer has a sure diamond loser in any case, he realizes that he is better off to concede it at once without in any way weakening dummy's trump position.

Whatever West returns, South winds up winning the tug of war. He enters dummy with the king of diamonds, leads the jack of hearts and finesses, then repeats the finesse to trap East's king. Declarer loses the first three tricks, but wins all the rest.

Nurse Now Interested In Paralyzed Lawman

DEAR ABBY: I was engaged to marry a registered nurse, but all of a sudden she changed her mind. Now, she wants to wait a while because she became interested in a man she had as a patient a few months back.

He's a cop who was shot during a holdup. A bullet hit his spine and he is paralyzed from the waist down, so I can't understand how he can do her any good as a husband.

She tried to give me back the diamond, but I told her I wanted her to continue to wear it to remind her of her promise to marry me. The last time I saw her, she wasn't wearing it, and she acted very cold.

I have a full-time job that pays good money, and I am in perfect health. Please let me know what you think this man can do for her, being paralyzed, confined to a wheelchair and unable to work. Thank you.

PUZZLED IN NEW YORK

DEAR PUZZLED: What this man can do for her concerns her and the man. In any case, I suggest you accept the engagement ring she wants to return because now that she is interested in another man, your engagement is off.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a secretary in a one-girl office with a great boss. The problem is with the salesmen. Since I'm the only girl, they make all sorts of passes at me. One old goat who's old enough to be my father asked me if I played around.

Abby, I love my job and make excellent money for a girl my age (18), and I'm not about to quit because of these jerks.

I need the money because my parents are dead, and I support myself. I try to be friendly, and sometimes I kid around with the men, but I've never given any of them the least little bit of encouragement.

I know they read your column. So please print this. They may see it and leave me alone.

DEPRESSED IN DEPEW

DEAR DEPRESSED: Apparently your "friendliness" and "kidding around" have been misunderstood. If a girl is "all business," a man rarely suggests any monkey business. And if he does, he can be set straight in a hurry.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Girls Scouts' Council Seeks Stay-Afloat Contributions

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Wirter

The Homestead Girl Scout Council plans to turn to Scouts and their families to try to make up the $27,000 difference between expenditures and income expected for 1977.

The Girl Scout board had settled on a four-pronged approach to balance the books, according to a council-wide newsletter mailed last week.

The four points:

—Council-sponsored programs will be a self-supporting through fees.

—Expenses at Camp Catron will be evaluated with an eye twoard priorities as they relate to fees for camp use.

—A fund has been established to ensure that low-income Scouts can continue to participate.

—Sustaining Membership Enrollment will be established. Through this, parents and friends of Girl Scouts will be asked to make tax-deductible contributions to the council's operations.

Contribution-seeking through the Sustaining Membership Enrollment needs United Way approval. Since the Girl Scout Council is a member of the United Way family, it must abide by United Way rules and regulations governing extra fund raising.

Girl Scout officials will meet Thursday with the United Way executive board to discuss the proposed fund-raising format. The United Way board is expected to take up the issue at its Sept. 16 meeting.

The United Way's budgeting body has stressed establishment of sliding scale fees for all human service agencies, thus clearing the way for those who can afford to pay to do so, with United Way picking up the bill for those who cannot afford to pay their own way.

That emphasis, however, has been at odds with national Boy Scout, Girl Scout and Camp Fire Girl policies which have dictated how much each participant can be assessed. The Camp Fire Girl policy was changed late last year, enabling local councils to assess ore or less as needed.

The sustaining membership drive may be a way of raising funds without confronting the national Girl Scout Fee policy.

Indian 'Doing His Homework'

ARBUCKLE . . . re-emerging.

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

John Twobirds Arbuckle has ended three years of noninvolvement and emerged as a promoter of native American nationalism.

Arbuckle, 34, a Choctaw-Ojibway Indian, active until three years ago with the United Indians of Nebraska and the American Indian Movement, said his low-profile time was spent "doing my homework."

Homework for Arbuckle included studying, teaching and counseling at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Cotner College, as well as traveling to powwows to promote the traditional meaning of the gala events

This summer, Arbuckle and wife Lily drove to powwows in eight states using their CB radio handles "Native Dancer" and "Buckskin Lady."

'There's a lot of Indian traffic (conversations) on the CB in the southwest," Arbuckle said, noting that there's a movement afoot to establish a national Indian channel.

That's just a small part of what Arbuckle would like to see as a greater national movement.

He would like to see Indian delegates at national political conventions, "just like Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands," as well as direct representation in Congress.

"The powwow was originally the Indian's means of keeping up on things in the outside world, but it was also a time to discuss the serious matters that affect the life of every tribe. Only the social trappings, the dance and the pageantry, have survived the original powwow," Arbuckle explained

It was with the traditional spirit that Arbuckle became one of the organizers of a powwow which drew 500 Indians to Kansas City during the Republican National Convention.

Arbuckle beams with pride when he says that the powwow held in Blue Valley Park on the east edge of the city was in the traditional sense. He represented a coalition of concerned Indian people and delivered testimony to the Republic Party platform committee.

That testimony was based on a meeting of the minds on the powwow grounds, grounds which were devoid, by choice, of the hippies and yippies who received national coverage for their protests.

"Ike Pappas of CBS was really put out when he found out we weren't going to start fires or throw bricks," Arbuckle said.

"But we brought our people together to learn about democracy," Arbuckle said, relating that Indians weren't citizens until 1924 and didn't learn much about government until 1934.

In his speech, Arbuckle asked that the Republicans consider Indian people for delegates at future conventions.

"We are not asking for votes, but for a chance to observe and see this process at work for ourselves, so we may decide intelligently how and who we should vote for. We want to hear your speeches and promises firsthand, so we can return to our respective reservations and off-reservation homes and tell our people what this thing, democracy, is about."

Arbuckle provided the committee with statistics and historical data, but set the mood for the powwow and the outcome, saying:

". . . It is not my purpose today to give you a history lesson. As important as the past is to all peoples, there comes a time when a people must secure the present and look to its future."

A resolution adopted by the coalition and forwarded to the Republicans by Arbuckle asked that the party "adopt as a portion of its platform a just and responsible position toward the American Indian people for its standard bearer and representatives."

As a general outcome of his travels, Arbuckle said, "We have met with great encouragement from our people, who seem to be happy that we would come and explain to them what we are trying to do, and that we as young men would seek out their advice and respect it as we were taught to do in our Indian way."

Of the convention, Arbuckle said, "We won the sympathy and interest of the delegates, but couldn't muster support for the passage of the resolution."

But, he added, "We planted the seed for future conventions. More importantly, we showed the world that a group of determined people can present their case without going to the streets."

Arbuckle is resuming his studies in pursuit of a degree in psychology at the University of Nebraska, combining book learning with a study of "what makes the white society tick."

Future political activity is still a question mark, "but my concern for Indian people won't wane," Arbuckle said.

The bidding.

Opening lead - three of clubs.

Bridge is occasionally like tug of war, with each side trying to yank the other out of position For example, take this deal where West leads a club against four hearts. East cashes two club tricks and plays a third round of clubs, hoping that West will ruff the club and force declarer to overruff in dummy with the ten or jack.

This is a somewhat forceful yank by East, because, if his plan succeeds, he will automatically acquire a trump trick in the process

West cooperates by ruffing the third round of clubs with the five and, if declarer makes the mistake of overruffing in dummy, he eventually goes down one, losing both a trump trick and a diamond trick

But if South is on his toes, he does not allow himself to be yanked out of position by this attack on his trumps. Instead of overtrumping West's five of hearts, which seems to be the natural thing to do, South discards the deuce of diamonds from dummy.

It is not difficult for declarer to diagnose East's purpose in leading a third round of clubs, especially after West ruffs with the five of hearts. Furthermore, since declarer has a sure diamond loser in any case, he realizes that he is better off to concede it at once without in any way weakening dummy's trump position.

Whatever West returns, South winds up winning the tug of war. He enters dummy with the king of diamonds, leads the jack of hearts and finesses, then repeats the finesse to trap East's king. Declarer loses the first three tricks, but wins all the rest.

Nurse Now Interested In Paralyzed Lawman

DEAR ABBY: I was engaged to marry a registered nurse, but all of a sudden she changed her mind Now, she wants to wait a while because she became interested in a man she had as a patient a few months back.

He's a cop who was shot during a holdup. A bullet hit his spine and he is paralyzed from the waist down, so I can't understand how he can do her any good as a husband

She tried to give me back the diamond, but I told her I wanted her to continue to wear it to remind her of her promise to marry me. The last time I saw her, she wasn't wearing it, and she acted very cold.

I have a full-time job that pays good money, and I am in perfect health. Please let me know what you think this man can do for her, being paralyzed, confined to a wheelchair and unable to work. Thank you.

PUZZLED IN NEW YORK

DEAR PUZZLED: What this man can do for her concerns her and the man. In any case, I suggest you accept the engagement ring she wants to return because now that she is interested in another man, your engagement is off.

DEAR ABBY. I'm a secretary in a one-girl office with a great boss. The problem is with the salesmen. Since I'm the only girl, they make all sorts of passes at me. One old goat who's old enough to be my father asked me if I played around.

Abby, I love my job and make excellent money for a girl my age (18), and I'm not about to quit because of these jerks.

I need the money because my parents are dead, and I support myself. I try to be friendly, and sometimes I kid around with the men, but I've never given any of them the least little bit of encouragement.

I know they read your column. So please print this. They may see it and leave me alone.

DEPRESSED IN DEPEW

DEAR DEPRESSED: Apparently your "friendliness" and "kidding around" have been misunderstood. If a girl is "all business," a man rarely suggests any monkey business. And if he does, he can be set straight in a hurry.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24c) envelope.

Girls Scouts' Council Seeks Stay-Afloat Contributions

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Wirter

The Homestead Girl Scout Council plans to turn to Scouts and their families to try to make up the $27,000 difference between expenditures and income expected for 1977.

The Girl Scout board had settled on a four-pronged approach to balance the books, according to a council-wide newsletter mailed last week.

The four points:

—Council-sponsored programs will be a self-supporting through fees.

—Expenses at Camp Catron will be evaluated with an eye twoard priorities as they relate to fees for camp use.

—A fund has been established to ensure that low-income Scouts can continue to participate.

—Sustaining Membership Enrollment will be established. Through this, parents and friends of Girl Scouts will be asked to make tax-deductible contributions to the council's operations.

Contribution-seeking through the Sustaining Membership Enrollment needs United Way approval. Since the Girl Scout Council is a member of the United Way family, it must abide by United Way rules and regulations governing extra fund raising.

Girl Scout officials will meet Thursday with the United Way executive board to discuss the proposed fund-raising format. The United Way board is expected to take up the issue at its Sept. 16 meeting.

The United Way's budgeting body has stressed establishment of sliding scale fees for all human service agencies, thus clearing the way for those who can afford to pay to do so, with United Way picking up the bill for those who cannot afford to pay their own way.

That emphasis, however, has been at odds with national Boy Scout, Girl Scout and Camp Fire Girl policies which have dictated how much each participant can be assessed. The Camp Fire Girl policy was changed late last year, enabling local councils to assess ore or less as needed.

The sustaining membership drive may be a way of raising funds without confronting the national Girl Scout Fee policy

Market Posts Broad Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — An optimstic forecast from the nation's largest retailer helped the stock market overcome some early hesitancy and post a broad gain Tuesday.

The market spent most of the morning in a mixed pattern with many investors waiting for signs of which way the market would head following Labor Day, the traditional "business New Year."

Buying began to pick up early in the afternoon after Sears, Roebuck, the biggest retailer in the country, predicted steady growth in sales at least through next spring's selling season.

"We have a sustainable rate of growth and that's the best kind of growth to have," Arthur M. Wood, Sears' chairman, told the Dow Jones News Service.

Rucker, the day's most active issue, jumped more than 6 points. The company and NL Industries announced merger plans calling for an exchange of $33 worth of NL common stock for each Rucker share.

NL was off a fraction.

Lawyer's Letter Best Bet In Air Travel Complaints

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — When an airline loses (1) your suitcase, and (2) then your claim for compensation, what can you do? What if weather delays you and the airline forgets to mention that they owe you a bed and a meal? What can you do if they owe money on a ticket but don't come across?

The most effective response is to have a lawyer complain. Ask him to write a letter, on his legal stationery, to the president of the airline, setting forth the problem and asking for action. This usually builds a fire under even the most sleepy "customer relations" departments.

Lawyers shouldn't charge more than $25 to $40 for writing the letter and handling the anxious telephone call that usually results. If you've already given him a lot of business, he should do it free.

Another place to complain — and one that doesn't cost anything — is the Office of the Consumer Advocate, Civil Aeronautics Board, Washington, D.C. 20428. Director Ralph Yohe told my associate, Anne Colamosca, that the OCA wrote some 15,000 letters to airlines last year, trying to settle consumer problems. The office is something of a paper tiger, since it can't impose fines if the airlines ignore their duty. Nevertheless, it can often be of help.

Something else the OCA does for consumers is to sit in when airlines submit requests for fare increases or charges in service. It comments on proposals, and files complaints against things it thinks are against consumer interests. So far there are only minor victories to its credit; time will tell whether the OCA can amount to anything more.

Yet another place to complain is Ralph Nader's Aviation Consumer Action Project, P.O. Box 19029, Washington D.C., 20036. This group hasn't the staff to deal with individual claims. But they'd like a carbon of any complaint you send to the CAB. Your problem may affect a large number of people, in which case they'd swing into action. For example, they filed a complaint with CAB on behalf of 150 people who were switched by National Airlines from a daytime to a night flight, due to a holdover. The night flight was $17 cheaper, and the Nader people think the passengers are owed a refund. A measure of the "speedy" justice you can expect from the CAB is that this complaint was filed in 1974.

The airlines, as well as the CAB, are getting increased complaints from business travelers that the airlines' party atmosphere is a pain in the briefcase. As a result, some carriers are experimenting with special sections where you won't be bothered by earphones, stewardesses, movies, or other passengers who glare if you leave your light on during the film. TWA calls its section the Quiet Zone — ask for it if you're booked on a 747. Some other tips:

(1) Most luggage is lost because of interline flight connections, especially at airports like O'Hare, in Chicago, and Dallas/Fort Worth where the terminals are scattered. Report a lost bag immediately. If you don't do so within four hours of arrival, the airline may not be liable. When a bag can't be found, the airline should send a form for filing the dollar value of your loss. If the form doesn't come within two weeks, write the airline to ask about it. Delay in filing may also invalidate your claim.

(2) If a flight delay forces you to eat a meal or spend the night somewhere you hadn't planned, you're probably entitled to vouchers for the cost of meals, hotels, even taxi fares and phone calls. Each airline has its own policy — but once filed with the CAB it becomes mandatory. Airline employes don't always volunteer the vouchers, so you have to ask.

Lee Buys TV Station In Honolulu

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — The purchase of television station KGMB-TV, the CBS affiliate in Honolulu, Hawaii, was announced Tuesday by Lloyd G. Schermer, president of Lee Enterprises, Inc.

The purchase is subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Operating assets were purchased from corporations operated and controlled by Cecil Heftel and family.

Lee will pay cash of $10 million for KGMB-TV and certain broadcast facilities on Maui and the big island of Hawaii. Lee also will pay $500,000 for the assets of a separately owned production corporation.

Additionally, Lee has agreed to the assumption of approximately $2 million of long-term liabilities including a mortgage and certain leases and will enter into a long-term contingent consultation agreement.

The acquisition, if approved by the FCC, is not expected to have a material first-year effect on the earnings of Lee, the company said.

Lee Enterprises, listed on the American Stock Exchange, owns and operates four television stations, four radio stations and 15 daily newspapers, mostly in the Midwest and Far West.

Market Posts Broad Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — An optimistic forecast from the nation's largest retailer helped the stock market overcome some early hesitancy and post a broad gain Tuesday

The market spent most of the morning in a mixed pattern with many investors waiting for signs of which way the market would head following Labor Day, the traditional "business New Year"

Buying began to pick up early in the afternoon after Sears, Roebuck, the biggest retailer in the country, predicted steady growth in sales at least through next spring's selling season

"We have a sustainable rate of growth and that's the best kind of growth to have," Arthur M Wood, Sears' chairman, told the Dow Jones News Service.

Rucker, the day's most active issue, jumped more than 6 points The company and NL Industries announced merger plans calling for an exchange of $33 worth of NL common stock for each Rucker share.

Lawyer's Letter Best Bet In Air Travel Complaints

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — When an airline loses (1) your suitcase, and (2) then your claim for compensation what can you do? What if weather delays you and the airline forgets to mention that they owe you a bed and a meal? What can you do if they owe money on a ticket but don't come across?

The most effective response is to have a lawyer complain Ask him to write a letter, on his legal stationery, to the president of the airline, setting forth the problem and asking for action This usually builds a fire under even the most sleepy "customer relations' departments

Lawyers shouldn't charge more than $25 to $40 for writing the letter and handling the anxious telephone call that usually results If you've already given him a lot of business, he should do it free

Another place to complain — and one that doesn't cost anything — is the Office of the Consumer Advocate, Civil Aeronautics Board, Washington, D C 20428 Director Ralph Yohe told my associate, Anne Colamosca, that the OCA wrote some 15,000 letters to airlines last year, trying to settle consumer problems The office is something of a paper tiger, since it can't impose fines if the airlines ignore their duty Nevertheless, it can often be of help

Something else the OCA does for consumers is to sit in when airlines submit requests for fare increases or charges in service It comments on proposals, and files complaints against things it thinks are against consumer interests So far there are only minor victories to its credit, time will tell whether the OCA can amount to anything more

Yet another place to complain is Ralph Nader's Aviation Consumer Action Project, P O Box 19029, Washington D C 20036 This group hasn't the staff to deal with individual claims But they'd like a carbon of any complaint you send to the CAB Your problem may affect a large number of people, in which case they'd swing into action For example they filed a complaint with CAB on behalf of 150 people who were switched by National Airlines from a daytime to a night flight, due to a holdover The night flight was $17 cheaper, and the Nader people think the passengers are owed a refund A measure of the "speedy' justice you can expect from the CAB is that this complaint was filed in 1974

The airlines, as well as the CAB are getting increased complaints from business travelers that the airlines' party atmosphere is a pain in the briefcase As a result, some carriers are experimenting with special sections where you won't be bothered by earphones, stewardesses, movies, or other passengers who glare if you leave your light on during the film TWA calls its section the Quiet Zone — ask for it if you're booked on a 747 Some other tips

(1) Most luggage is lost because of interline flight connections, especially at airports like O Hare, in Chicago, and Dallas Fort Worth where the terminals are scattered Report a lost bag immediately If you don't do so within four hours of arrival, the airline may not be liable When a bag can't be found the airline should send a form for filing the dollar value of your loss If the form doesn't come within two weeks, write the airline to ask about it Delay in filing may also invalidate your claim

(2) If a flight delay forces you to eat a meal or spend the night somewhere you hadn't planned, you're probably entitled to vouchers for the cost of meals, hotels, even taxi fares and phone calls Each airline has its own policy — but once filed with the CAB it becomes mandatory Airline employes don't always volunteer the vouchers, so you have to ask

Lee Buys TV Station In Honolulu

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — The purchase of television station KGMB-TV, the CBS affiliate in Honolulu, Hawaii, was announced Tuesday by Lloyd G. Schermer, president of Lee Enterprises, Inc.

The purchase is subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Operating assets were purchased from corporations operated and controlled by Cecil Heftel and family.

Lee will pay cash of $10 million for KGMB-TV and certain broadcast facilities on Maui and the big island of Hawaii Lee also will pay $500,000 for the assets of a separately owned production corporation

Additionally, Lee has agreed to the assumption of approximately $2 million of long-term liabilities including a mortgage and certain leases and will enter into a long-term contingent consultation agreement

The acquisition, if approved by the FCC, is not expected to have a material first-year effect on the earnings of Lee, the company said

Trick Plays Can Pay Off

The 1976 college football season is only one week old, but already there is controversy about a trick play that helped North Carolina knock off mighty Miami of Ohio.

Of course, Nebraska fans haven't forgotten the "Bummeroosky" fake punt which provided the spark in the Huskers' 30-7 victory over Missouri last season.

Although it happened back in 1937, old-time Louisiana State fans recall the "Settin' Hen Play" which Vanderbilt pulled on the Tigers to beat them 7-6 in Nashville.

At the time, LSU was the nation's No. 1 college football team riding a 20-game victory streak. Vanderbilt was coached by a former Southern Methodist tutor named Ray Morrison, who liked wide-open football. One of his assistants was Henry Frnka, whose ancestors somewhere lost a vowel.

It was Frnka, who later was head coach at Tulsa and Tulane, who provided the play, one he had used as a high school coach in Texas.

The first time Vanderbilt got the ball (on about its own 40), the Commodores lined up for what looked to be a routine play. It didn't turn out that way.

Similar To Bummeroosky

The idea was similar to the Huskers' Bummeroosky play, differing only in that NU was in punt formation and successfully faked a sweep to the right while John O'Leary hid the ball until it was safe to take off around the left side.

Vandy snapped the ball and the Commodores moved to the left on an apparent sweep with LSU Bengals in frantic pursuit.

Then, suddenly, a lone figure — a Vanderbilt guard — was seen loping alone leisurely the 60 yards to a touchdown.

"We decided on the play beforehand," Frnka recently recalled. "We checked the legality with the officials and notified them when it was coming.

"The team lined up normally. The quarterback, Dutch Reinschmidt, took the ball from center, faked it to the running backs and then stuffed it under the legs of a guard named Greer Ricketson.

"Ricketson sat on it until the play moved to the wideleft side. Our boys faked LSU right out of its shoes. Ricketson ran untouched into the end zone. We called it the 'Settin' Hen Play.'"

Frnka said LSU never recovered from the shock and Vanderbilt went on to a 7-6 upset victory.

Trick plays can backfire, but when they work they give a team a big boost.

Jones Is Alive, Well And Grid Catalyst

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

As gruesome as it sounds, Scott Jones might not have been alive to savor Silver Creek's 14-8 football win over Polk last Friday night.

In all likelihood, if Jones had succumbed a month ago to a freak accident that might have killed someone 10 years older, Silver Creek wouldn't even have had a victory to savor.

Jones, a 6-1, 170-pound halfback-safety, was working in a Columbus junkyard one week before football practice started.

He was cutting half-inch sheet metal. The machine jammed. He tried to pull the sheet metal out with his hands.

Fifty pounds of it exploded out of the machine with ripping force, slamming underneath Jones' chin. The blast knocked him 10 feet into the air. He landed on his back and lay unconscious for 15 minutes.

"His dentist told him if he had been 10 years older, the jaw would have shattered, knocked his teeth into his brain and killed him," Silver Creek football coach Larry Rhoden said. "But he had awfully hard teeth for a young kid."

Fourteen teeth were broken. Jones is still undergoing root-canal work and capping.

Doctors advised Jones against playing last Friday night but condescended to his wishes and designed a special mouthpiece so that he could compete.

Compete he did. He made four unassisted tackles and was credited with 13 assists. He returned the second-half kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown to transform an 8-0 halftime lead into a 14-0 cushion.

He also recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass with 35 seconds remaining, returning it to the Polk 30-yard line to save the game.

For his courageous performance, Jones receives the season's first Athlete of the Week award from The Sunday Journal and Star.

"I've never seen such determination," Rhoden said. "He's a bright and intelligent kid who gives everything he has. He's good enough to play small college ball and he could sure use a scholarship."

Jones is a :10.4 sprinter in track. He missed almost three weeks of practice, joining the Silver Creek team three days before the game.

Rhoden returned to Class D Silver Creek to coach after spending four years at Class B Ashland. His team went into the opening game a decided underdog against Polk, the No. 7 preseason rated Class D team.

Two weeks before the season opened, junior Ronnie Valasek suffered a baseball knee injury requiring surgery. The younger brother of Nebraska safety starter Larry Valasek was scheduled to be Silver Creek's starting quarterback this season.

"When we went down to Polk, I guess our people didn't realize the odds against them," Rhoden said. "I know Scott Jones didn't. You won't see a much more courageous performance than he gave."

Prep Athlete Of The Week

The Sunday Journal and Star has initiated a new concept, honoring Nebraska high school athletes.

Instead of honoring football players of the week only, the Sunday Journal and Star will honor Athletes of the Week this fall.

Nominations should be addressed to: Randy York, Lincoln Journal and Star, P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, Ne. 68501.

Coaches Keep Busy As NFL Cuts Continue

From News Wires

Wide receiver Amhad Rashad, formerly Bobby Moore, headed a list of players traded or acquired on waivers Tuesday, while Elmo Wright and Roy Hilton were among the veterans cut as NFL teams cut down to 43-man rosters for the regular season.

Rashad, the former Bobby Moore, was traded by the expansion Seattle Seahawks to the Minnesota Vikings for an undisclosed 1977 draft choice and "future considerations"—probably a player to be named later.

The five-year veteran will try to fill the shoes of departed All-Pro wide receiver John Gilliam, who played out his option and signed this year with the Atlanta Falcons.

Wright, a star receiver for New Orleans coach Hank Stram in their glory years at Kansas City, was cut by the Saints after earlier failing to make the New York Giants.

Hilton, a 12-year veteran defensive lineman, became expendable when the Atlanta Falcons acquired another veteran defensive lineman and former Baltimore Colts teammate, Jim Bailey, on waivers from Cleveland.

The two expansion teams, Seattle and Tampa Bay, were busy scavenging the castoffs from other teams.

Seattle claimed the following players on waivers from other teams: Don Testerman, Ralph Nelson, Hugh McKinnis, Oliver Ross, Al Cowlings, Bob Newton and Greg Collins.

Tampa Bay traded an undisclosed draft choice to Cincinnati for veteran running back Charlie Davis and paid the Bengals the $100 waiver price for rookie defensive back Danny Reece.

In other transactions, Chicago obtained veteran cornerback Terry Schmidt from the Saints on waivers, Cleveland received veteran safety Terry Brown from Seattle in return for rookie cornerback Ted Bachman and San Francisco got veteran defensive end Tony Cline from Oakland on waivers.

The notable veterans cut were: quarterback Jerry Tagge of Chicago, punter-placekicker Dave Green of Cincinnati and wide receiver Fair Hooker of Denver.

To make room for Bailey on their roster, the Falcons dropped the 12-year veteran Hilton, who had been picked up last year as a free agent. Bailey, a seven-year veteran, was drafted by Baltimore in 1970, then was traded to the Jets in 1975.

Loud Duty At Drag Races

Mature Seniors Bolster Nebraska Lineup

What a difference one year makes. Just ask Nebraska's offensive tackle Bob Lingenfelter and linebacker Clete Pillen, senior starters in the 1976 Cornhusker football team.

When Nebraska started fall camp during August of 1975, the Cornhuskers were in a rebuilding year. Two of the question marks were the offensive line and linebacking positions, where a majority of the players were young and inexperienced.

The Huskers turned the rebuilding year into a co-Big 8 championship, a 10-2 overall mark, and a ninth place national ranking.

Two of the strongest areas of the team were the offensive line and linebackers, where Lingenfelter and Pillen matured rapidly and gained star status.

Now, with the season opener near and the Huskers ranked high nationally by many preseason predictors, each player can tell a distinct difference, both individually and teamwise, between the two years.

Lingenfelter remembers how he felt when he entered fall camp last year. "I was still trying to earn a first team spot over Rich Costanzo and I also had never started a varsity game," said the 6-7, 277-pound Lingenfelter. "Everyone was saying that the offensive line was young and inexperienced and I guess that even overall, as a team, we didn't really know what we could do."

But with the year's experience, the Nebraska offensive line is receiving praise and so is Lingenfelter, being tabbed by many preseason publications as an All-American.

"This year we know what we can do," he said. "Hopefully, we got all the mental mistakes and letdowns out of our system last year. We've got the physical ability and we're more ready this year. Now all we can do is play the best we can and take them one at a time."

Pillen's 1975 expierience was similar to Lingenfelter's. He also had never started a varsity game. In fact, the native of Monroe was a walkon at NU and earned himself a football scholarship. But by the end of the year, including his 27-tackle effort against Oklahoma, Pillen's play ranked with the top linebackers in the country.

"This year, I'm more secure and more sure of what I'm doing," he said. "I'm not making those early mistakes like I did and I can play with more enthusiasm. That doesn't mean I'm carefree, but I can do the job with more confidence."

Pillen, at 6-0 and 216 pounds, feels the Cornhuskers have something to prove following the 1975 season. "We are so much more enthused at the start of this year's camp," he said. "It hurt to end last year with those two losses and we'd like to take revenge on that fact."

Nebraska opens at Louisiana State Saturday night and both players realize the tough challenge at Baton Rouge. "LSU will have greater speed and be much stronger than last year," Pillen said. "Also, I'm sure they want to improve on their 4-7 record of last year, so it's important that we have a good game down there."

The Huskers beat LSU 10-7 in Lincoln last year to open the season and Lingenfelter expects another strong effort by the Tigers. "We've beaten them both times we've played and I know they'd like to change that," he said. "But another factor is that playing down there is like playing in our stadium. The fans really get into it and LSU is not used to losing opening games at home."

The Huskers held their last heavy workout in preparation for LSU Tuesday night at Seacrest Field. It was their second workout under the lights.

Guard Greg Jorgensen reinjured an ankle he had sprained earlier but coach Tom Osborne expects him to be able to make the trip. His backup players are Steve Lindquist and Stan Waldemore.

I-backs Dave Gillespie and Curtis Craig remained doubtful. Gillespie's pulled hamstring tightened up on him Monday and he didn't practice Tuesday night. Craig sprained an ankle in last Saturday's scrimmage.

That leaves the I-back spot in the hands of Monte Anthony, Richard Berns and Dale Zabrocki.

Wednesday's practice will be shortened and the Huskers will not run sprints after practice as they have been doing. Thursday's drill will be in sweat clothes.

Chicago Cuts Tagge

From News Wires

Former Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge Tuesday became the third Husker grad cut loose by the Chicago Bears in the last two days.

Tagge was waived along with two other players Tuesday. On Monday the Bears cut running back John O'Leary and offensive lineman Bob Newton, two other NU alumni.

Tagge was drafted No. 1 by the Green Bay Packers in 1972. He was the field general of the 1970-71 national champion Cornhusker grid teams.

Newton was picked up on waivers by the Seattle Seahawks from Chicago on Tuesday afternoon.

O'Leary had been a 1976 draft choice while Newton had played for six seasons with the Bears. Another ex-Cornhusker, offensive lineman Keith Wortman, was placed on the injured list by Green Bay.

Also Monday, former UNO standout Marlin Briscoe was traded, moving from Detroit to New England for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Following Monday's cut it appeared four 1976 NU draftees have made it with their respective NFL clubs. Eleven Huskers were taken in the 1976 draft.

Apparently making the grade were center Rik Bonness as a linebacker with Oakland; running back Tony Davis with Cincinnati, defensive end Bob Martin as linebacker with the New York Jets and middle guard John Lee as a linebacker with San Diego.

Of the other six 1976 NU draftees, three were cut earlier in fall drills. Among these were Larry Mushinskie and Rich Costanzo, both released by Dallas and Dean Gissler, cut by Washington.

The other three Huskers included Wonder Monds, now playing with Hamilton in the CFL; Brad Jenkins, who chose not to try pro football and Jim Burrow, on Green Bay's injured reserve list.

Marchibroda Back As Coach

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ted Marchibroda was rehired as coach of the Baltimore Colts Tuesday, ending a two-day confrontation between players and assistant coaches on one side and the National Football League club's top officials on the other.

In a brief statement to reporters at the team's St. Marys Seminary training camp, Marchibroda said he had been given "full control of football matters" on the Colts and that his contract, due to expire at the end of the 1977 season, had been extended another year.

"But the prime thing is not that Ted Marchibroda is back," the coach said. "It's that the team is united and ready to play football."

He refused to answer questions or elaborate on what he meant by full control. General Manager Joe Thomas also declined to elaborate on the matter.

Marchibroda, chosen NFL Coach of the Year last season after directing the Colts to a 104 record and the American Conference Eastern Division title, had announced his resignation Sunday because of what he said was interference in running the ball club on the field from Thomas and Robert Irsay, the team owner.

Kuhn Wins First Court Battle

CHICAGO (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr Tuesday dismissed three of seven counts in Charles O. Finley's $10.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and organized baseball and set Nov. 8 for trial on the other four counts.

The judge dismissed the antitrust charges filed by Finley, who had sought triple damages bringing the total amount to $10.5 million, and two counts under which Finley charged he had been denied due process of legal treatment and given unequal protection by Kuhn.

McGarr's action left three counts in which the commissioner is involved and one count against the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

The suit by Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, stemmed from Kuhn's decision in June that Finley could not sell pitcher Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox for $2 million. Kuhn voided the sale on the grounds it was not in the best interest of baseball.

Kuhn's attorneys were pleased with the dismissal fo the antitrust charge, pointing out it had reduced the total amount of damages which could be claimed as well as any chance of claiming attorneys' fees and court costs.

Nastase Overcomes Tanner In Marathon

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — They came to see Ilie Nastase at the U.S. Open Tuesday night and the "bad boy" of the international tennis circuit did not disappoint the capacity crowd, producing his full range of brilliant shotmaking to defeat Roscoe Tanner 7-5, 6-7, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 and claim a place in the quarterfinals.

Nastase, like all great actors, is at his best before an appreciative audience, and with Tanner fiercely contesting every point and taking the game to his opponent, the crowd saw a great tennis match.

Nastase kept his temper in check most of the time. He disputed a few calls, but did not make a production out of his protests. But he certainly let his trainer-business advisor, Mitch Oprea, know he was unhappy with the grip of his racket, especially during the third set when his concentration apparently wavered. After the fifth game of the fourth set he threw his racket to the ground after a line call went against him. The ball looked out.

But the match was not without controversy.

In the ninth game of the fifth set, after Tanner had saved three break points, Nastase finally broke through with a volley which apparently hit the line. Umpire Merle Erwin called the point in Nastase's favor, the players changed ends, but the crowd refused to be quiet.

Orantes, who seems to reserve his very best for the center court at the West Side Tennis Club, beat Stan Smith, the 1971 champion, 3-6, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6, 6-1, and Borg, the reigning Wimbledon, WCT and U.S. Pro Champion, defeated Brian Gottfried, 6-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

In the top half of the draw, it's Jimmy Connors against Jan Kodes, and Guillermo Vilas versus Eddie Dibbs.

Chris Evert, the defending champion and top seed, registered clay court victory No. 98 when she beat Briton Sue Barker, 6-1, 6-0, in the first match of the evening program. The match was over before many of the fans were in the seats.

In the women's bracket, the quarter-final pairings are: Evert-Natasha Chmyreva; Jausovec-Ruzici; Liess-Fromholtz, and Casals-Evonne Goolagong.

Women's Singles, Fourth Round

Mima Jausovec, Yugoslavia, def. Marcie Louie, San Francisco, 6-0, 1-0 (retired); Zenda Liess, Daytona Beach, Fla., def. Wendy Overton, Boca Raton, Fla., 6-3, 6-4; Dianne Fromholtz, Australia, def. Janet Newberry, La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-4; Virginia Ruzici, Romania, def. Beth Norton, Fairfield, Conn., 6-3, 6-3.

Links' Volleyball Assistant May Have To Return Favor

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Just before the first game is a tough time for the state's defending Class A volleyball team to lose an assistant coach, but Lincoln High coach Joyce Johnson doesn't mind doing double duty with both the reserves and varsity.

She figures her assistant, Cheryl Henry, may have to repay the favor before the season ends, and it may be a much more critical time.

Joyce and Cheryl began preparation for the defense of the state title alike in more ways than both having the same coaching philosophies and both being female. Both were pregnant.

Cheryl got her call Friday, delivering Michael David Henry, and leaving Joyce with two groups to coach, and her due date just two months away.

"I'm bushed from just running around," Johnson said after running the Links through practice Tuesday night prior to the season-opener Wednesday against Beatrice. "Cheryl wanted to try and be back coaching today, but it was just too much for her to hope for."

Johnson's expected time of arrival in mid-November causes a bit more of a problem since the state meet is scheduled for Nov. 12-13 at Scottsbluff. But she maintains if the Links are there, she'll be there if the baby hasn't arrived.

"If something should happen, Cheryl can take over easily," Johnson says. "We're very much alike in our coaching and she would do an excellent job."

In all probability, if the Links make a return trip to Scottsbluff, their experience alone should help them make a good showing.

The Links lost just two players with starting experience from last year's team and return seven letter-winners, including Super State selection Deb Van Dusen and Classs A all-stater Kathy Wilson.

The first hurdle to cross for Johnson and the Links is Beatrice, one of only three teams to handle Lincoln High last year in a 17-3 season.

"We lost to them in the first game last year, but learned an awful lot," Johnson said. "We're crossing our fingers this year. We'd like to make amends.

"The city is going to be tough, too," she added. "East should be a powerhouse. They had several girls attend an Olympic development camp. Southeast will be strong and Northeast is always improving. There're just a lot of good teams around.

"We just have to get our goals set and then work at it one game at a time," Johnson added. "The girls have been real good so far, but we can't start looking past anyone."

A barometer of the city strength is shown in Lincoln High's 1975 loss column with East and Southeast holding the only other conquests over the Links.

East coach Myron Oehlerking is hoping to get his Spartans back to the form maintained while winning the 1974 state title and he has eight solid returning letter-winners to do so.

East opened its season Tuesday night with Papillion.

Another Capital City school, Lincoln Pius X, is going to find out first hand just how tough Class B competition is.

Under the new Nebraska School Activities Association's plan for classifying schools, Pius' boys enrollment pulled the usually Class A girls down to B.

Pius got its first Class B test early with a Tuesday night game against last year's runnerup and perennial powerhouse Waverly.

"We're looking forward to an outstanding season in Class B this year," Pius coach Sandi Genrich said. "Two of our three losses last year were to Waverly and Class A champion Lincoln High (in the district finals)."

Genrich has seven returning letter-winners led by fourth-year players Kim Hermes and Anne Hain.

Southeast and state meet participant Northeast return the least number of letter-winners: the Knights have four and the Rockets three.

Morning Briefing

Nelson To Assist Milwaukee

Don Nelson
To Aid Costello

Don Nelson, who played on five NBA championship teams in 11 seasons with the Boston Celtics, was named assistant coach of the Milwaukee Bucks.

Nelson, 36, who retired as a player after 14 NBA seasons last spring, succeeds Jack McKinney, who resigned after two season under Bucks' head coach Larry Costello to become assistant coach of the Portland Trail Blazers.

"Larry and I both felt that Don was the guy who can help us develop the winning team that we're seeking," Bucks' general manager Wayne Embry said.

Football

Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan, reacting to a threat to his world of big-time football, warned university presidents they would have to accept full responsibility for its ruination if they base scholarships on the athlete's financial need.

"College football has to carry the burden of the entire college athletic program . . . the entire women's program," Schembechler said. "Now in the East they're legalizing gambling on pro football. College football will be next and then you'll have young kids under all kinds of pressure to cover point spreads when they're under enough pressure already.

"The Southeast Conference and the Big Eight are not going to go for any need program. That means they can come in and take our players — just like they did for five years. This time, we won't survive. I'm not knocking college presidents," he concluded. I'm just warning them. They can kill us. Or they can save us."

Interleague trading officially ends Wednesday and coach Chuck Knox of the Los Angeles Rams figures his team will be without O. J. Simpson. Knox said the Rams would consider a deal concerning draft choices but would not give up key players in a trade with the Buffalo Bills.

Senior Jeff Dankworth was named as UCLA's starting quarterback for Thursday night's football game against Arizona State.

Other Sports

Dodger catcher Steve Yeager, struck in the neck by the splintered "meat" half of a baseball bat, will be released from the hospital Wednesday and will rejoin his team in eight to 10 days, his doctor said.

The Soviet Union hockey team admitted its players are paid to play hockey in a subsidy from the government. Public relations director of the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation Victor Khotochkil said they are considered amateurs, even though he disclosed that one player is paid $400 a month with $25 a month rent, got a $9,000 car for $5,000 and gets a one month vacation in a Black Sea resort, all expenses paid. He says North American hockey players are considered pros, "because of how much they are paid, not because they are paid."

Mark Roth won his third professional bowling title when he beat Tom Baker, 264-193 for the championship in the $65,000 Columbia 300 Open bowling tournament.

A combined crowd of 30,702 watched the day and night sessions of the U.S. Open tennis championships at the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills, N.Y. The crowd is the largest one-day attendance in the history of tennis in the U.S.

Czechs Tie Team USA, 4-4

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Forward Josef Augusta scored the tying goal with 5:54 left in the game as world champion Czechoslovakia survived a four-goal Team USA outburst in the second period Tuesday night to escape with a 4-4 tie in a Canada Cup tournament game.

Augusta took a pass from Milan Novy in the slot and poked the puck past goalie Mike Curran to erase the chance of a Team USA upset of the Czechs.

Schultz Leads Burke Runners

Millard — Paul Schultz of Omaha Burke led his team to a successful defense Tuesday afternoon of the title it won last year in the Millard Invitational Cross-Country meet.

The Burke standout did it in fine style, clipping off a 13:47 time over the 2.6-mile course to better the record of 13:50 set last year by Burt Thompson of Lincoln Northeast.

The Omaha team was an easy winner, garnering 29 points to 64 for second place Lincoln High. Northeast finished third with 100 points.

Other point totals:

O. Bryan 102; Millard 108; Papillion 144; Plattsmouth 164; Ralston 198.

Individual top 10 results:

Solaita Returns To Edge Royals

By United Press International

A two-run triple by Chris Chambliss and Oscar Gamble's two-run homer lifted the New York Yankees Tuesday night to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Former Kansas City Royal Tony Solaita drove in two runs to back the three-hit pitching of Don Kirkwood and lead the Angels to a win over the slumping Royals, losers of eight of their last nine games,

Chambliss's triple came in the first inning after a one-out walk to Roy White and Thurman Munson's bunt single. Gamble capped the scoring with his 15th homer of the year off loser Luis Tiant, 17-11, in the fourth inning.

Starter and winner Dock Ellis, 15-6, held Boston scoreless until Carlton Fisk's 14th homer of the year, a solo shot in the seventh inning. Carl Yastrzemski homered in the ninth inning off reliever Dick Tidrow, for the final Boston run.

Rookie Pete Redfern and ace reliever Bill Campbell combined or a nine-hitter to give the Twins their victory over the Rangers.

Tony Muser's sacrifice fly and a single by Doug DeCinces with two out in the seventh inning brought in the tiebreaking runs that gave the Orioles a win over the Tigers and Mark Fidrych.

George Scott drove in four runs to pace a 20-hit Milwaukee attack and give the Brewers and rookie right-hander Gary Beare, making his first major league appearance, a victory over the Indians.

Cliff Johnson hit a two-run double and pinch-hitter Ken Boswell added a bases-loaded triple during an eight-run seventh inning rally which carried the Houston Astros to a 10-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night.

Fred Norman was breezing along with a 5-2 lead when he walked three of the first four batters he faced in the seventh.

Pedro Borbon relieved Norman and was greeted by Enos Cabell's infield hit that scored Jerry DaVanon with the first run of the inning. Cesar Cedeno followed with an RBI single and Johnson doubled across two more.

After an intentional walk to Jose Cruz filled the bases, Boswell, batting for DaVanon, smashed a three-run triple to center. A double by Roger Metzger sent Boswell home with the final run of the inning before pinch-hitter Leon Roberts, up for the second time in the inning, flied to left for the final out.

The Reds had taken the lead on homers by Johnny Bench and Tony Perez, the former coming in the fourth inning after a double by Ken Griffey.

Dave Freisleben's five-hit pitching for eight innings and two-run outbursts in the fifth and sixth innings led San Diego to victory and dropped the Dodgers eight games behind Cincinnati, the National League leader in the West.

Keith Hernandez drove in two runs, including the winner for the Cardinals, who clinched the victory with two runs in the ninth. St. Louis batted around and scored four runs to tie the score 4-4 in the sixth before Hernandez drove in the tiebreaker in the seventh.

Jon Matlack raised his record to 15-8 with an eight-hitter behind a 16-hit New York marrauding of the Cubs which included homers by Leo Foster and Mike Phillips. Foster drove in five runs with his homer and two singles.

Gary Matthews' two-run double capped a four-run outburst against Phil Niekro in the fourth as the Giants took a two-game lead over the Braves in their battle to escape the NL's Western Division cellar.

Glenn Anxiously Awaiting Doane Initial Contest

First Of A Series

By KEN HAMBLETON
State college Writer

You might figure that any coach, especially a new one, would like to have about three months at least before taking his team into a game.

But nobody is more anxious for his team's first contest than new Doane head coach Joe Glenn, who took over the Tiger reigns in July after Ray Best resigned.

"I think that the time is just about right for a game," said Glenn, a former assistant coach at Northern Arizona. "We've got to play somebody soon, because we're getting tired of looking at the same people day after day."

"We've had about 30 practices with the same people hitting each other and now they're anxious to pop someone else," Glenn said.

For the past 10 years the combined records of Al Papik (1966-71) and Best (1971-75) the Tigers are 74-16-5, a .777 winning percentage.

"I think about the success that Doane has had over the past years, but I don't worry about it," says Glenn, a Pius X and South Dakota graduate. "There's no changing the past records. All I can do is try my best to help keep up the Doane tradition of winning."

The Tigers open at Hastings and then host the Broncos later in the season. Both games will count towards the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title race.

"We're going to have to look at both games individually even though it's the same opponent," Glenn said.

Working with Glenn is a new defensive coordinator, Dave Stotlar, formerly of Slippery Rock in Pennsylvania.

"Sure, we've had to make a lot of adjustments coming into a new job with a new conference and everything," said Glenn. "But with the help of the seniors squad-captains and the rest of the upperclassmen on the team we seem to be making those adjustments smoothly."

Joe Glenn
New Doane Boss

Three of the captains are from the offense. Fullback Steve Schulz, guard Bradd Batt and split end Terry Housh. Ray Henning, an all-conference defensive back, represents the defense.

Glenn sees the offensive line, riddled by graduation losses, as a "good young one. And our backfield should be pretty strong."

Returning starting quarterback Gary Knapp, along with freshman Keith Honkala, the top prep passer in Massachusetts last year, are pressing for the helm duties with Schulz and tailback Ted Elm in the backfield.

Injuries have slowed development of the offensive line, but two converted defensive tackles, John Nelson, 6-5, 230-pound sophomore and Bob Ziemer, 6-3, 225-pound junior, may be the answer the Tigers are looking for.

At the guard positions Kent Mulkey, a freshman from Bellevue, and Steve Gottsch appear to have the starting positions and once fully recovered from injuries will be at full speed.

"We're a lot healthier this week than we were last week at the same time," said Glenn. "We had a miserable scrimmage last Saturday and I was really disappointed. But I think after a talk with the captains we seem to have gotten over the lack of enthusiasm and now we're ready to hit and win."

Tanner Talking Instead Of Managing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner can do all the talking he wants about his team being favored to win the American League West title but if he really expects a pennant, the A's had better start winning games.

Tanner seems to be spending more time trying to psyche out the Kansas City Royals, currently six games ahead of Oakland in the AL West, than he does managing. Tanner and owner Charles Finley, despised by Kansas City fans since he moved the team to Oakland in 1968, have made repeated statements about the pressure wearing on the Royals.

And while the pressure apparently is affecting the Royals, the A's are having trouble too.

Kansas City is only two games over .500 since the All-Star break. Going into Tuesday's game with California the Royals had lost seven of the last eight games. And since leaving town Aug. 19 for 14 road games, the Royals have struggled along with a 7-11 record.

Despite all of Kansas City's losing ways, the A's have been able to make up only two games on the Royals and there are only 27 games left. It appears the American League West title will go to the survivor, not the winner.

Despite that, Tanner made his most recent victory talk.

"We should be the favorites," Tanner said. "We're gonna be like that horse Silky Sullivan and pass them all in the stretch. This team is playing confidently and acting confidently."

Acting confidently, maybe, but playing that way, no. Otherwise, the A's already would have moved ahead of Kansas City.

The Royals' problems of late seem more self-imposed than from pennant race pressure. They are in their first extended slump of the season as far as hitting is concerned but fielding and pitching have remained strong. The spirit in the clubhouse has remained good and the players are loose. Tanner's statements seem to have caused few worries.

"That is just the way he is," said Royals' Manager Whitey Herzog. "He's a real optimistic guy. I don't think his players believe him all the time but he hopes they do so he keeps talking."

And, added centerfielder Amos Otis, "He's been talking ever since he managed Chicago but that's all he has been doing."

Tanner's comments are not discussed by the Royals' players. In fact, Freddie Patek was unaware of the latest statement until questioned by a reporter.

"I don't know what he says because I don't read the paper and nobody here discusses it," said the Royals' shortstop. "I guess that probably means no one cares if no one takes the time to even mention it."

The only thing Royals' catcher Buck Martinez can figure out is that the A's have been winning AL West titles for so long—five in a row—they are not able to understand the current situation.

"Maybe they just can't accept what is going to happen," Martinez said. "They have had so many good ballclubs and now we are on top. Maybe they just can't believe it but we can."

All words aside, there is no doubt the A's and Royals will decide the championship themselves.

Sgt. Mooney In Lincoln

U.S. Army Sgt. Charles Mooney, silver medalist and member of the U.S.A.'s winning boxing team in the Montreal Olympics this past summer will be in Lincoln Friday at 3:45 p.m. at the Easterday Recreation Center.

Sgt. Mooney, who is stationed in Ft. Bragg, N.C., will visit high schools in the Omaha, Council Bluffs and Lincoln area and will then visit the Nebraska State Fair Saturday and Sunday.

Sgt. Mooney was the first Army boxer to win a medal in the Olympics since 1968, when two men gained bronze medals.

The silver medalist blossomed in 1976 winning the Olympic boxing trials for the bantam-weight class and the inter-service bantamweight championships after taking up the sport four years ago while at Ft. Riley, Kan.

Trick Plays Can Pay Off

The 1976 college football season is only one week old, but already there is controversy about a trick play that helped North Carolina knock off mighty Miami of Ohio.

Of course, Nebraska fans haven't forgotten the "Bummeroosky" fake punt which provided the spark in the Huskers' 30-7 victory over Missouri last season.

Although it happened back in 1937, old-time Louisiana State fans recall the "Settin' Hen Play" which Vanderbilt pulled on the Tigers to beat them 7-6 in Nashville.

At the time, LSU was the nation's No. 1 college football team riding a 20-game victory streak. Vanderbilt was coached by a former Southern Methodist tutor named Ray Morrison, who liked wide-open football. One of his assistants was Henry Frnka, whose ancestors somewhere lost a vowel.

It was Frnka, who later was head coach at Tulsa and Tulane, who provided the play, one he had used as a high school coach in Texas.

The first time Vanderbilt got the ball (on about its own 40), the Commodores lined up for what looked to be a routine play. It didn't turn out that way.

Similar To Bummeroosky

The idea was similar to the Huskers' Bummeroosky play, differing only in that NU was in punt formation and successfully faked a sweep to the right while John O'Leary hid the ball until it was safe to take off around the left side.

Vandy snapped the ball and the Commodores moved to the left on an apparent sweep with LSU Bengals in frantic pursuit.

Then, suddenly, a lone figure — a Vanderbilt guard — was seen loping alone leisurely the 60 yards to a touchdown.

"We decided on the play beforehand," Frnka recently recalled. "We checked the legality with the officials and notified them when it was coming.

"The team lined up normally. The quarterback, Dutch Reinschmidt, took the ball from center, faked it to the running backs and then stuffed it under the legs of a guard named Greer Ricketson.

"Ricketson sat on it until the play moved to the wideleft side. Our boys faked LSU right out of its shoes. Ricketson ran untouched into the end zone. We called it the 'Settin' Hen Play.' "

Frnka said LSU never recovered from the shock and Vanderbilt went on to a 7-6 upset victory.

Trick plays can backfire, but when they work they give a team a big boost.

Jones Is Alive, Well And Grid Catalyst

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

As gruesome as it sounds, Scott Jones might not have been alive to savor Silver Creek's 14-8 football win over Polk last Friday night.

In all likelihood, if Jones had succumbed a month ago to a freak accident that might have killed someone 10 years older, Silver Creek wouldn't even have had a victory to savor.

Jones, a 6-1, 170-pound halfback-safety, was working in a Columbus junkyard one week before football practice started.

He was cutting half-inch sheet metal. The machine jammed. He tried to pull the sheet metal out with his hands.

Fifty pounds of it exploded out of the machine with ripping force, slamming underneath Jones' chin. The blast knocked him 10 feet into the air. He landed on his back and lay unconscious for 15 minutes.

"His dentist told him if he had been 10 years older, the jaw would have shattered, knocked his teeth into his brain and killed him," Silver Creek football coach Larry Rhoden said. "But he had awfully hard teeth for a young kid."

Fourteen teeth were broken. Jones is still undergoing root-canal work and capping.

Doctors advised Jones against playing last Friday night but condescended to his wishes and designed a special mouthpiece so that he could compete.

Compete he did. He made four unassisted tackles and was credited with 13 assists. He returned the second-half kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown to transform an 8-0 halftime lead into a 14-0 cushion.

He also recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass with 35 seconds remaining, returning it to the Polk 30-yard line to save the game.

For his courageous performance, Jones receives the season's first Athlete of the Week award from The Sunday Journal and Star.

"I've never seen such determination," Rhoden said. "He's a bright and intelligent kid who gives everything he has. He's good enough to play small college ball and he could sure use a scholarship."

Jones is a :10.4 sprinter in track. He missed almost three weeks of practice, joining the Silver Creek team three days before the game.

Rhoden returned to Class D Silver Creek to coach after spending four years at Class B Ashland. His team went into the opening game a decided underdog against Polk, the No 7 preseason rated Class D team.

Two weeks before the season opened, junior Ronnie Valasek suffered a baseball knee injury requiring surgery. The younger brother of Nebraska safety starter Larry Valasek was scheduled to be Silver Creek's starting quarterback this season.

"When we went down to Polk, I guess our people didn't realize the odds against them," Rhoden said. "I know Scott Jones didn't. You won't see a much more courageous performance than he gave."

Prep Athlete Of The Week

The Sunday Journal and Star has initiated a new concept, honoring Nebraska high school athletes.

Instead of honoring football players of the week only, the Sunday Journal and Star will honor Athletes of the Week this fall

Nominations should be addressed to: Randy York, Lincoln Journal and Star, P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, Ne. 68501.

Coaches Keep Busy As NFL Cuts Continue

From News Wires

Wide receiver Amhad Rashad, formerly Bobby Moore, headed a list of players traded or acquired on waivers Tuesday, while Elmo Wright and Roy Hilton were among the veterans cut as NFL teams cut down to 43-man rosters for the regular season

Rashad, the former Bobby Moore, was traded by the expansion Seattle Seahawks to the Minnesota Vikings for an undisclosed 1977 draft choice and "future considerations"—probably a player to be named later.

The five-year veteran will try to fill the shoes of departed All-Pro wide receiver John Gilliam, who played out his option and signed this year with the Atlanta Falcons.

Wright, a star receiver for New Orleans coach Hank Stram in their glory years at Kansas City, was cut by the Saints after earlier failing to make the New York Giants.

Hilton, a 12-year veteran defensive lineman, became expendable when the Atlanta Falcons acquired another veteran defensive lineman and former Baltimore Colts teammate, Jim Bailey, on waivers from Cleveland.

The two expansion teams, Seattle and Tampa Bay, were busy scavenging the castoffs from other teams

Seattle claimed the following players on waivers from other teams: Don Testerman, Ralph Nelson, Hugh McKinnis, Oliver Ross, Al Cowlings, Bob Newton and Greg Collins

Tampa Bay traded an undisclosed draft choice to Cincinnati for veteran running back Charlie Davis and paid the Bengals the $100 waiver price for rookie defensive back Danny Reece.

In other transactions, Chicago obtained veteran cornerback Terry Schmidt from the Saints on waivers, Cleveland received veteran safety Terry Brown from Seattle in return for rookie cornerback Ted Bachman and San Francisco got veteran defensive end Tony Cline from Oakland on waivers.

The notable veterans cut were: quarterback Jerry Tagge of Chicago, punter-placekicker Dave Green of Cincinnati and wide receiver Fair Hooker of Denver.

To make room for Bailey on their roster, the Falcons dropped the 12-year veteran Hilton, who had been picked up last year as a free agent. Bailey, a seven-year veteran, was drafted by Baltimore in 1970, then was traded to the Jets in 1975.

Mature Seniors Bolster Nebraska Lineup

What a difference one year makes. Just ask Nebraska's offensive tackle Bob Lingenfelter and linebacker Clete Pillen, senior starters in the 1976 Cornhusker football team.

When Nebraska started fall camp during August of 1975, the Cornhuskers were in a rebuilding year. Two of the question marks were the offensive line and linebacking positions, where a majority of the players were young and inexperienced.

The Huskers turned the rebuilding year into a co-Big 8 championship, a 10-2 overall mark, and a ninth place national ranking.

Two of the strongest areas of the team were the offensive line and linebackers, where Lingenfelter and Pillen matured rapidly and gained star status.

Now, with the season opener near and the Huskers ranked high nationally by many preseason predictors, each player can tell a distinct difference, both individually and teamwise, between the two years.

Lingenfelter remembers how he felt when he entered fall camp last year. "I was still trying to earn a first team spot over Rich Costanzo and I also had never started a varsity game," said the 6-7, 277-pound Lingenfelter. "Everyone was saying that the offensive line was young and inexperienced and I guess that even overall, as a team, we didn't really know what we could do."

But with the year's experience, the Nebraska offensive line is receiving praise and so is Lingenfelter, being tabbed by many preseason publications as an All-American.

"This year we know what we can do," he said. "Hopefully, we got all the mental mistakes and letdowns out of our system last year. We've got the physical ability and we're more ready this year. Now all we can do is play the best we can and take them one at a time."

Pillen's 1975 expierience was similar to Lingenfelter's. He also had never started a varsity game. In fact, the native of Monroe was a walkon at NU and earned himself a football scholarship. But by the end of the year, including his 27-tackle effort against Oklahoma, Pillen's play ranked with the top linebackers in the country.

"This year, I'm more secure and more sure of what I'm doing," he said. "I'm not making those early mistakes like I did and I can play with more enthusiasm. That doesn't mean I'm carefree, but I can do the job with more confidence."

Pillen, at 6-0 and 216 pounds, feels the Cornhuskers have something to prove following the 1975 season. "We are so much more enthused at the start of this year's camp," he said. "It hurt to end last year with those two losses and we'd like to take revenge on that fact."

Nebraska opens at Louisiana State Saturday night and both players realize the tough challenge at Baton Rouge. "LSU will have greater speed and be much stronger than last year," Pillen said. "Also, I'm sure they want to improve on their 4-7 record of last year, so it's important that we have a good game down there."

The Huskers beat LSU 10-7 in Lincoln last year to open the season and Lingenfelter expects another strong effort by the Tigers. "We've beaten them both times we've played and I know they'd like to change that," he said. "But another factor is that playing down there is like playing in our stadium. The fans really get into it and LSU is not used to losing opening games at home."

The Huskers held their last heavy workout in preparation for LSU Tuesday night at Seacrest Field. It was their second workout under the lights.

Guard Greg Jorgensen reinjured an ankle he had sprained earlier but coach Tom Osborne expects him to be able to make the trip. His backup players are Steve Lindquist and Stan Waldemore.

I-backs Dave Gillespie and Curtis Craig remained doubtful. Gillespie's pulled hamstring tightened up on him Monday and he didn't practice Tuesday night. Craig sprained an ankle in last Saturday's scrimmage.

That leaves the I-back spot in the hands of Monte Anthony, Richard Berns and Dale Zabrocki.

Wednesday's practice will be shortened and the Huskers will not run sprints after practice as they have been doing. Thursday's drill will be in sweat clothes.

Chicago Cuts Tagge

From News Wires

Former Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge Tuesday became the third Husker grad cut loose by the Chicago Bears in the last two days.

Tagge was waived along with two other players Tuesday. On Monday the Bears cut running back John O'Leary and offensive lineman Bob Newton, two other NU alumni.

Tagge was drafted No. 1 by the Green Bay Packers in 1972. He was the field general of the 1970-71 national champion Cornhusker grid teams.

Newton was picked up on waivers by the Seattle Seahawks from Chicago on Tuesday afternoon.

O'Leary had been a 1976 draft choice while Newton had played for six seasons with the Bears. Another ex-Cornhusker, offensive lineman Keith Wortman, was placed on the injured list by Green Bay

Also Monday, former UNO standout Marlin Briscoe was traded, moving from Detroit to New England for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Following Monday's cut it appeared four 1976 NU draftees have made it with their respective NFL clubs. Eleven Huskers were taken in the 1976 draft.

Apparently making the grade were center Rik Bonness as a linebacker with Oakland; running back Tony Davis with Cincinnati, defensive end Bob Martin as linebacker with the New York Jets and middle guard John Lee as a linebacker with San Diego.

Of the other six 1976 NU draftees, three were cut earlier in fall drills. Among these were Larry Mushinskie and Rich Costanzo, both released by Dallas and Dean Gissler, cut by Washington.

The other three Huskers included Wonder Monds, now playing with Hamilton in the CFL, Brad Jenkins, who chose not to try pro football and Jim Burrow, on Green Bay's injured reserve list.

Marchibroda Back As Coach

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ted Marchibroda was rehired as coach of the Baltimore Colts Tuesday, ending a two-day confrontation between players and assistant coaches on one side and the National Football League club's top officials on the other.

In a brief statement to reporters at the team's St. Marys Seminary training camp, Marchibroda said he had been given "full control of football matters" on the Colts and that his contract, due to expire at the end of the 1977 season, had been extended another year.

"But the prime thing is not that Ted Marchibroda is back," the coach said. "It's that the team is united and ready to play football."

He refused to answer questions or elaborate on what he meant by full control. General Manager Joe Thomas also declined to elaborate on the matter.

Marchibroda, chosen NFL Coach of the Year last season after directing the Colts to a 10-4 record and the American Conference Eastern Division title, had announced his resignation Sunday because of what he said was interference in running the ball club on the field from Thomas and Robert Irsay, the team owner.

Kuhn Wins First Court Battle

CHICAGO (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr Tuesday dismissed three of seven counts in Charles O. Finley's $10.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and organized baseball and set Nov. 8 for trial on the other four counts.

The judge dismissed the antitrust charges filed by Finley, who had sought triple damages bringing the total amount to $10.5 million, and two counts under which Finley charged he had been denied due process of legal treatment and given unequal protection by Kuhn.

McGarr's action left three counts in which the commissioner is involved and one count against the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

The suit by Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, stemmed from Kuhn's decision in June that Finley could not sell pitcher Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox for $2 million. Kuhn voided the sale on the grounds it was not in the best interest of baseball.

Kuhn's attorneys were pleased with the dismissal fo the antitrust charge, pointing out it had reduced the total amount of damages which could be claimed as well as any chance of claiming attorneys' fees and court costs.

Nastase Overcomes Tanner In Marathon

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — They came to see Ilie Nastase at the U.S. Open Tuesday night and the "bad boy" of the international tennis circuit did not disappoint the capacity crowd, producing his full range of brilliant shotmaking to defeat Roscoe Tanner 7-5, 6-7, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 and claim a place in the quarterfinals.

Nastase, like all great actors, is at his best before an appreciative audience, and with Tanner fiercely contesting every point and taking the game to his opponent, the crowd saw a great tennis match.

Nastase kept his temper in check most of the time. He disputed a few calls, but did not make a production out of his protests. But he certainly let his trainer-business advisor, Mitch Oprea, know he was unhappy with the grip of his racket, especially during the third set when his concentration apparently wavered. After the fifth game of the fourth set he threw his racket to the ground after a line call went against him. The ball looked out.

But the match was not without controversy.

In the ninth game of the fifth set, after Tanner had saved three break points, Nastase finally broke through with a volley which apparently hit the line. Umpire Merle Erwin called the point in Nastase's favor, the players changed ends, but the crowd refused to be quiet.

Orantes, who seems to reserve his very best for the center court at the West Side Tennis Club, beat Stan Smith, the 1971 champion, 3-6, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6, 6-1, and Borg, the reigning Wimbledon, WCT and U.S. Pro Champion, defeated Brian Gottfried, 6-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

In the top half of the draw, it's Jimmy Connors against Jan Kodes, and Guillermo Vilas versus Eddie Dibbs.

Chris Evert, the defending champion and top seed, registered clay court victory No 98 when she beat Briton Sue Barker, 6-1, 6-0, in the first match of the evening program. The match was over before many of the fans were in the seats.

In the women's bracket, the quarter-final pairings are Evert-Natasha Chmyreva; Jausovec-Ruzici, Liess-Fromholtz, and Casals-Evonne Goolagong

Links' Volleyball Assistant May Have To Return Favor

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Just before the first game is a tough time for the state's defending Class A volleyball team to lose an assistant coach, but Lincoln High coach Joyce Johnson doesn't mind doing double duty with both the reserves and varsity.

She figures her assistant, Cheryl Henry, may have to repay the favor before the season ends, and it may be a much more critical time.

Joyce and Cheryl began preparation for the defense of the state title alike in more ways than both having the same coaching philosophies and both being female. Both were pregnant.

Cheryl got her call Friday, delivering Michael David Henry, and leaving Joyce with two groups to coach, and her due date just two months away

"I'm bushed from just running around," Johnson said after running the Links through practice Tuesday night prior to the season-opener Wednesday against Beatrice. "Cheryl wanted to try and be back coaching today, but it was just too much for her to hope for."

Johnson's expected time of arrival in mid-November causes a bit more of a problem since the state meet is scheduled for Nov 12-13 at Scottsbluff. But she maintains if the Links are there, she'll be there if the baby hasn't arrived

"If something should happen, Cheryl can take over easily," Johnson says. "We're very much alike in our coaching and she would do an excellent job."

In all probability, if the Links make a return trip to Scottsbluff, their experience alone should help them make a good showing

The Links lost just two players with starting experience from last year's team and return seven letter-winners, including Super State selection Deb Van Dusen and Classs A all-stater Kathy Wilson

The first hurdle to cross for Johnson and the Links is Beatrice, one of only three teams to handle Lincoln High last year in a 17-3 season

"We lost to them in the first game last year, but learned an awful lot," Johnson said "We're crossing our fingers this year. We'd like to make amends

"The city is going to be tough, too," she added "East should be a powerhouse They had several girls attend an Olympic development camp. Southeast will be strong and Northeast is always improving There're just a lot of good teams around

"We just have to get our goals set and then work at it one game at a time." Johnson added "The girls have been real good so far but we can't start looking past anyone"

A barometer of the city strength is shown in Lincoln High's 1975 loss column with East and Southeast holding the only other conquests over the Links

East coach Myron Oehlerking is hoping to get his Spartans back to the form maintained while winning the 1974 state title and he has eight solid returning letter-winners to do so.

East opened its season Tuesday night with Papillion

Another Capital City school, Lincoln Pius X is going to find out first hand just how tough Class B competition is

Under the new Nebraska School Activities Association's plan for classifying schools, Pius' boys enrollment pulled the usually Class A girls down to B

Pius got its first Class B test early with a Tuesday night game against last year's runnerup and perennial powerhouse Waverly

"We're looking forward to an outstanding season in Class B this year," Pius coach Sandi Genrich said "Two of our three losses last year were to Waverly and Class A champion Lincoln High (in the district finals)"

Genrich has seven returning letter-winners led by fourth-year players Kim Hermes and Anne Ham

Southeast and state meet participant Northeast return the least number of letter-winners the Knights have four and the Rockets three

Credit Pirate Pitching For Cutting Phils' Lead

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh depends heavily on the counsel of his good friend and pitching coach Don Osborne during games, but off the field there's a surprising conflict of opinion regarding the Pirates' pitching staff.

Murtaugh says the pitchers "have done a complete changeabout" in the last few weeks, contributing heavily to the hot streak—12 wins in 13 games— that has moved the Pirates within 5½ games of slumping Philadelphia in the National League East. The teams meet again Wednesday night at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

But soft-spoken Osborne recoils at the suggestion his pitchers are doing anything that they haven't been doing all along.

"I don't think it is a turnaround. I think we've had good pitching all year," Osborne says. "It was spotty at times, but overall the full season has been very good."

Murtaugh's opinion stems from the fact that the Pirate starters have accumulated eight complete games during the 13-game binge, saving the arms of a bullpen that has lacked consistency.

"Any time you get that from a pitching staff you have to be pleased with it," he says.

But Osborne scoffs.

"Complete games is not a big item," he says. "It's just being on the winning side when the game is over. But our pitchers are all in good physical condition and there's no sore arms on the ballclub.

"And at this time of the year, all the pitchers have better control. They're getting their stuff over better. They don't have to throw as many pitches when they get it over, and I think it'll continue."

Perhaps Murtaugh's and Osborne's apparent disagreement is just a matter of semantics because Osborne allows that the pitchers have had "two or three weeks of real outstanding pitching" recently.

While the Pirate pitchers — and their teammates — have come into their own in the last days of summer, the Phillies' batters, on a rampage early in the season, have been hitting little more than September air these days.

"We're still swinging the bats the same," says Phils Manager Danny Ozark, "but the results are different. When you're not hitting, everything else gets magnified."

In Monday's losses to the Pirates, the Phils committed four errors. Such sloppy defense and baserunning blunders have contributed, along with the weak hitting, to their 10 losses in the last 11 games.

"I wouldn't say the Phillies are choking," says Cincinnati scout Ray Shore, "but they are pressing. They're trying so damn hard to shake this thing that every one of them is trying to do it by himself. When that starts happening, you start swinging at bad pitches."

"We'll be all right," says second baseman Dave Cash. "At least I believe we will."

But while the Pirates took Tuesday off, the Phillies returned to Three Rivers for an extra workout before Wednesday night's game. Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton goes against either left-hander Jim Rooker or right-hander Doc Medich.

"If we'd have won two," Ozark says, "I wouldn't have scheduled a workout; I'd have gone and played golf."

Still with 26 games left and a 5½-game lead, the Phillies' outlook isn't all that dismal.

Big 10 Hit By Illness

CHICAGO (UPI) — A strange virus has affected the football squads at both Purdue and Northwestern, Coaches Alex Agase and Johnny Pont reported Tuesday, but neither expected the affliction to affect their Saturday contest in which both teams will open their 1976 seasons.

"About 20 of our players have had it," Agase said, "and it lasts more than 24 hours. It isn't flu, but it's sort of like it and like bronchitis, too. It has hit about 15 per cent of our squad and it hasn't stopped."

NU's Sevigne Optimistic

With only one change in the schedule, Nebraska's cross country team looks to improve last year's 0-5 dual record.

Iowa State, replacing the University of Wisconsin, is NU's only new opponent. The Huskers also must face Kansas State, last year's Big Eight champions.

Not one to dwell on the past, head coach Frank Sevigne is enthusiastic about the coming season. "We're a vastly improved team over last year," he said. "We should win our share of the meets."

He adds that his team has "good balance this year with three or four good people running — such as Keith Whitaker, Matt Reckmeyer, and Steve Allen."

Allen is a transfer student from the University of Texas-El Paso who sat out last season. "He should press as one of the top team members. His potential lies in Cross Country and longer distances," said assistant Coach Dan Morran.

Jones Nears Lofty Mark

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Since Randy Jones passed the 20-victory barrier, he is a a prime candidate to join an elite group of 17 pitchers who have won 25 or more games in a season since World War II.

"I've still got enough starting opportunities to win 30 games," says Jones, a Cy Young Award candidate. "But I've still got to be taking them one at a time and not get too far ahead on my goals. The obvious goal, of course, is to win as many as possible."

If Jones joins that elite group of 17, he would be accomplishing a multitude of things, including:

—Becoming only the second pitcher for a National League expansion club to win 25 games or more (Tom Seaver of the Mets won 25 in 1969).

—Under the National League's present alignment, becoming the first Western Division pitcher ever to win 25 or more.

—Becoming the first National Leaguer to win 25 or more since Steve Carlton of Philadelphia in 1972, and only the sixth in the last 10 years.

Since World War II the 25-victories-or-more feat has been accomplished 22 times by 17 different pitchers. No league has dominated, either, as 11 of the pitchers were in each league.

Final Husker Volleyball Roster Set

University of Nebraska volleyball coach Pat Sullivan made her final player cuts and announced the members of the team for the 1976-77 season. Sullivan also announced an improved 1976-77 schedule.

Sullivan, who coached last year's team to an unprecedented 37-8 record and an invitation to the AIAW National Championships in Princeton, N.J., said she has a better squad than she had last year.

"I am really excited about the talents of this group, although some of the players need to work on various skills, they basically look very strong," she said.

Sullivan also said she ws looking forward to this season's highly competitive schedule. "This is what Nebraska teams have been waiting for. Competition against teams like UCLA can't help but improve our program. It's a rough schedule, but it is one that will provide our women with the kind of competition they need."

The Lady Huskers will begin their schedule on Sept. 18 when the varsity and junior varsity teams play Drake University and UNO in the Nebraska Coliseum. Game time will be 10:30 a.m.

Solaita Returns To Edge Royals

By United Press International

A two-run triple by Chris Chambliss and Oscar Gamble's two-run homer lifted the New York Yankees Tuesday night to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox

Former Kansas City Royal Tony Solaita drove in two runs to back the three-hit pitching of Don Kirkwood and lead the Angels to a win over the slumping Royals, losers of eight of their last nine games,

Chambliss's triple came in the first inning after a one-out walk to Roy White and Thurman Munson's bunt single Gamble capped the scoring with his 15th homer of the year off loser Luis Tiant, 17-11, in the fourth inning

Starter and winner Dock Ellis, 15-6, held Boston scoreless until Carlton Fisk's 14th homer of the year, a solo shot in the seventh inning Carl Yastrzemski homered in the ninth inning off reliever Dick Tidrow, for the final Boston run

Rookie Pete Redfern and ace reliever Bill Campbell combined or a nine-hitter to give the Twins their victory over the Rangers

Tony Muser's sacrifice fly and a single by Doug DeCinces with two out in the seventh inning brought in the tiebreaking runs that gave the Orioles a win over the Tigers and Mark Fidrych

George Scott drove in four runs to pace a 20-hit Milwaukee attack and give the Brewers and rookie right-hander Gary Beare, making his first major league appearance, a victory over the Indians

Cliff Johnson hit a two-run double and pinch-hitter Ken Boswell added a bases-loaded triple during an eight-run seventh inning rally which carried the Houston Astros to a 10-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night

Fred Norman was breezing along with a 5-2 lead when he walked three of the first four batters he faced in the seventh

Pedro Borbon relieved Norman and was greeted by Enos Cabell's infield hit that scored Jerry DaVanon with the first run of the inning Cesar Cedeno followed with an RBI single and Johnson doubled across two more

After an intentional walk to Jose Cruz filled the bases, Boswell, batting for DaVanon, smashed a three-run triple to center A double by Roger Metzger sent Boswell home with the final run of the inning before pinch-hitter Leon Roberts, up for the second time in the inning, flied to left for the final out

The Reds had taken the lead on homers by Johnny Bench and Tony Perez the former coming in the fourth inning after a double by Ken Griffey

Dave Freisleben's five-hit pitching for eight innings and two-run outbursts in the fifth and sixth innings led San Diego to victory and dropped the Dodgers eight games behind Cincinnati, the National League leader in the West

Keith Hernandez drove in two runs, including the winner for the Cardinals who clinched the victory with two runs in the ninth St Louis batted around and scored four runs to tie the score 4-4 in the sixth before Hernandez drove in the tiebreaker in the seventh

Jon Matlack raised his record to 15-8 with an eight-hitter behind a 16-hit New York marrauding of the Cubs which included homers by Leo Foster and Mike Phillips Foster drove in five runs with his homer and two singles

Gary Matthews' two-run double capped a four-run outburst against Phil Niekro in the fourth as the Giants took a two-game lead over the Braves in their battle to escape the NL s Western Division cellar

Fashion Focus Of Betty Ford Rates Accolade

Washington (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford has had a fashion scholarship established in her honor.

The Washington Fashion Group, a local branch of an international noncommercial association of women engaged in fashion fields, announced Tuesday "The Betty Ford Fashion Scholarships" will help pay tuition for qualified students in fashion education.

Margy Grigg, regional director of the group, said the scholarships were named for Mrs. Ford because she "has focused great attention on a great American fashion industry by spotlighting its talented designers through her wearing of American clothes in all price ranges."

Ford Demands Viets Give Full Accounting

Washington (UPI) — President Ford demanded Tuesday that North Vietnam provide a full accounting of Americans missing in action in Southeast Asia, saying release of only a partial list was "callous and cruel."

The President said there is no chance of the two countries achieving diplomatic relations until there is a full report on the missing men.

Appearing in the White House press room, Ford announced that the American Embassy in Paris has contacted North Vietnamese representatives at his direction, and informed them "that we expect that the U.S. will be provided with a full accounting without further delay of the Americans missing in Vietnam."

On Monday, the Vietnamese turned over to the American Embassy a list of 12 pilots killed during the Vietnam War.

"None of us can be satisfied by this limited action by the Vietnamese," the President said.

"What they have done is to release information on only a dozen men. They still have information on hundreds more. For wives, parents and friends of the men still missing, the anxiety and the uncertainty continue."

"Speaking on behalf of all Americans," Ford said, "I welcome the fact that the Vietnamese have finally begun to keep their promise to provide information on our men missing in action in Southeast Asia.

"While the reports on these 12 men were grim, it at least resolved their status and remove the crushing burden of anxiety and uncertainty from their relatives and loved ones."

"It is callous and cruel to exploit human suffering in the hope of diplomatic advantage," Ford said. "The Vietnamese have an obligation to provide a full accounting of all Americans missing in action."

"I call upon them to do so without further delay," he said. "Normalization of relations cannot take place until Vietnam accounts for all our men missing in action."

Vietnam's gesture in releasing the names of the 12 pilots was viewed by diplomats as a bid for affirmative action by the United States when Vietnam seeks admission to the United Nations later this month.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters that the U.S. position would not be disclosed until the Security Council meets on the subject of Vietnam membership.

Glenn Anxiously Awaiting Doane Initial Contest

First Of A Series

By KEN HAMBLETON
State college Writer

Joe Glenn
New Doane Boss

You might figure that any coach, especially a new one, would like to have about three months at least before taking his team into a game

But nobody is more anxious for his team s first contest than new Doane head coach Joe Glenn, who took over the Tiger reigns in July after Ray Best resigned

"I think that the time is just about right for a game," said Glenn, a former assistant coach at Northern Arizona "We've got to play somebody soon because we re getting tired of looking at the same people day after day "

' We ve had about 30 practices with the same people hitting each other and now they're anxious to pop someone else," Glenn said

For the past 10 years the combined records of Al Papik (1966-71) and Best (1971-75) the Tigers are 74-16-5, a 777 winning percentage

"I think about the success that Doane has had over the past years, but I don't worry about it says Glenn, a Pius X and South Dakota graduate ' There s no changing the past records All I can do is try my best to help keep up the Doane tradition of winning "

The Tigers open at Hastings and then host the Broncos later in the season Both games will count towards the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title race '

"We re going to have to look at both games individually even though it s the same opponent " Glenn said

Working with Glenn is a new defensive coordinator, Dave Stotlar, formerly of Slippery Rock in Pennsylvania

"Sure, we ve had to make a lot of adjustments coming into a new job with a new conference and everything, said Glenn "But with the help of the seniors squad-captains and the rest of the upperclassmen on the team we seem to be making those adjustments smoothly "

Three of the captains are from the offense Fullback Steve Schulz guard Bradd Batt and split end Terry Housh Ray Henning an all-conference defensive back represents the defense

Glenn sees the offensive line, riddled by graduation losses, as a "good young one And our backfield should be pretty strong "

Returning starting quarterback Gary Knapp, along with freshman Keith Honkala, the top prep passer in Massachusetts last year, are pressing for the helm duties with Schulz and tailback Ted Elm in the backfield

Injuries have slowed development of the offensive line, but two converted defensive tackles, John Nelson, 6-5, 230-pound sophomore and Bob Ziemer, 6-3, 225-pound junior, may be the answer the Tigers are looking for

At the guard positions Kent Mulkey, a freshman from Bellevue, and Steve Gottsch appear to have the starting positions and once fully recovered from injuries will be at full speed

'We re a lot healthier this week than we were last week at the same time, ' said Glenn ' We had a miserable scrimmage last Saturday and I was really disappointed But I think after a talk with the captains we seem to have gotten over the lack of enthusiasm and now we're ready to hit and win "

Tanner Talking Instead Of Managing

KANSAS CITY, Mo (UPI) — Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner can do all the talking he wants about his team being favored to win the American League West title but if he really expects a pennant, the A's had better start winning games

Tanner seems to be spending more time trying to psyche out the Kansas City Royals, currently six games ahead of Oakland in the AL West, than he does managing Tanner and owner Charles Finley, despised by Kansas City fans since he moved the team to Oakland in 1968, have made repeated statements about the pressure wearing on the Royals

Kansas City is only two games over 500 since the All-Star break Going into Tuesday's game with California the Royals had lost seven of the last eight games And since leaving town Aug 19 for 14 road games, the Royals have struggled along with a 7-11 record

Despite all of Kansas City's losing ways the A s have been able to make up only two games on the Royals and there are only 27 games left It appears the American League West title will go to the survivor not the winner

Despite that, Tanner made his most recent victory talk

"We should be the favorites ' Tanner said "We re gonna be like that horse Silky Sullivan and pass them all in the stretch This team is playing confidently and acting confidently '

Acting confidently, maybe, but playing that way, no Otherwise, the A s already would have moved ahead of Kansas City

The Royals' problems of late seem more self-imposed than from pennant race pressure They are in their first extended slump of the season as far as hitting is concerned but fielding and pitching have remained strong The spirit in the clubhouse has remained good and the players are loose Tanner s statements seem to have caused few worries

That is just the way he is, said Royals Manager Whitey Herzog He s a real optimistic guy I don t think his players believe him all the time but he hopes they do so he keeps talking

And added centerfielder Amos Otis ' He s been talking ever since he managed Chicago but that s all he has been doing '

Tanner s comments are not discussed by the Royals' players In fact, Freddie Patek was unaware of the latest statement until questioned by a reporter

I don t know what he says because I don't read the paper and nobody here discusses it ' said the Royals shortstop "I guess that probably means no one cares if no one takes the time to even mention it

The only thing Royals catcher Buck Martinez can figure out is that the A s have been winning AL West titles for so long—five in a row—they are not able to understand the current situation

Maybe they just can t accept what is going to happen Martinez said They have had so many good ballclubs and now we are on top Maybe they just can t believe it but we can '

All words aside there is no doubt the A s and Royals will decide the championship themselves

Credit Pirate Pitching For Cutting Phils' Lead

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh depends heavily on the counsel of his good friend and pitching coach Don Osborne during games, but off the field there's a surprising conflict of opinion regarding the Pirates' pitching staff.

Murtaugh says the pitchers "have done a complete changeabout" in the last few weeks, contributing heavily to the hot streak—12 wins in 13 games— that has moved the Pirates within 5½ games of slumping Philadelphia in the National League East. The teams meet again Wednesday night at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

But soft-spoken Osborne recoils at the suggestion his pitchers are doing anything that they haven't been doing all along.

"I don't think it is a turnaround. I think we've had good pitching all year," Osborne says. "It was spotty at times, but overall the full season has been very good."

Murtaugh's opinion stems from the fact that the Pirate starters have accumulated eight complete games during the 13-game binge, saving the arms of a bullpen that has lacked consistency.

"Any time you get that from a pitching staff you have to be pleased with it," he says.

But Osborne scoffs.

"Complete games is not a big item," he says. "It's just being on the winning side when the game is over. But our pitchers are all in good physical condition and there's no sore arms on the ballclub.

"And at this time of the year, all the pitchers have better control. They're getting their stuff over better. They don't have to throw as many pitches when they get it over, and I think it'll continue."

Perhaps Murtaugh's and Osborne's apparent disagreement is just a matter of semantics because Osborne allows that the pitchers have had "two or three weeks of real outstanding pitching" recently.

While the Pirate pitchers — and their teammates — have come into their own in the last days of summer, the Phillies' batters, on a rampage early in the season, have been hitting little more than September air these days.

"We're still swinging the bats the same," says Phils Manager Danny Ozark, "but the results are different. When you're not hitting, everything else gets magnified."

In Monday's losses to the Pirates, the Phils committed four errors. Such sloppy defense and baserunning blunders have contributed, along with the weak hitting, to their 10 losses in the last 11 games.

"I wouldn't say the Phillies are choking," says Cincinnati scout Ray Shore, "but they are pressing. They're trying so damn hard to shake this thing that every one of them is trying to do it by himself. When that starts happening, you start swinging at bad pitches."

"We'll be all right," says second baseman Dave Cash. "At least I believe we will."

But while the Pirates took Tuesday off, the Phillies returned to Three Rivers for an extra workout before Wednesday night's game. Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton goes against either left-hander Jim Rooker or right-hander Doc Medich.

"If we'd have won two," Ozark says, "I wouldn't have scheduled a workout; I'd have gone and played golf."

Still with 26 games left and a 5½-game lead, the Phillies' outlook isn't all that dismal.

Big 10 Hit By Illness

CHICAGO (UPI) — A strange virus has affected the football squads at both Purdue and Northwestern, Coaches Alex Agase and Johnny Pont reported Tuesday, but neither expected the affliction to affect their Saturday contest in which both teams will open their 1976 seasons.

"About 20 of our players have had it," Agase said, "and it lasts more than 24 hours. It isn't flu, but it's sort of like it and like bronchitis, too. It has hit about 15 per cent of our squad and it hasn't stopped."

NU's Sevigne Optimistic

With only one change in the schedule, Nebraska's cross country team looks to improve last year's 0-5 dual record.

Iowa State, replacing the University of Wisconsin, is NU's only new opponent The Huskers also must face Kansas State, last year's Big Eight champions.

Not one to dwell on the past, head coach Frank Sevigne is enthusiastic about the coming season. "We're a vastly improved team over last year," he said. "We should win our share of the meets."

He adds that his team has "good balance this year with three or four good people running — such as Keith Whitaker, Matt Reckmeyer, and Steve Allen."

Allen is a transfer student from the University of Texas-El Paso who sat out last season. "He should press as one of the top team members. His potential lies in Cross Country and longer distances," said assistant Coach Dan Morran.

Final Husker Volleyball Roster Set

University of Nebraska volleyball coach Pat Sullivan made her final player cuts and announced the members of the team for the 1976-77 season. Sullivan also announced an improved 1976-77 schedule.

Sullivan, who coached last year's team to an unprecedented 37-8 record and an invitation to the AIAW National Championships in Princeton, N.J., said she has a better squad than she had last year.

"I am really excited about the talents of this group, although some of the players need to work on various skills, they basically look very strong," she said.

Sullivan also said she ws looking forward to this season's highly competitive schedule. "This is what Nebraska teams have been waiting for. Competition against teams like UCLA can't help but improve our program. It's a rough schedule, but it is one that will provide our women with the kind of competition they need."

The Lady Huskers will begin their schedule on Sept. 18 when the varsity and junior varsity teams play Drake University and UNO in the Nebraska Coliseum. Game time will be 10:30 a.m.

Jones Nears Lofty Mark

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Since Randy Jones passed the 20-victory barrier, he is a a prime candidate to join an elite group of 17 pitchers who have won 25 or more games in a season since World War II.

"I've still got enough starting opportunities to win 30 games," says Jones, a Cy Young Award candidate. "But I've still got to be taking them one at a time and not get too far ahead on my goals. The obvious goal, of course, is to win as many as possible."

If Jones joins that elite group of 17, he would be accomplishing a multitude of things, including:

—Becoming only the second pitcher for a National League expansion club to win 25 games or more (Tom Seaver of the Mets won 25 in 1969).

—Under the National League's present alignment, becoming the first Western Division pitcher ever to win 25 or more.

—Becoming the first National Leaguer to win 25 or more since Steve Carlton of Philadelphia in 1972, and only the sixth in the last 10 years.

Since World War II the 25-victories-or-more feat has been accomplished 22 times by 17 different pitchers. No league has dominated, either, as 11 of the pitchers were in each league.

Prize Money Is Sought By Top Skateboarders

©The New York Times

Long Beach, Calif. — The sparsely filled seats of the Long Beach Arena, with its makeshift plywood hill, didn't look like "never-never land." In fact, the main floor of the arena, which had been roped off with plastic blue and white flags, looked rather amateurish for what was billed as the World Professional Skateboard Championship.

It certainly was the first time anyone had put up $20,000 in prize money for a skateboarding contest. For 24-year-old Skitch Hitchcock of Laguna Niguel, Calif., it was a dream come true.

Hitchcock was addicted to skateboarding as a youngster during the first skateboarding craze in the '60s and never stopped. The early skateboards were wobbly boards with steel wheels which would barely traverse the common sidewalk.

Improvements came slowly and that is probably why the fad died off for nearly 10 years before its recent rejuvenation. Hitchcock, who was skating every day then, remembered the short boards with the composite clay wheels. There were no sponsors in those days, he recalled. "I was burning out clay wheels once every three days; it got to be pretty expensive; it was costing me about $10 a week."

But the skateboard fad has surged recently with the development of wheels made from tough polyurethane and boards of fiberglass. So two years ago Hitchcock turned professional and signed a contract to "ride" for a major manufacturer of the new boards.

The new skateboards can be raced down hills at 60 miles an hour and ridden down the walls of giant drainage pipes. With a second lease on life, the skateboard companies are sending "teams" on nationwide tours to push skateboarding as the new family sport.

Now skateboarding has joined surfing and rock music as part of the youth leisure cult in California. So it is not surprising that a rock concert producer should be promoting a skateboarding championship. Steve Wolf of Wolf and Rissmiller Concerts first became aware of the skateboarding craze when trying to book rock concerts at West Coast arenas only to find the dates taken up by surfing and skateboarding movies. Research into an attendance figures at those movies eventually convinced the producers that skateboarding was a booming business and needed organizing.

Hoping to eventually promote a series of events, Wolf and Rissmiller found a sponsor for the $20,000 prize money and then, the concert company said, it invested $50,000 to $60,000 of its own money to advertise and organize the first World Professional Skateboard Championship. To add flavor to the event, the $4 admission ticket included a free rock concert each night.

The biggest impetus for establishing skateboarding as a sport comes from the skate board manufacturers, who sign the skateboarder — some to contracts of up to $30,000 — and send them around the country to give skateboard demonstrations, on local TV programs and at rock concerts.

Rick Smith, who put up the $20,000 prize money for the latest skateboard championship, does not think that sponsoring a skateboarding championship at $20,000 a crack or paying between $20,000 and $30,000 for a top skater to endorse, advertise and promote his skateboards is unreasonable. He said that his company had sold $6 million worth of skateboards in the last 10 months.

Russ "Grandpa" Howell, a 27-year-old physical education major from California State University at Long Beach, had chosen to remain unsigned prior to the championship because one of the meet's main functions was to provide commercial opportunities and endorsements for particular manufacturers. Given the endorsements for particular skateboard products, the winner of the meet could get up to $50,000 on his signature alone.

"The thing is, in competition they could be giving away lollipops at this meet and it would have the same importance as if they were giving away thousands and thousands of dollars," Howell said between signing autographs.

One of the competing skateboarders was John "Woody" Woodstock of Oyster Bay, Long Island. He paid his own way out to California to find out what the competition was going to be like, and whether he could become a professional skateboarder. He found the competition much tougher than back East, but he placed in the first five in the barrel jump by hurtling 16 barrels on his board.

Woodstock, an 18-year-old blond, looked much like his West Coast counterparts except for a heavy New York accent. He said that the problem with skateboarding in the eastern cities was that it was mainly done in the streets.

For Skitch Hickcock, the weekend meet could have lasted forever. As he signed an autograph for a 15-year-old groupie, Hitchcock said, "My surfing friends got married 20 years ago and they aren't kids anymore. You get married and you can't skateboard. I got to be a kid forever, Peter Pan."

Nuclear Waste Handling Called 'Cause For Concern' In Report

Washington (UPI) — Government management of hazardous nuclear waste is faulty and "a cause for concern," a report prepared for the U.S. Energy Research Agency warned Tuesday.

The report urged more administrative and policy reforms, saying many problems can be solved but that the last chance for such corrective action may be at hand.

Radioactive wastes that must be sealed away from mankind and the environment for thousands or even millions of years already are "an unavoidable consequence of our nuclear age," the report said.

It said approximately half a million tons of highly radioactive waste and millions of cubic feet of less dangerous "low level" atomic debris — all but a fraction of it produced during three decades of nuclear weapon programs — must be dealt with immediately.

The report was prepared for the Energy Research and Development Administration by Mason Willrich, a University of Virginia law professor who worked on it this summer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's energy laboratory. A Sept. 1 draft of the report was obtained and released Tuesday by consumer activist Ralph Nader.

"We are concerned about radioactive waste because it is a potential radiological hazard to man and other and forms of life," the report said.

"If a human being is exposed to excessive amounts of radiation, depending on the circumstances, the harmful effects may be immediate death, life shortened by radiation-induced cancer, radiation-induced genetic change which may affect subsequent generations, or temporary ill health followed by complete recovery."

That, the report said, is why it is so important to find effective ways of storing such wastes as plutonium, which loses only half its radioactivity in 24,000 years.

Girl Believed Arsonist In 17 Fires

NEW YORK (AP) — A 13-year-old girl that authorities say is mentally disturbed was held Tuesday as the phantom firebug who set 17 small blazes in mid-town department stores, apparently using nothing more complicated than a cigarette lighter or matches.

The girl, arrested Monday night after a small fire on the seventh floor of Macy's on Herald Square, was charged with juvenile delinquency. She was held at a youth center for a later appearance in Family Court, her name withheld because of her age.

The fires were a sequel to five fire bombings during the Democratic National Convention in July. The terrorist Armed Forces for the Liberation of Puerto Rico took responsibility for these, calling them a protest against Puerto Rican participation in the convention.

Authorities said there was no political motivation behind the arson attributed to the teenager. The fires were set in clothing racks and the mattress of a bedroom display.

The youngster was seized after a blaze broke out in Macy's fabric section about 8:20 p.m. Monday, shortly before the store closed after Labor Day shopping. A security guard remembered seeing her in the aftermath of fires there last month and detained her as she was attempting to leave the store.

Youths Attempt To Vandalize Marilyn's Crypt

Los Angeles (AP) — Three youths apparently attempted to pry open the crypt containing the remains of actress Marilyn Monroe, police said Tuesday.

A seam on the marble front of the crypt in Westwood Memorial Park was chipped with a tire iron, officers said.

Scott Jones, director of the cemetery, said the youths fled after they were seen Monday by a family visiting a nearby crypt.

Three of the six roses in a vase attached to the front were missing, Jones said. Joe DiMaggio, a former husband of Miss Monroe, sends roses three times a week, he said.

Jones said vandals have attempted to break into the crypt several times in the past three years.

Miss Monroe died of an overdose of sleeping pills on Aug. 5, 1962.

Fashion Focus Of Betty Ford Rates Accolade

Washington (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford has had a fashion scholarship established in her honor.

The Washington Fashion Group, a local branch of an international noncommercial association of women engaged in fashion fields, announced Tuesday "The Betty Ford Fashion Scholarships" will help pay tuition for qualified students in fashion education.

Margy Grigg, regional director of the group, said the scholarships were named for Mrs. Ford because she "has focused great attention on a great American fashion industry by spotlighting its talented designers through her wearing of American clothes in all price ranges."

Ford Demands Viets Give Full Accounting

Washington (UPI) — President Ford demanded Tuesday that North Vietnam provide a full accounting of Americans missing in action in Southeast Asia, saying release of only a partial list was "callous and cruel."

The President said there is no chance of the two countries achieving diplomatic relations until there is a full report on the missing men.

Appearing in the White House press room, Ford announced that the American Embassy in Paris has contacted North Vietnamese representatives at his direction, and informed them "that we expect that the U.S. will be provided with a full accounting without further delay of the Americans missing in Vietnam."

On Monday, the Vietnamese turned over to the American Embassy a list of 12 pilots killed during the Vietnam War.

"None of us can be satisfied by this limited action by the Vietnamese," the President said.

"What they have done is to release information on only a dozen men. They still have information on hundreds more. For wives, parents and friends of the men still missing, the anxiety and the uncertainty continue."

"Speaking on behalf of all Americans," Ford said, "I welcome the fact that the Vietnamese have finally begun to keep their promise to provide information on our men missing in action in Southeast Asia.

"While the reports on these 12 men were grim, it at least resolved their status and remove the crushing burden of anxiety and uncertainty from their relatives and loved ones."

"It is callous and cruel to exploit human suffering in the hope of diplomatic advantage," Ford said. "The Vietnamese have an obligation to provide a full accounting of all Americans missing in action."

"I call upon them to do so without further delay," he said. "Normalization of relations cannot take place until Vietnam accounts for all our men missing in action."

Vietnam's gesture in releasing the names of the 12 pilots was viewed by diplomats as a bid for affirmative action by the United States when Vietnam seeks admission to the United Nations later this month.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters that the U.S. position would not be disclosed until the Security Council meets on the subject of Vietnam membership.

Police Man Murder Exhibit

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln police admit that their special booth at the Nebraska State Fair hasn't solved one of the city's most baffling murder mysteries, but it has had a positive effect.

The booth, set up to attract attention to the August 30, 1975, murder of two Lincoln boys, Jon Simpson and Jacob Surber, has been manned 12 hours a day by police detectives, including Ken Ideen who has been working on the case for more than a year.

"We've had a lot of people stop and ask about the killings . . . some have offered information, but nothing real substantial has turned up yet," Ideen said.

Many of the curious have been carnival workers, some who were on the midway last year and want to know more about what happened, he explained.

Color pictures of the two boys, said to be inseparable playmates, are on display in the booth, along with a map showing where their bodies were found. Also included is a sketch of a man known as David Dye, a transient whom police think is a prime suspect in the murders of the boys.

"We've seen a lot of parents squeeze their kids hands when they leave the booth," Ideen said. "An occasional mother will bend over and kiss her child," he added.

Noting an overall change in attitude of people attending the fair, Ideen said that fewer young children have been unattended in the record crowds that have jammed the midway this year.

"We had to do this to remind people of the seriousness of the crime," Ideen said, adding that, "If we can keep this from happening again, we've done some good."

Orchard Spraying Rig Dates To 1910

By HARRY JACKSON
Star Staff Writer

Fairgoers can get a taste of the old and the new in orchard farming at an interesting exhibit in the Agricultural Hall.

In the center of the building is an old tree spraying machine that dates back to between 1900 and 1910.

The Rube Goldberg-looking machine is owned by Jim Davis of rural Otoe County, who, at 92 years old, dates back even further than the machine.

Although Davis couldn't make it to the fair, E.L. Rolofson, area supervisor for th Nebraska Department of Agriculture, made seeing to the machine's safety his own assignment.

"It's really an eyecatcher," Rolofson said about the machine which served its master until 1962.

The heart of the machine is its motor, made by Cushman, a Lincoln company which sported a lot of muscle in the early 1900s.

The wood-framed machine was made to be horsedrawn until Davis bought his first tractor and adapted the sprayer.

Although Rolofson didn't know for sure, he speculated Davis bought the machine new.

Since then, the machine was used to keep the bugs off of Davis' apple trees while Davis kept the bugs out of the machine — for more than 50 years.

His idea was to display the ancient machine with a great-great-grandchild which is in production now.

The new machine, with its spiderweb of hoses and its relatively supersized tank, sells for about $2,500. The grandpa sprayer, Rolofson speculated, would have sold for about $75.

After the fair, the machine's fate is a mystery, Rolofson said.

Firemen Demonstrate Emergency Procedure

The wailing sirens and flashing red lights of emergency vehicles draws crowds at Nebraska's State Fair every day.

Although the crowds can see the wrecked cars and the emergency vehicles poised behind the north wall of the Coliseum, they're still in for a treat when the action begins.

It's no tragedy. Instead, Leo Hill, a trained emergency medical services (EMS) person mans a public address system and explains what the dozen EMS people are doing.

Crowds watch as Lincoln firemen cut the top out of an overturned car and remove the victim, another fireman. Hill explains the use and function of the "Jaws of Life," a portable saw that rips through metal in a matter of seconds.

As soon as the victim is freed an ambulance and the Bryan Memorial Hospital Mobile Heart Team arrive and personnel treat him for a heart attack.

A photographer, one of many attracted to the scene, said, "It's kind of nice to photograph one of these without the blood, for a change."

The emergency demonstrations continue the rest of the fair: Wednesday and Thursday at 5 p.m., Friday at 4:30 p.m., Saturday at noon and Sunday at 12:45 p.m.

Pius X Enrollment Points To Addition

Enrollment at Pius X High School, 6000 A St., has increased by 64 students over last year, according to Father James Dawson, superintendent of Lincoln's Catholic schools.

Dawson said the Pius enrollment, now 715, was the largest increase for the system which now has 118 more students than last year. When Pius opened its doors 20 years ago there were 168 students enrolled.

The enrollment increase "points up the urgency for the new addition at Pius X," according to Superintendent Ivan F. Vap. "We will have an even larger enrollment next year based on the number of eighth graders in the Catholic elementary system this year," he added.

New additions at Pius this year include principal, Mike Harkins, and changes in modular scheduling which give students 15 mods, of 21 minutes each, in their school day.

Harkins stresses that Pius operates as a "Family Unit," with each teacher responsible for a certain number of students who are considered his family unit.

"It's a very humanistic approach, an individualized thing, that has proved very effective," he added.

The Pius school day, which begins at 8:30 and ends at 3:20, stresses "flexibility," which, combined with the family approach has "Catholic schools from other parts of the country looking closely at our programs," Harkins said.

Another "pilot project" that Harkins would like to start at Pius is a cultural exchange with students from other countries.

Harkins was involved with such a program through an Illinois school where he taught before coming to Lincoln. In that program, 15 eighth graders spent two weeks in Canada and 15 young Canadians spent similar time in this country.

"If we can get the kids together, we've got a real start at easing international relations," he said. Not only do the schools benefit, but the entire community benefits from such a program, he added.

Elementary enrollments, as of Sept. 3, are: Blessed Sacrament 234, Cathedral of Risen Christ 391, Sacred Heart 152, St. John 286, St. Mary 183, St. Patrick 169, St. Theresa 370.

Despite increased enrollments, school officials say the pupil-teacher ratios in the schools are "ideal." There are 159 staff members to serve the 2,500 students, with a ratio of 1 to slightly more than 15.

Prize Money Is Sought By Top Skateboarders

©The New York Times

Long Beach, Calif — The sparsely filled seats of the Long Beach Arena, with its makeshift plywood hill didn't look like "never-never land ' In fact the main floor of the arena, which had been roped off with plastic blue and white flags, looked rather amateurish for what was billed as the World Professional Skateboard Championship

It certainly was the first time anyone had put up $20 000 in prize money for a skateboarding contest For 24-year-old Skitch Hitchcock of Laguna Niguel Calif , it was a dream come true

Hitchcock was addicted to skateboarding as a youngster during the first skateboarding craze in the '60s and never stopped The early skateboards were wobbly boards with steel wheels which would barely traverse the common sidewalk

Improvements came slowly and that is probably why the fad died off for nearly 10 years before its recent rejuvenation Hitchcock, who was skating every day then, remembered the short boards with the composite clay wheels There were no sponsors in those days, he recalled I was burning out clay wheels once every three days, it got to be pretty expensive, it was costing me about $10 a week."

But the skateboard fad has surged recently with the development of wheels made from tough polyurethane and boards of fiberglass So two years ago Hitchcock turned professional and signed a contract to "ride ' for a major manufacturer of the new boards

The new skateboards can be raced down hills at 60 miles an hour and ridden down the walls of giant drainage pipes With a second lease on life, the skateboard companies are sending "teams" on nationwide tours to push skateboarding as the new family sport

Now skateboarding has joined surfing and rock music as part of the youth leisure cult in California So it is not surprising that a rock concert producer should be promoting a skateboarding championship Steve Wolf of Wolf and Rissmiller Concerts first became aware of the skateboarding craze when trying to book rock concerts at West Coast arenas only to find the dates taken up by surfing and skateboarding movies Research into an attendance figures at those movies eventually convinced the producers that skateboarding was a booming business and needed organizing

Hoping to eventually promote a series of events Wolf and Rissmiller found a sponsor for the $20,000 prize money and then, the concert company said, it invested $50 000 to $60,000 of its own money to advertise and organize the first World Professional Skateboard Championship To add flavor to the event, the $4 admission ticket included a free rock concert each night

The biggest impetus for establishing skateboarding as a sport comes from the skate board manufacturers, who sign the skateboarder — some to contracts of up to $30,000 — and send them around the country to give skateboard demonstrations, on local TV programs and at rock concerts

Rick Smith, who put up the $20,000 prize money for the latest skateboard championship, does not think that sponsoring a skateboarding championship at $20,000 a crack or paying between $20,000 and $30,000 for a top skater to endorse, advertise and promote his skateboards is unreasonable He said that his company had sold $6 million worth of skateboards in the last 10 months

Russ "Grandpa" Howell, a 27-year-old physical education major from California State University at Long Beach, had chosen to remain unsigned prior to the championship because one of the meet s main functions was to provide commercial opportunities and endorsements for particular manufacturers Given the endorsements for particular skateboard products, the winner of the meet could get up to $50,000 on his signature alone

"The thing is, in competition they could be giving away lollipops at this meet and it would have the same importance as if they were giving away thousands and thousands of dollars," Howell said between signing autographs

One of the competing skateboarders was John ' Woody" Woodstock of Oyster Bay, Long Island He paid his own way out to California to find out what the competition was going to be like, and whether he could become a professional skateboarder He found the competition much tougher than back East but he placed in the first five in the barrel jump by hurtling 16 barrels on his board

Woodstock an 18-year-old blond, looked much like his West Coast counterparts except for a heavy New York accent He said that the problem with skateboarding in the eastern cities was that it was mainly done in the streets

For Skitch Hickcock, the weekend meet could have lasted forever As he signed an autograph for a 15-year-old groupie, Hitchcock said My surfing friends got married 20 years ago and they aren t kids anymore You get married and you can t skateboard I got to be a kid forever Peter Pan "

Nuclear Waste Handling Called 'Cause For Concern' In Report

Washington (UPI) — Government management of hazardous nuclear waste is faulty and "a cause for concern " a report prepared for the U S Energy Research Agency warned Tuesday

The report urged more administrative and policy reforms, saying many problems can be solved but that the last chance for such corrective action may be at hand

Radioactive wastes that must be sealed away from mankind and the environment for thousands or even millions of years already are "an unavoidable consequence of our nuclear age," the report said

It said approximately half a million tons of highly radioactive waste and millions of cubic feet of less dangerous "low level" atomic debris — all but a fraction of it produced during three decades of nuclear weapon programs — must be dealt with immediately

The report was prepared for the Energy Research and Development Administration by Mason Willrich, a University of Virginia law professor who worked on it this summer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's energy laboratory. A Sept 1 draft of the report was obtained and released Tuesday by consumer activist Ralph Nader

"We are concerned about radioactive waste because it is a potential radiological hazard to man and other and forms of life, the report said

"If a human being is exposed to excessive amounts of radiation depending on the circumstances the harmful effects may be immediate death, life shortened by radiation-induced cancer, radiation-induced genetic change which may affect subsequent generations, or temporary ill health followed by complete recovery "

That, the report said, is why it is so important to find effective ways of storing such wastes as plutonium, which loses only half its radioactivity in 24,000 years.

Girl Believed Arsonist In 17 Fires

NEW YORK (AP) — A 13-year-old girl that authorities say is mentally disturbed was held Tuesday as the phantom firebug who set 17 small blazes in mid-town department stores, apparently using nothing more complicated than a cigarette lighter or matches

The girl, arrested Monday night after a small fire on the seventh floor of Macy's on Herald Square, was charged with juvenile delinquency She was held at a youth center for a later appearance in Family Court, her name withheld because of her age

The fires were a sequel to five fire bombings during the Democratic National Convention in July The terrorist Armed Forces for the Liberation of Puerto Rico took responsibility for these, calling them a protest against Puerto Rican participation in the convention

Authorities said there was no political motivation behind the arson attributed to the teenager The fires were set in clothing racks and the mattress of a bedroom display

The youngster was seized after a blaze broke out in Macy's fabric section about 8 20 p m Monday, shortly before the store closed after Labor Day shopping A security guard remembered seeing her in the aftermath of fires there last month and detained her as she was attempting to leave the store

Youths Attempt To Vandalize Marilyn's Crypt

Los Angeles (AP) — Three youths apparently attempted to pry open the crypt containing the remains of actress Marilyn Monroe, police said Tuesday

A seam on the marble front of the crypt in Westwood Memorial Park was chipped with a tire iron, officers said

Scott Jones, director of the cemetery, said the youths fled after they were seen Monday by a family visiting a nearby crypt

Three of the six roses in a vase attached to the front were missing, Jones said Joe DiMaggio, a former husband of Miss Monroe, sends roses three times a week, he said

Jones said vandals have attempted to break into the crypt several times in the past three years

Miss Monroe died of an overdose of sleeping pills on Aug 5, 1962

Police Man Murder Exhibit

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln police admit that their special booth at the Nebraska State Fair hasn't solved one of the city's most baffling murder mysteries, but it has had a positive effect.

The booth, set up to attract attention to the August 30, 1975, murder of two Lincoln boys, Jon Simpson and Jacob Surber, has been manned 12 hours a day by police detectives, including Ken Ideen who has been working on the case for more than a year.

"We've had a lot of people stop and ask about the killings . . . some have offered information, but nothing real substantial has turned up yet," Ideen said.

Many of the curious have been carnival workers, some who were on the midway last year and want to know more about what happened, he explained.

Color pictures of the two boys, said to be inseparable playmates, are on display in the booth, along with a map showing where their bodies were found. Also included is a sketch of a man known as David Dye, a transient whom police think is a prime suspect in the murders of the boys.

"We've seen a lot of parents squeeze their kids hands when they leave the booth," Ideen said. "An occasional mother will bend over and kiss her child," he added.

Noting an overall change in attitude of people attending the fair, Ideen said that fewer young children have been unattended in the record crowds that have jammed the midway this year.

"We had to do this to remind people of the seriousness of the crime," Ideen said, adding that, "If we can keep this from happening again, we've done some good."

Orchard Spraying Rig Dates To 1910

By HARRY JACKSON
Star Staff Writer

Fairgoers can get a taste of the old and the new in orchard farming at an interesting exhibit in the Agricultural Hall.

In the center of the building is an old tree spraying machine that dates back to between 1900 and 1910.

The Rube Goldberg-looking machine is owned by Jim Davis of rural Otoe County, who, at 92 years old, dates back even further than the machine.

Although Davis couldn't make it to the fair, E.L. Rolofson, area supervisor for th Nebraska Department of Agriculture, made seeing to the machine's safety his own assignment.

"It's really an eyecatcher," Rolofson said about the machine which served its master until 1962.

The heart of the machine is its motor, made by Cushman, a Lincoln company which sported a lot of muscle in the early 1900s.

The wood-framed machine was made to be horsedrawn until Davis bought his first tractor and adapted the sprayer.

Although Rolofson didn't know for sure, he speculated Davis bought the machine new.

Since then, the machine was used to keep the bugs off of Davis' apple trees while Davis kept the bugs out of the machine — for more than 50 years.

When the machine retired, Davis left it in a field near his house where it gathered dust, cobwebs, rust and some indescribable crust, which, in fact, accompanied the machine to the fair.

The ancient machinery got its lease on life when Rolofson, who spends much of his working time on the roads talking to farmers, discovered the machine while visiting Davis.

His idea was to display the ancient machine with a great-great-grandchild which is in production now.

The new machine, with its spiderweb of hoses and its relatively supersized tank, sells for about $2,500. The grandpa sprayer, Rolofson speculated, would have sold for about $75.

After the fair, the machine's fate is a mystery, Rolofson said.

Firemen Demonstrate Emergency Procedure

The wailing sirens and flashing red lights of emergency vehicles draws crowds at Nebraska's State Fair every day.

Although the crowds can see the wrecked cars and the emergency vehicles poised behind the north wall of the Coliseum, they're still in for a treat when the action begins.

It's no tragedy. Instead, Leo Hill, a trained emergency medical services (EMS) person mans a public address system and explains what the dozen EMS people are doing.

Crowds watch as Lincoln firemen cut the top out of an overturned car and remove the victim, another fireman. Hill explains the use and function of the "Jaws of Life," a portable saw that rips through metal in a matter of seconds.

As soon as the victim is freed an ambulance and the Bryan Memorial Hospital Mobile Heart Team arrive and personnel treat him for a heart attack.

Volunteers pass through the crowd and distribute literature pertaining to 911, the emergency medical number for the Lincoln area.

A photographer, one of many attracted to the scene, said, "It's kind of nice to photograph one of these without the blood, for a change."

The emergency demonstrations continue the rest of the fair: Wednesday and Thursday at 5 p.m., Friday at 4:30 p.m., Saturday at noon and Sunday at 12.45 p.m.

Pius X Enrollment Points To Addition

Enrollment at Pius X High School, 6000 A St., has increased by 64 students over last year, according to Father James Dawson, superintendent of Lincoln's Catholic schools.

Dawson said the Pius enrollment, now 715, was the largest increase for the system which now has 118 more students than last year. When Pius opened its doors 20 years ago there were 168 students enrolled.

The enrollment increase "points up the urgency for the new addition at Pius X," according to Superintendent Ivan F. Vap. "We will have an even larger enrollment next year based on the number of eighth graders in the Catholic elementary system this year," he added.

New additions at Pius this year include principal, Mike Harkins, and changes in modular scheduling which give students 15 mods, of 21 minutes each, in their school day.

Harkins stresses that Pius operates as a "Family Unit," with each teacher responsible for a certain number of students who are considered his family unit.

"It's a very humanistic approach, an individualized thing that has proved very effective," he added.

The Pius school day, which begins at 8:30 and ends at 3:20 stresses "flexibility," which, combined with the family approach has "Catholic schools from other parts of the country looking closely at our programs," Harkins said.

Another "pilot project" that Harkins would like to start at Pius is a cultural exchange with students from other countries.

Harkins was involved with such a program through an Illinois school where he taught before coming to Lincoln. In that program 15 eighth graders spent two weeks in Canada and 15 young Canadians spent similar time in this country.

"If we can get the kids together, we've got a real start at easing international relations," he said. Not only do the schools benefit, but the entire community benefits from such a program, he added.

Elementary enrollments, as of Sept. 3, are: Blessed Sacrament 234, Cathedral of Risen Christ 391, Sacred Heart 152, St. John 286, St. Mary 183, St. Patrick 169, St. Theresa 370.

Despite increased enrollments, school officials say the pupil-teacher ratios in the schools are "ideal." There are 159 staff members to serve the 2,500 students, with a ratio of 1 to slightly more than 15.

"You are absolutely right, darling! I do care more for love than I do for money. People don't believe it, but my horoscope shows it. I deserve a 'good' person. I am a good person. I have had unhappiness. But I feel you are right — that things are changing, that I will find the right man. Yes, darling, I am in love with love!" — Zsa Zsa Gabor to Sydney Omarr.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You find what has been missing, misplaced, hidden. You are better able to communicate with one who has been distant. Gemini, Virgo individuals could be involved. Full Moon highlights ability to analyze doubts, fears and dreams. You learn a great deal about — you!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar position, aspects indicate fulfillment of wishes, romance, friendship — and ability to straighten out budget problem. Love, luxury and art could be in picture. Pleasure principle is emphasized. Gift of jewelry seems to be a distinct possibility, either purchased or received.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Full Moon position highlights your aspirations, ambitions, willingness to work towards goal. You learn what is legally viable, what is full of holes. You also discover what must be done to retain an important relationship, including marriage. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Look beyond current expectations. Begin bringing priorities into focus. Accept responsibility. Deal with power, authority. You now are able to obtain valid view of what's to be — know it and do something about it in area of preparation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Be vigorous in defense of principles. Creativity, intensified relationships come to forefront. Your instincts, beliefs, intuitions, hunches mean more now than in recent past. Love and money are very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approaches should be advocated. If you insist on battling changes, including legal updates, you'll pay a price. Know it and act accordingly. Leo, Aquarius individuals could figure prominently as you direct efforts to heart of matters. Accent on partnership, the public and marital status.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ideas blend into vision — you "see" and perceive — your concepts are now a combination of the practical and poetic. Aquarian figures prominently. Gain indicated by teaching, sharing. A relative, apparently disinterested, sits up and takes notice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Full Moon highlights part of chart dealing with children, affairs of heart, basic emotions, changes, variety, personal magnetism, responses to opposite sex. Fun and games could be featured as you relax from routine. Popularity grows. Words of caution: avoid extravagant claims, spending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on practical issues, costs, values, structure of property — and what makes it stand. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio individuals could be in picture. Older person cares and will support you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You gain enlightenment if receptive. You are due to lose money and time if you stubbornly insist on following course that is destructive. Key is movement, versatility as contrasted to fixed ways, lack of flexibility. Means don't be rigid!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cash flow improves — what had been a logjam is removed. Full Moon spotlights area of chart related to personal possessions, valuable money. Taurus, Libra persons could be in picture. Favorable domestic adjustment is on agenda.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Full Moon in your zodiacal sign coincides with emphasis on appearance, personality, fulfillment of desire. Associates, professional superiors are impressed — timing is good and prestige is on upsurge.

IF SEPTEMBER 8th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are vigorous, a natural executive, an organizer, intense, analytical and passionate. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. In October, expect exciting changes. If single, you could meet someone who will be part of your life. If married, you soon will travel — there might be an addition to your family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Wednesday, September 8, 1976

"You are absolutely right, darling! I do care more for love than I do for money. People don't believe it, but my horoscope shows it. I deserve a 'good' person. I am a good person. I have had unhappiness. But I feel you are right — that things are changing, that I will find the right man. Yes, darling, I am in love with love!" — Zsa Zsa Gabor to Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You find what has been missing, misplaced, hidden. You are better able to communicate with one who has been distant. Gemini, Virgo individuals could be involved. Full Moon highlights ability to analyze doubts, fears and dreams. You learn a great deal about — you!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar position aspects indicate fulfillment of wishes, romance, friendship — and ability to straighten out budget problem. Love, luxury and art could be in picture. Pleasure principle is emphasized. Gift of jewelry seems to be a distinct possibility, either purchased or received.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Full Moon position highlights your aspirations, ambitions, willingness to work towards goal. You learn what is legally viable, what is full of holes. You also discover what must be done to retain an important relationship, including marriage. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Look beyond current expectations. Begin bringing priorities into focus. Accept responsibility. Deal with power, authority. You now are able to obtain valid view of what's to be — know it and do something about it in area of preparation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Be vigorous in defense of principles. Creativity, intensified relationships come to forefront. Your instincts, beliefs, intuitions, hunches mean more now than in recent past. Love and money are very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approaches should be advocated. If you insist on setting changes, including legal updates, you'll pay a price. Know it and act accordingly. Leo, Aquarius individuals could figure prominently as you direct efforts to heart of matters. Accent on partnership, the public and marital status.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ideas blend into vision — you "see" and perceive — your concepts are now a combination of the practical and poetic. Aquarian figures prominently. Gain indicated by teaching, sharing. A relative, apparently disinterested, sits up and takes notice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Full Moon highlights part of chart dealing with children, affairs of heart, basic emotions, changes, variety, personal magnetism, responses to opposite sex. Fun and games could be featured as you relax from routine. Popularity grows. Words of caution: avoid extravagant claims, spending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on practical issues, costs, values, structure of property — and what makes it stand. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio individuals could be in picture. Older person cares and will support you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You gain enlightenment if receptive. You are due to lose money and time if you stubbornly insist on following course that is destructive. Key is movement, versatility as contrasted to fixed ways, lack of flexibility. Means don't be rigid!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cash flow improves — what had been a logjam is removed. Full Moon spotlights area of chart related to personal possessions, valuable money. Taurus, Libra persons could be in picture. Favorable domestic adjustment is on agenda.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Full Moon in your zodiacal sign coincides with emphasis on appearance, personality, fulfillment of desire. Associates, professional superiors are impressed — timing is good and prestige is on upsurge.

IF SEPTEMBER 8th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are vigorous, a natural executive, an organizer, intense, analytical and passionate. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. In October, expect exciting changes. If single, you could meet someone who will be part of your life; if married, you soon will travel — there might be an addition to your family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
